Hope Abandoned For Mine Crew; Portals Sealed

Gloom Settles Over Valley; Grim News Told In Church

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (UPI)—"Let us pray," the bishop intoned, and grieving women wailed.

"Our father, who art in heaven . . ." A hush fell over the packed, one-room church. A minute later, they left for home to be alone with their families and their sorrow.

The news they had tried so hard to forestall had come at last: 78 men were given up for dead.

The mine was to be sealed. Even as families and friends were being told the wrenching decision, work crews went about the task of pouring hundreds of tons of steel and concrete into the five portals of the Mannington No. 9 mine, forever sealing the fate of the 78 miners trapped 700 feet underground by a series of explosions and fires that raged unchecked since the first blast Nov. 20.

The mine was sealed completely before dawn today. Because the danger of explosions was "still great," company officials said, no one was allowed in the vicinity of the five portals.

As word spread of the worst American mining accident in 17 years, gloom covered the valley. The little towns that dot the coal fields of northern West Virginia are numbered by the frequency with which they have been visited by disaster. Sixteen men died at the same mine in 1954. A month ago four persons died in a furniture store fire.

A sense of foreboding struck the 78 families yesterday afternoon when representatives of the Consolidation Coal Co. telephoned and asked them to come to the James Fork United Methodist Church near the mine.

The wooden pews in the tiny, red brick church can hold 100. About 200 showed up, lining the aisle, walls and choir loft.

John Corcoran, president of Consolidation Coal Co., walked slowly down the aisle, turned at the altar and spoke:

"When I first came here a few days ago I made a promise that when the time came I would be with you. That time

Battles Flare; Saigon Sets Ex-Cong Free

SAIGON (AP) — Quick-striking troopers of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division mauled a North Vietnamese battalion of about 400 men in a jungle battle near the Cambodian border, the U.S. Command said today.

Military spokesmen said. 78 North Vietnamese regulars were killed in the fighting near the frontier outpost of Loc Ninh three miles from Cambodia, northwest of Saigon.

GIs KILLED

Headquarters said seven Americans were killed and 16 were wounded in the latest of a series of border battles in which the air cavalrymen claim to have killed 525 enemy this week.

A handful of enemy rocket and mortar attacks were reported today outside the border area.

Spokesmen said Tay Ninh was lightly mortared last night, and a big Marine supply base just north of Da Nang received enemy rocket fire early today. Light casualties and damage were reported.

U.S. Air Force B52 bombers continued round-the-clock raids along the Cambodian border and on approach routes to Saigon. The eight jet aircraft rattled windows in the capital early today with a raid in the Marshay Rung Sat zone, a Viet Cong hideout southeast of Saigon.

CONG SET FREE

Despite a Viet Cong radio announcement of a new offensive to "utterly destroy" U.S. forces in South Vietnam, the Saigon government went through with their plans this morning to release 140 former Viet Cong from prisoner of war camps as part of a national reconciliation program.

Ninety prisoners were released in a street ceremony in Saigon; 36 were freed at Pleiku;

Ailing Tiburon Widow Is Victim Of Mysterious Blaze In Home

A young Tiburon widow died last night in a mysterious fire which ruined her home in the Hawthorne Terrace section of the city.

The victim was identified as Lorna Land, about 32, widow of Robert Land, a partner in Land Brothers sporting goods firm in San Francisco. He died about four years ago.

Tiburon Fire Capt. Edward J. Parnell said that neighbors reported that the house, at 695 Hawthorne Drive, was on fire at 7:55 p.m. By the time three fire trucks arrived, the bedroom wing was ablaze, he said, with flames pouring from the windows.

As a neighbor screamed, "There is a woman, a child and baby sitter in there," firemen rushed into the burning house. They found Mrs. Land's body in a bathroom of the three-bedroom, one-story house.

Mrs. Land's only child, Linda, 8, was spending the night at a neighbor's home.

There was no baby sitter at the Land home.

Although Parnell said the fire was controlled within about 15 minutes, the bedroom wing of the house was destroyed and much of the rest of the dwelling had smoke and water damage.

Firemen today said they suspected the fire started in the master bedroom but that further investigation will be made. The cause also was undetermined.

A neighbor said that Mrs. Land had been in bed all day yesterday with flu.

The only other injury in the fire was to Capt. Parnell, who chipped a tooth and cut his face when he ran into a wire clothesline on the patio.

The cause of Mrs. Land's death is not known pending an autopsy, according to the coroner's office.

Her body was taken to Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

Third Robbery In Eight Weeks Hits San Rafael Store For $100

A bandit, dressed in black and pointing an automatic pistol, robbed a clerk at the Tamalpais Market in San Rafael last night of about $100.

This was the third holdup at the market, at the corner of Second and D Streets, in eight weeks.

The robber forced clerk Larry S. Mason, son of owner Lester Mason, to turn over all currency from the cash register, then ordered him and a customer to the rear of the store before disappearing out the front door.

The customer, Denny E. Ferrari of San Rafael, told patrolman Joseph V. Leonard he noticed a slightly built man enter just before the 9 p.m. closing time. He wore a dark suit coat, dark trousers and a wide brimmed black hat.

He bought two six-packs of beer and a carton of cigarettes. As clerk Mason rang up the purchase, the bandit drew an automatic pistol from under his coat, calmly pulled the slide back and released it to put a shell in the chamber and ordered: "Fill the bag with everything you have in the register."

Mason took all the paper money and put it in the bag.

Ferrari, who was standing at the end of the counter, said he did not realize Mason was being held up because the paper bag was hiding the automatic.

The gunman ordered Mason and Ferrari to the rear of the store and walked out the front. Mason said he does not know whether the robber left on foot or used a getaway car.

The bandit was about 45 to 50 years old, five feet, six inches tall, 130 to 135 pounds, had gray hair, and was clean shaven. He wore a dark tie and a wide black belt with brass buckles, along with a wide-brimmed black hat pulled down in front.

Previous robberies occurred at the market on Oct. 8 and Nov. 19. A total of $300 was stolen on those occasions from Lester and Lloyd Mason, partners in the store.

Nixon Spends His Day Quietly

Nixon had lunch in his offices with his special emissary to the Johnson administration, Robert Murphy, and former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press spokesman, reported that no Cabinet appointments were likly to be announced until "several days" after Nixon returns from a California trip at the end of next week—making the first announcement due some time after Dec. 5.

Classes Due On Monday At S.F. State

Will It Be Scholarship Or Renewed Violence?

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, San Francisco State College's new acting president, today ordered the strife-torn college's campus reopened Monday.

The announcement at a press conference this afternoon at the San Francisco Press Club climaxed five days of speculation since the famed semanticist, a resident of Mill Valley, was appointed to succeed acting President Robert Smith Tuesday and mediately ordered the troubled campus closed.

Whether or not Monday's opening would find the stage set for orderly resumption of classes or for escalated violence remained to be seen.

The closing was viewed as an attempt to enlist faculty and student support for a return to normal on the 18,000-student campus.

Classes have been suspended since Nov. 22 while daily convocations were held to air campus problems. The sessions, in the main auditorium, were piped via closed circuit television throughout the campus.

Hayakawa faces an order from a Marin County Superior Court judge to reopen the campus Monday, or explain why he couldn't.

The court order was obtained by Frederick Craemer, 20, Greenbrae, a graphic arts student. He was joined in the Marin County Superior Court suit by his father, editor and co-publisher of the Independent-Journal. A student strike and sporadic violence — including beatings, fires and destruction of college property — have rocked the school.

The school has been heated by violence for three weeks, the spark coming from the suspension of George Murray, a Black Panther Party member and part-time English instructor.

Murray had urged minority students to carry guns to class.

The suspension was followed

Saigon May Stall Talks To January

PARIS (UPI)—Western diplomats today expressed fears that South Vietnam may try to stall the opening of the expanded Vietnam War talks until President-elect Richard M. Nixon sends a new delegation chief to Paris.

American officials said earlier it was "highly unlikely" that the new phase of the talks could get underway next week as had been hoped. It was still not known here when South Vietnam's delegation would arrive.

The diplomats said they believed the Saigon delegation would come here with instructions not to give ground to the Communists in the crucial procedural talks which will precede the beginning of substantive discussions aimed at bringing peace. One of the major issues will involve the seating of the delegations.

The diplomats said Saigon might balk at any compromise until the appointment of a new U.S. delegation chief will give it an opening to shift its position.

Saigon officials here have made it clear they would welcome Nixon's appointment of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to replace Ambassador W. Averell Harriman as chief delegate. Lodge, former ambassador to Saigon and currently

Cleaver Believed In Canada; State Seeks U.S. Warrant

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Federal officials considered today issuing a fugitive warrant for Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther leader believed to have fled the country rather than return to prison.

California officials said Friday they had received information that the 33-year-old Panther information minister, wanted for violating parole, had fled to Canada.

Deputy State Atty. Gen. Edward O'Brien, acting on the unconfirmed report, asked federal authorities yesterday for a warrant for Cleaver's arrest on charges of interstate flight to avoid imprisonment.

However, U. S. Atty. Cecil Poole declined to issue the fugitive warrant until he was supplied with more details by state officials.

Poole said the state had "not come up sufficient evidence to prove Cleaver has left the state and to justify issuance of the warrant."

Cleaver was to have surrendered Wednesday morning after his parole was revoked when he was charged with murderous assault in an April 6 shootout with Oakland police. Three officers were wounded and Black Panther treasurer Bobby Hutton, 17, was killed.

The California Corrections Department said it had received a tip that Cleaver was a passenger on a chartered plane from Los Angeles to Montreal Thursday.

HONG KONG FLU FLARES IN U.S.

Sporadic Outbreaks Reported In East, Rocky Mountain Areas And California

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Hong Kong flu has flared in Colorado, southern Arizona, North Carolina, Philadelphia, Pa., and Puerto Rico as well as California, the National Communicable Disease Center reports.

The center said yesterday that tourists just back from Hawaii, including a group of 155 Shriners, are believed to have imported the germs into North Carolina.

Dr. J. N. MacCormack, North Carolina's assistant health director, said about 85 of the Shriners who visited Honolulu in October were stricken and blood tests showed they had Hong Kong flu.

The mining town of Bisbee, Ariz., reported an outbreak of the virus, and officials said school absenteeism was running at 60 per cent. However, the center said this outbreak was mild.

Flu has hit the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, sending nearly 2,000 of the 3,400 cadets to the infirmary for treatment. However, less than 1 per cent of the stricken required hospitalization and officials said the outbreak is "definitely on the wane."

An Air Force base in Colorado Springs and Army officials at Fort Carson, Colo., also reported illnesses from the virus. The number of flu cases at Fort Carson has dropped, with about 30 of every 1,000 soldiers reported ill now. Earlier, the rate was double that among the post's 12,000 personnel.

Nine persons died of the flu at Riverview, Philadelphia's home for the needy. But officials said the outbreak is slowing and no deaths have been reported at Riverview since Wednesday.

Vaccine for the new strain of flu is becoming available and the center has urged doctors to give priority to vaccinating the elderly and chronically ill.

U.S., Peking Carefully Spar In Warsaw

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is preparing a "favorable reply" to Communist China's proposal for an ambassadorial meeting in Warsaw Feb. 20, officials reported today.

Highly placed informants also said the Johnson administration is studying a Nov. 26 statement in Peking calling on the United States to join in a peaceful coexistence agreement.

The fact, however, that Peking's call is conditional on a United States withdrawal of assistance to Nationalist China, makes the invitation to peaceful coexistence a theoretical issue, officials said.

It is a question of semantics, sources said, whether the February meeting was proposed by the United States and accepted by Red China or vice versa.

They said the United States proposed two dates in February for holding the 135th meeting between representatives of the two countries in Warsaw and Peking accepted a third date in the same month.

The State Department declined to disclose what dates the United States proposed but a Peking announcement of Nov. 26 said Washington suggested either next Feb. 5 or Feb. 11.

The Chinese message instead suggested Feb. 20 and this is acceptable to the United States, officials said. A response agreeing to the Chinese suggestion will be dispatched soon.

The Red Chinese request as phrased in the Peking announcement, that the United States: "immediately withdraw all its armed forces from China's Taiwan Province and the Taiwan Straits and dismantle all its military installations in Taiwan Province," is the standard Chinese demand put forward at virtually every ambassadorial meeting in the Polish capital.

Because of U.S. reluctance to discuss such a request "there is virtually nothing to talk about" at the Warsaw meeting, some officials acknowledged.

The Peking message suggested that the United States conclude an agreement "on the five principles of peaceful coexistence." These "principles" were endorsed at a conference of Afro-Asian nations in 1955. They included such generalities as mutual respect for each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty, mutual nonaggression, mutual noninterference in internal affairs, equality, and peaceful coexistence.

Police, Fire Crisis Eases For Newark

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Police and firemen returned to work under court order today after a day-long "sick strike" that forced officials to impose a curfew and halt liquor sales in this city of 400,000.

"Everything is back to normal," a spokesman for Mayor Hugh Addonizio said. "The ban will be lifted on bars and liquor stores as soon as the mayor begins business this morning."

COURT ORDER

Firemen began reporting for regular duty last night ofter an injunction against the slowdown was served on union leaders. Policemen resumed their duties today.

Yesterday 1,000 of the city's 1,300 patrolmen and 300 of its 1,000 firemen called in sick with such illnesses as "Hong Kong flu" or "Russian diarrhea." They had voted to stage the "sick strike" to press demands for raises bringing maximum pay to $10,500 a year.

MAYOR ACTS

Addonizio declared a state of emergency in Newark, which has one of the highest crime rates in the country. He imposed a midnight-to-6 a.m. curfew and closed taverns and liquor stores at noon yesterday.

Police Director Dominick Spina advised that the restrictions remain in effect through last night and early today despite the start of a back-to-work movement.

The Fire Department reported a full shift of 180 men reported for duty at 8 p.m. yesterday but only 90 of the 800 policemen who had called in sick for their overnight shift reported for duty.

Hallinan Sets Appeal On Mutiny

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An attorney defending a group of soldiers who face possible mutiny charges plans to go before the U.S. Court of Appeals with the case.

Terence Hallinan announced the move yesterday after U.S. District Judge Albert C. Wollenberg turned down a petition for a show cause hearing on behalf of 17 of 27 prisoners who took part in a sit-down strike at the San Francisco Presidio Stockade Oct. 14.

The judge said that other avenues, including the Court of Military Appeals, were open to the prisoners, who had alleged unsanitary conditions and violation of the constitutional rights of due process and prohibition of cruel or unusual punishments.

The sit-in was in protest for the fatal shooting on Oct. 11 of Pvt. Richard Bunch, 19, of Detroit, who was killed by a guard as he attempted to flee from a work detail.

Czech Workmen Defy Dues Rules

PRAGUE (UPI)—Workers at an Ostrava steel plant have decided to pay only part of their Communist party dues as a protest against features of the new party line approved earlier this month, the official party newspaper Rude Pravo reported today.

The newspaper said the action of the workers unit, part of the giant Klement Gottwald works, was disapproved by the ruling works committee in the plant.

Nevertheless, the newspaper said, the workers were carrying out their protest.

"The group criticized some parts of the Central Committee resolution—mainly the setting up of the party bureau for Czech lands—and decided to collect normal party dues, but to pay to higher party bodies only a symbolic amount of one crown until their views are taken into consideration," Rude Pravo said.

NORMAL DUES

Most ordinary workers pay between 10 and 20 crowns per month in party dues.

The resolution approved by the Central Committee set up a ruling bureau for the still-to-be-created Communist party of the Czech provinces of Bohemia and Moravia. The Soviets have prevented calling of a Czechoslovak Communist party congress for the purpose of establishing the necessary party machinery. A Slovak Communist party has been in existence since before World War II and the new Czech branch would match it under the new federalization system approved last month.

Meanwhile, the magazine Reporter was back on the news stands today with more of the same type of politically troublesome cartoons that brought about its suspension three weeks ago.

The lively magazine of the Union of Czech Journalists published a half-dozen political jibes in its first edition after the end of the suspension, ordered by the government under the terms of a Soviet-imposed censorship law.

The issue, a yearbook edition on the newsstands yesterday, included one cartoon with an indirect reference to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia Aug. 21. It showed a man with a Santa Claus beard but a military uniform and a bagful of machine guns.

The bearded man stood in front of a house where a puzzled citizen looked out from a door.

"What's the matter? Haven't you ever seen St. Nicholas before?" Santa asked.

RISKY ITEM

The publication of such material was a risk for Reporter, which ran into trouble for printing an apparently innocent piece of humor that appeared in the Soviet humor magazine Krokodil in the late 1950s. That cartoon showed a diplomat leaving the White House and reclaiming his coat at a check counter.

One onlooker was telling another that the guest could reclaim his coat, but not his sovereignty. The parallel with post-invasion Czechoslovakia was too much and resulted in a one-month suspension order against Reporter.

Housing Office Hit By Robbers

NORTH RICHMOND (UPI) — A gunman, using a six-year-old girl as a hostage, yesterday robbed the Contra Costa County Housing Authority of $5,000.

The bandit held Susan Olden by the hand as he forced office clerk Barbara Hines, 20, to open a wall vault.

While he was scooping up the money, Miss Hines grabbed the girl from her captor. The gunman then slammed them shut in the vault but did not lock the door as he made his getaway.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The apricot orginated in China some 4,000 years ago. It is the staple diet of the tiny Himalayan kingdom of Hunza, where people are said to often live to the age of 150.

Rock Stars' Home Gutted By Flames

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A three alarm fire today partially gutted a Presidio Heights home owned by two members of the Jefferson Airplane singing group.

Battalion Fire Chief Gene Murphy estimated damage at about $25,000 to the three story Victorian which had been concerted into flats.

The building is owned by drummer Spencer Dryden, 30, and guitarist Jorma Kaukonen, 26, although neither was home at the time.

Murphy said the blaze broke out in an unoccupied bedroom on the ground floor. For a short time, firemen were afraid the flames would spread to other homes in the area.

Kaukonen's wife, Margarita, escaped unharmed from the upper flat. Two of Dryden's friends were rescued unharmed from the lower unit.

Fireman Urie Walsh twisted a knee while fighting the blaze.

Kremlin Woos France With Help For Franc

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet Union is moving to counteract an improvement in U.S.-French relations by reassuring President Charles de Gaulle on its military aims in the Mediterranean and by offering increased economic cooperation, diplomatic sources reported today.

The move is timed in part to France's financial troubles.

Virtually without publicity, the Soviet Union showed its intentions yesterday by granting a contract to a subsidiary of the French electronics manufacturer, Compagnie des Compteurs, for a space simulator.

The terms were not disclosed, but the delivery date—within a year—indicated the Russians were anxious to make a gesture that would be quickly felt, even if on a limited scale.

Soviet-French relations, once vigorously promoted by De Gaulle as a basis for creating a "European Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals," have been in decline since the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in August.

This, the presence of Soviet warships in the Mediterranean, and France's monetary troubles have pushed France closer to the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that De Gaulle virtually abandoned two years ago.

One diplomatic informant said the Russians were concerned about a shift, even if slight, from France's middle road between the two power blocs.

The way the Soviet Union hopes to counteract it, according to this diplomat's reading, is to reassure France about the move into the Mediterranean while making room at home for more French exports.

TALKS WITH DE GAULLE

Twice in the last 10 days, Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin went at his own behest to see President de Gaulle. One meeting was understood to deal with economic questions—Zorin described it as a discussion of "bilateral questions and the other the Mediterranean issue.

A report that could not be checked said Zorin presented the argument that the Soviet presence in the Mediterranean was no more surprising on analysis than that of the United States 6th Fleet.

Zorin's visits may have had some connection with planning for meetings here in January of the "master commission" overseeing the Soviet-French economic and technical agreement signed in 1966.

That agreement has led to Soviet purchase of the French color television process and a contract for construction by French engineers of a nuclear bubble chamber at the Soviet atom center at Serpukhov. The Russians send France petroleum and machine tools.

French exports to the Russians were $128 million during the first nine months of 1968, a surplus over imports from the Soviet Union for the first time since the 1966 agreements were concluded.

Robbery Victim Ends Up Jailed On Dope Charge

OAKLAND (UPI) —A merchant marine seaman was arrested as an alleged narcotics dealer yesterday when he was apprehended carrying 11 ounces of suspected heroin in a brown paper bag.

Police said they became suspicious of Roy Boswell, 58, after he complained he had been beaten and robbed of some clothing and valuables about 10 days ago.

Sergeant Ted Hilliard of the Oakland police vice squad said he received word from underworld source that Boswell had also been robbed of $8,000 in cash and about four ounces of heroin.

Police staked out Boswell's flat and moved in when they saw him carrying the bag.

Officers said the heroin was worth about $50,000 on the retail market. A search of the flat turned up an additional quantity of heroin hidden in a mixing bowl.

LISBON (UPI) — Former Portuguese Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar remains in "stationary" condition from the stroke that felled him Sept. 16, a medical bulletin said yesterday.

Boat Said Safe

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI) — The sailboat Saga II, feared lost in a storm carrying 35-year-old Leif Alm and his 13-year-old daughter from Stockholm to the Canary Islands, was sighted yesterday south of Lisbon. Both Alm and the daughter were safe, a Swedish radio station said.

Girls Murdered

ROCKAWAY TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Two young girls were found beaten to death today in a wooded area.

Police identified them as Julie Rodriguez, 7, and Darline Copensky, 6.

Authorities said their skulls were crushed with a rock that was found nearby covered with blood stains. Darline's uncle, Edward Copensky, discovered the bodies in a gully 150 feet behind the Rodriguez' house, police said.

There was no indication of sexual assault.

Officer Faces Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A trial date of Jan. 13 was set Friday for police officer Michael O'Brien, accused of shooting a truck driver during an argument over a minor traffic accident.

O'Brien, who has been suspended, pleaded not guilty to the manslaughter charge. The shooting victim, George Baskett, was killed Sept. 29.

Hotel Robbed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A lone gunman escaped yesterday with $17,294 belonging to the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Girl Falls, Rescued

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Coast Guard helicopter was called Friday to rescue an 18-year-old girl who had tumbled down a cliff onto Baker's Beach.

The Coast Guard said Mary Hall was hiking on the cliff above the beach with a friend, John Meller, when she fell.

She was reported in good condition at a local hospital after emergency treatment.

Negro Doll Boom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Shindana Toy Factory, run by a Negro self-help group, says it will add 30 workers next week to its staff of 22 to keep up with demands for Baby Nancy, a Negro doll.

The factory opened in October as a subsidiary of Operation Bootstrap, with technical help and money from Mattel, Inc., a toy company.

Shindana spokesmen said Friday the company has sold 15,000 of the dolls to toy dealers and department stores.

East Bay Holdup

EL CERRITO (UPI) — Two men escaped with $20,000 worth of watches and gems from a jewelry store yesterday after tying up the store owner.

Larry Schmike, 35, owner of the shop, said one of the men threatened him with a gun and ordered him into a back room. After securing Schmike, the two men gathered up their loot and fled.

Four Saved At Sea

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A man, woman and two children kept afloat all night in the Atlantic Ocean by lifejackets after their 63-foot boat home sank were rescued today by the Coast Guard.

The survivors were identified as James C. Jones, 30, Mrs. Robie Jones, 29, Larry Jones, 14, and Raymond Jones, 11.

A plank on the bottom came loose allowing sea water to swamp the boat, the Coast Guard said.

Second Fatal Holdup

OAKLAND (UPI) — A service station attendant was shot to death during a robbery Friday at the same station where another attendant was killed during a robbery two months ago.

John Willie Hill, 25, was found lying in a pool of blood in a storeroom. He had been shot in the head and neck.

On Sept. 30 Robert Stratton, 18, was stabbed and beaten to death at the station, also during a holdup.

A company spokesman said the attendants never keep more than $10 in the cash drawer. The rest of the money is kept in a safe in the concrete floor.

Kennedy To Speak

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts will be the principal speaker at a testimonial dinner Dec. 15 to honor the memory of his brother, the late New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The event is designed to raise funds to pay off the deficit estimated at upwards of $100,000 accumulated during Robert Kennedy's successful California primary campaign. He was assassinated as he claimed victory election night.

More Hong Kong Flu

BERKELEY (AP) — Cases of Hong Kong flu have been diagnosed in 10 California counties — but only 16 cases have been confirmed, state health officials say, and none are in Marin.

Conductor Loses

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Martinson, former conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has been ordered to pay $42,000 in back income taxes despite his claim that he is a French citizen with no residence or place of business in the United States.

U.S. District Judge Walter R. Mansfield refused yesterday to enjoin the Internal Revenue Service from collecting the taxes.

Martinson had sought to block the action, claiming he was exempt from paying U.S. income taxes under an agreement between the American and French governments covering the tax status of aliens.

Beat Poet Hurt

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Allen Ginsberg suffered a broken hip and broken ribs in a two-car collision yesterday near the Albany County airport.

The 42-year-old beat poet, whose best-known work is the lengthy "Howl," was reported in satisfactory condition after being admitted to Memorial Hospital here.

He and three companions, who suffered minor injuries, were returning to a 70-acre farm which Ginsberg bought about 40 miles west of here to take up organic gardening.

Santa Funds Cut

PARIS (AP) — The French government's official Santa Claus today became a victim of President Charles de Gaulle's save-the-franc austerity program.

To tighten its budget, the Postal and Telecommunications Ministry announced it would no longer maintain its Santa Claus office to reply to children writing with their Christmas toy lists.

New Ambassador

SAIGON (AP) — William E. Colby, head of the American pacification effort in South Vietnam, has been given the rank of Ambassador by President Johnson, the U.S. Mission announced today.

Colby succeeded Robert W. Komer, who left to become ambassador to Turkey. Komer also had ambassadorial rank. Colby was his deputy.

Fighting In China

HONG KONG (AP) — Reports reaching Hong Kong said fighting has broken out between government and antigovernment forces in Communist China's Kwangtung Province.

Chinese travelers said an organization which calls itself the "Chinese People party" is publishing its own newspaper and carrying on guerrilla warfare against forces loyal to Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

No Airport Parking

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco International Airport officials have issued an advisory urging persons going to the airport to use public transportation.

All airport parking lots were full and traffic congested because of holiday airport usage and the situation was not expected to ease until Sunday night, a spokesman said Friday.

Australia Fire Danger Eases

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Steady rain and cooler weather today eased a fire threat in the Blue Mountain suburbs of Sydney, where wind-whipped brush fires claimed at least five lives and destroyed about 150 buildings earlier this week.

The lull gave firefighters a rest and a chance to consolidate positions for Monday when more hot weather and stronger winds are forecast.

More than $333,000 has been collected so far to aid fire victims and the homeless. Many families who fled to safer ground began returning to their homes.

'Topless Mother Of Eight' Dies In Crash With Three Children

VICTORVILLE (UPI) — Mrs. Gaye M. Spiegelman, who built a bare-bosomed career in West Coast nightclubs as "Mama Spiegelman" and "The Topless Mother of Eight," was killed yesterday in an auto accident along with three of her children.

The 36-year-old dancer and seven of her children were passengers in a station wagon that overturned after hitting a center divider on Interstate 15 two miles north of Victorville.

During the accident the Los Angeles-bound station wagon was hit by a pickup truck traveling in the opposite direction. Mrs. Spiegelman was en route from her home in Las Vegas, Nev., to a nightclub engagement in Southern California.

The accident took the lives of Mrs. Spiegelman's sons Mark, 15, and David, 5, and a five-year-old adopted daughter, Sylvia. Four other children escaped serious injury and were taken to the Victor Valley Hospital. Among them was Sylvia's twin sister, Nancy,

The driver of the station wagon, Marvin P. Brody, 43, of North Hollywood, who was not seriously injured.

Mrs. Spiegelman was one of the pioneers of the topless entertainment craze that originated in the nightclub strip of San Francisco's North Beach.

The children in the auto who survived the accident are Steven, 12; Tracy, 11; Scott, 8, and Nancy, 5.

HONG KONG FLU FLARES IN U.S.

Sporadic Outbreaks Reported In East, Rocky Mountain Areas And California

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Hong Kong flu has flared in Colorado, southern Arizona, North Carolina, Philadelphia, Pa., and Puerto Rico as well as California, the National Communicable Disease Center reports.

The center said yesterday that tourists just back from Hawaii, including a group of 155 Shriners, are believed to have imported the germs into North Carolina.

Dr. J. N. MacCormack, North Carolina's assistant health director, said about 85 of the Shriners who visited Honolulu in October were stricken and blood tests showed they had Hong Kong flu.

The mining town of Bisbee, Ariz., reported an outbreak of the virus, and officials said school absenteeism was running at 60 per cent. However, the center said this outbreak was mild.

Flu has hit the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, sending nearly 2,000 of the 3,400 cadets to the infirmary for treatment. However, less than 1 per cent of the stricken required hospitalization and officials said the outbreak is "definitely on the wane."

An Air Force base in Colorado Springs and Army officials at Fort Carson, Colo., also reported illnesses from the virus. The number of flu cases at Fort Carson has dropped, with about 30 of every 1,000 soldiers reported ill now. Earlier, the rate was double that among the post's 12,000 personnel.

Nine persons died of the flu at Riverview, Philadelphia's home for the needy. But officials said the outbreak is slowing and no deaths have been reported at Riverview since Wednesday.

Vaccine for the new strain of flu is becoming available and the center has urged doctors to give priority to vaccinating the elderly and chronically ill.

Kremlin Woos France With Help For Franc

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet Union is moving to counteract an improvement in U.S.-French relations by reassuring President Charles de Gaulle on its military aims in the Mediterranean and by offering increased economic cooperation, diplomatic sources reported today.

The move is timed in part to France's financial troubles.

Virtually without publicity, the Soviet Union showed its intentions yesterday by granting a contract to a subsidiary of the French electronics manufacturer, Compagnie des Compteurs, for a space simulator.

The terms were not disclosed, but the delivery date—within a year—indicated the Russians were anxious to make a gesture that would be quickly felt, even if on a limited scale.

Soviet-French relations, once vigorously promoted by De Gaulle as a basis for creating a "European Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals," have been in decline since the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in August.

This, the presence of Soviet warships in the Mediterranean, and France's monetary troubles have pushed France closer to the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that De Gaulle virtually abandoned two years ago.

One diplomatic informant said the Russians were concerned about a shift, even if slight, from France's middle road between the two power blocs.

The way the Soviet Union hopes to counteract it, according to this diplomat's reading, is to reassure France about the move into the Mediterranean while making room at home for more French exports.

TALKS WITH DE GAULLE

Twice in the last 10 days, Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin went at his own behest to see President de Gaulle. One meeting was understood to deal with economic questions—Zorin described it as a discussion of "bilateral questions and the other the Mediterranean issue.

A report that could not be checked said Zorin presented the argument that the Soviet presence in the Mediterranean was no more surprising on analysis than that of the United States 6th Fleet.

Zorin's visits may have had some connection with planning for meetings here in January of the "master commission" overseeing the Soviet-French economic and technical agreement signed in 1966.

That agreement has led to Soviet purchase of the French color television process and a contract for construction by French engineers of a nuclear bubble chamber at the Soviet atom center at Serpukhov. The Russians send France petroleum and machine tools.

French exports to the Russians were $128 million during the first nine months of 1968, a surplus over imports from the Soviet Union for the first time since the 1966 agreements were concluded.

Robbery Victim Ends Up Jailed On Dope Charge

OAKLAND (UPI) —A merchant marine seaman was arrested as an alleged narcotics dealer yesterday when he was apprehended carrying 11 ounces of suspected heroin in a brown paper bag.

Police said they became suspicious of Roy Boswell, 58, after he complained he had been beaten and robbed of some clothing and valuables about 10 days ago.

Sergeant Ted Hilliard of the Oakland police vice squad said he received word from underworld source that Boswell had also been robbed of $8,000 in cash and about four ounces of heroin.

Police staked out Boswell's flat and moved in when they saw him carrying the bag.

Officers said the heroin was worth about $50,000 on the retail market. A search of the flat turned up an additional quantity of heroin hidden in a mixing bowl.

Housing Office Hit By Robbers

NORTH RICHMOND (UPI) — A gunman, using a six-year-old girl as a hostage, yesterday robbed the Contra Costa County Housing Authority of $5,000.

The bandit held Susan Olden by the hand as he forced office clerk Barbara Hines, 20, to open a wall vault.

While he was scooping up the money, Miss Hines grabbed the girl from her captor. The gunman then slammed them shut in the vault but did not lock the door as he made his getaway.

Boat Said Safe

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI) — The sailboat Saga II, feared lost in a storm carrying 35-year-old Leif Alm and his 13-year-old daughter from Stockholm to the Canary Islands, was sighted yesterday south of Lisbon. Both Alm and the daughter were safe, a Swedish radio station said.

Girls Murdered

ROCKAWAY TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Two young girls were found beaten to death today in a wooded area.

Police identified them as Julie Rodriguez, 7, and Darline Copensky, 6.

Authorities said their skulls were crushed with a rock that was found nearby covered with blood stains. Darline's uncle, Edward Copensky, discovered the bodies in a gully 150 feet behind the Rodriguez' house, police said.

There was no indication of sexual assault.

Officer Faces Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A trial date of Jan. 13 was set Friday for police officer Michael O'Brien, accused of shooting a truck driver during an argument over a minor traffic accident.

O'Brien, who has been suspended, pleaded not guilty to the manslaughter charge. The shooting victim, George Baskett, was killed Sept. 29.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A lone gunman escaped yesterday with $17,294 belonging to the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Girl Falls, Rescued

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Coast Guard helicopter was called Friday to rescue an 18-year-old girl who had tumbled down a cliff onto Baker's Beach.

The Coast Guard said Mary Hall was hiking on the cliff above the beach with a friend, John Meller, when she fell.

She was reported in good condition at a local hospital after emergency treatment.

Negro Doll Boom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Shindana Toy Factory, run by a Negro self-help group, says it will add 30 workers next week to its staff of 22 to keep up with demands for Baby Nancy, a Negro doll.

The factory opened in October as a subsidiary of Operation Bootstrap, with technical help and money from Mattel, Inc., a toy company.

Shindana spokesmen said Friday the company has sold 15,000 of the dolls to toy dealers and department stores.

East Bay Holdup

EL CERRITO (UPI) — Two men escaped with $20,000 worth of watches and gems from a jewelry store yesterday after tying up the store owner.

Larry Schmike, 35, owner of the shop, said one of the men threatened him with a gun and ordered him into a back room. After securing Schmike, the two men gathered up their loot and fled.

Four Saved At Sea

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A man, woman and two children kept afloat all night in the Atlantic Ocean by lifejackets after their 63-foot boat home sank were rescued today by the Coast Guard.

The survivors were identified as James C. Jones, 30, Mrs. Robie Jones, 29, Larry Jones, 14, and Raymond Jones, 11.

A plank on the bottom came loose allowing sea water to swamp the boat, the Coast Guard said.

Second Fatal Holdup

OAKLAND (UPI) — A service station attendant was shot to death during a robbery Friday at the same station where another attendant was killed during a robbery two months ago.

John Willie Hill, 25, was found lying in a pool of blood in a storeroom. He had been shot in the head and neck.

On Sept. 30 Robert Stratton, 18, was stabbed and beaten to death at the station, also during a holdup.

A company spokesman said the attendants never keep more than $10 in the cash drawer. The rest of the money is kept in a safe in the concrete floor.

Kennedy To Speak

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts will be the principal speaker at a testimonial dinner Dec. 15 to honor the memory of his brother, the late New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The event is designed to raise funds to pay off the deficit estimated at upwards of $100,000 accumulated during Robert Kennedy's successful California primary campaign. He was assassinated as he claimed victory election night.

More Hong Kong Flu

BERKELEY (AP) — Cases of Hong Kong flu have been diagnosed in 10 California counties — but only 16 cases have been confirmed, state health officials say, and none are in Marin.

Conductor Loses

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Martinson, former conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has been ordered to pay $42,000 in back income taxes despite his claim that he is a French citizen with no residence or place of business in the United States.

U.S. District Judge Walter R. Mansfield refused yesterday to enjoin the Internal Revenue Service from collecting the taxes.

Martinson had sought to block the action, claiming he was exempt from paying U.S. income taxes under an agreement between the American and French governments covering the tax status of aliens.

Beat Poet Hurt

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Allen Ginsberg suffered a broken hip and broken ribs in a two-car collision yesterday near the Albany County airport.

The 42-year-old beat poet, whose best-known work is the lengthy "Howl," was reported in satisfactory condition after being admitted to Memorial Hospital here.

He and three companions, who suffered minor injuries, were returning to a 70-acre farm which Ginsberg bought about 40 miles west of here to take up organic gardening.

Santa Funds Cut

PARIS (AP) — The French government's official Santa Claus today became a victim of President Charles de Gaulle's save-the-franc austerity program.

To tighten its budget, the Postal and Telecommunications Ministry announced it would no longer maintain its Santa Claus office to reply to children writing with their Christmas toy lists.

New Ambassador

SAIGON (AP) — William E. Colby, head of the American pacification effort in South Vietnam, has been given the rank of Ambassador by President Johnson, the U.S. Mission announced today.

Colby succeeded Robert W. Komer, who left to become ambassador to Turkey. Komer also had ambassadorial rank. Colby was his deputy.

Fighting In China

HONG KONG (AP) — Reports reaching Hong Kong said fighting has broken out between government and antigovernment forces in Communist China's Kwangtung Province.

Chinese travelers said an organization which calls itself the "Chinese People party" is publishing its own newspaper and carrying on guerrilla warfare against forces loyal to Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

No Airport Parking

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco International Airport officials have issued an advisory urging persons going to the airport to use public transportation.

All airport parking lots were full and traffic congested because of holiday airport usage and the situation was not expected to ease until Sunday night, a spokesman said Friday.

'Topless Mother Of Eight' Dies In Crash With Three Children

VICTORVILLE (UPI) — Mrs. Gaye M. Spiegelman, who built a bare-bosomed career in West Coast nightclubs as "Mama Spiegelman" and "The Topless Mother of Eight," was killed yesterday in an auto accident along with three of her children.

The 36-year-old dancer and seven of her children were passengers in a station wagon that overturned after hitting a center divider on Interstate 15 two miles north of Victorville.

During the accident the Los Angeles-bound station wagon was hit by a pickup truck traveling in the opposite direction. Mrs. Spiegelman was en route from her home in Las Vegas, Nev., to a nightclub engagement in Southern California.

The accident took the lives of Mrs. Spiegelman's sons Mark, 15, and David, 5, and a five-year-old adopted daughter, Sylvia. Four other children escaped serious injury and were taken to the Victor Valley Hospital. Among them was Sylvia's twin sister, Nancy,

The driver of the station wagon, Marvin P. Brody, 43, of North Hollywood, who was not seriously injured.

Mrs. Spiegelman was one of the pioneers of the topless entertainment craze that originated in the nightclub strip of San Francisco's North Beach.

The children in the auto who survived the accident are Steven, 12; Tracy, 11; Scott, 8, and Nancy, 5.

Fate Of Surtax Sparks Differing Congress Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, believes that with good fiscal management Richard M. Nixon will be able to let the 10 per cent income surtax expire next June if the Vietnam War continues at its present pace.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, has said he sees little possibility for letting the surtax expire. In his view the only hope for tax relief is to impose stringent economies on government spending.

Ford's view is somewhat at variance with that of Wisconsin's John W. Byrnes, top Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, who has said that if there is no change in the Vietnam war during the next few months Congress will have to continue the surtax.

At the same time, Byrnes said that if the shooting aspect of the war is pretty well resolved by January or February, it would be possible to eliminate the surtax or to make changes such as reducing it by 5 per cent.

Bread, Cheese Wine And Jail

Three young persons were booked into Marin County Jail last night after a San Anselmo police officer saw them sitting across from the police station eating bread and cheese and drinking from a bottle believed to contain wine.

Charles Thomas Walsh, 20, of 19 Sheila Court, San Anselmo, and Naomi Marie Barton, 20, and Rosanne MacLeod, 19, both of 9 Summer Avenue, Fairfax, were booked on suspicion of possession of alcohol, contributing to the delinquency of a minor and furnishing alcoholic beverage to a minor.

The minor, a 13-year-old boy, was cited to probation officers on suspicion of possession of alcohol, police reported.

The three were held in lieu of $1,005 bail each and scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday.

Daylight Thieves Flee With $375

Thieves made off with about $375 in cash and checks in a daylight robbery at the Enco Service Station, 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, yesterday, police reported.

Police said the station attendant, John Bittner, reported he saw a car drive in about 4:15 p.m. while he was busy with another customer. He said the car stopped as though the occupants were just going to use the restroom.

has come now."

One of those present, declining to be identified, said Corcoran told them that "every human effort to save the men had been made," and that he could no longer jeopardize the lives of men on the drilling crews and rescue teams.

"There is only one alternative now," he quoted Corcoran, "to put out the fire by sealing the mine."

The Rev. John Barnes, pastor of the church, rose to say a prayer. Loud, wracking sobs filled the room.

The most Rev. Joseph Hodges, Roman Catholic bishop of Wheeling, W. Va., followed with a spontaneous prayer, then asked the congregation to join him in reciting the Lord's Prayer.

Outside, Tony Megna was bitter, Megna, a high school principal in Plain City, Ohio, lost a brother, Emelio, to the mine.

"I don't think they have done enough," Megna said. "They could have brought in more drills or used the foam machine as a last resort. By sealing the mine they aren't really sure whether they are alive and at the same time they are eliminating the chance that they might be alive. I believe the emphasis here is more on production than safety."

At the company store, the manager went about restoring a semblance of order. The store was used as press headquarters and a temporary shelter for the families during part of their vigil.

Psychological Group Revives

Marin psychologists met yesterday to reactivate the Marin Psychological Association and elected Dr. William Pemberton of Mill Valley as president and Hildegard Berliner of San Rafael as secretary.

Dr. Pemberton said the organization will coordinate services for Marin residents and will also provide specialists to keep members abreast of current developments in the field.

He said the association plans to bring specialists in behavioral science to the county. He said keys to meeting current problems can be found in research in the field.

Woman Dies In Strewn Apartment

San Rafael police last night found a 61-year-old woman dead in her Laurel Avenue apartment, which they said was in shambles.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Katherine Ketner of 215 Laurel Avenue, Apt. 4.

The cause of death was not known, according to police, pending a coroner's autopsy.

Officers said that the woman's husband, Henry Walter Ketner, 57, called family friends in Walnut Creek, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Brungard, about 8:30 p.m., asking them to come over because his wife was dead.

Brungard notified police at 10:30 p.m. Officer Timothy O'Donnell said he found Mrs. Ketner lying face up near the front door and with several bruises on her body.

Ketner told police that he and his wife had been on a three-week drinking spree and that he did not remember what happened to her.

The apartment was littered with clothes and furniture was overturned, O'Donnell added.

Ketner was committed to Napa State Hospital at Imola.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Marin Air Cadets Aid Plane Hunt

An air search has failed to turn up any sign of the light plane piloted by a Ukiah businessman which disappeared Wednesday on a flight from Imperial to Ukiah.

The search for Sid Beamer, 49, and his wife, Audrey, 42, and their aircraft was being conducted by the Coast Guard and Civil Air Patrol planes, along with liaison craft from the Air Rescue Service at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Flying with the Civil Air Patrol as ground watchers during the search were nine boys, aged 15 to 17, of Marin County Cadet Squadron No. 137.

The cadets, who receive training in search and rescue operations and first aid, travel with piloting members of the air patrol, watching the ground for signs of missing aircraft.

The aircraft was believed down somewhere between Tomales Bay and Fort Bragg.

Beamer's father, Steven R. Beamer of Sacramento, has offered a $10,000 reward for the rescue or recovery of the Beamers.

Under Saigon street banners proclaiming, "The government shows tolerance to the people who have gone down the wrong path and want to mend their ways," the prisoners snapped to attention as Minister of State Mai Tho Truyen arrived to preside over the ceremony.

"Some say the South Vietnamese government's action in 'sending tigers back to the jungle' is risky," Truyen said. "However, we think that with the release of such a great number of prisoners we can prove to the domestic and foreign public opinions that we believe in the certain victory of the righteous cause."

Do Van Thinh, spokesman for the prisoners, read from a typewritten statement:

"I was forced by the Communists to fight against the South Vietnamese government. But in reality, there is no hope in fighting for them."

Rare Turtle Stolen; Needs Special Care

A rare six-month-old turtle, stolen yesterday from Aquarium Beautiful, 1409 Fourth Street, San Rafael, will die if it does not receive special care, Mrs. Pat Miller, owner of the pet store, reported to police today.

Mrs. Miller, who reported the turtle was taken between 4 and 6 p.m. yesterday, said it must be kept in shallow, warm salt water and given live food. Because of its age, she said, the turtle cannot fend for itself. She valued the turtle at $30.

LAW IN ACTION

Will's Wording A Tricky Thing

When a lawyer writes your will and refers to "personal belongings" this may not mean "personal property."

Greta found this out recently when she tried to enlarge her inheritance from her bachelor Uncle Ed. Ed has his lawyer write the will instructing his executor to sell his real property for cash, and to give $30,000 of the proceeds to Greta, his only relative, along with his "personal belongings." The rest of the estate was to go to Ed's university.

In court Greta argued that Ed meant her to get more than just jewelry, knickknacks, and the $30,000. Since by law "personal property" is everything except real estate. Greta also wanted bank accounts and securities and the like.

The court ruled against Greta. It asked, what was Ed's intent when he had his lawyer write his will? When the lawyer used the words "personal belongings," he meant Ed's jewelry and tangible personal items.

Ed had clearly limited Greta's inheritance. In his will he disposed of specific things, leaving a certain amount to Greta, and gave the rest to the university. If he had meant Greta to get all "personal property," he would not have left the university all the "rest of his personal property."

When a non-lawyer writes his own will, a long court hearing may be necessary to find out what he meant by "personal belongings," "belongings," or "the balance of my estate."

Evidence must be produced as to what he had in mind — any written letters, his expressed desires, and the like. The court then must make out his wishes as best it can and distribute his estate accordingly.

The court may have to disregard the technical legal meanings of the words to find out and carry out his intentions.

Words such as "heirs," "family," "relatives," used in a home-made will are confusing because their legal meaning may be much more precise than what the will-writer had meant to say.

If you wish to give something to a charity, have your attorney review it, perhaps in consultation with the charity or its legal counsel. The law limits some such gifts, especially when the testator has close relatives.

ambassador to West Germany, has frequently been mentioned as a possible successor to Harriman.

Because of this, the diplomats said, Saigon may well wait until after January 20th before seriously settling down to talk.

The South Vietnamese government still has not sent its 100-member delegation to Paris and therefore it would be "physically impossible" to start before late in the week. U.S. officials doubted they could begin even then.

Both Saigon and the NLF demand to be treated as the only authentic representative of the people of South Vietnam. Each has vowed to ignore the other at the talks.

U.S. officials said they were waiting for the return from Saigon tomorrow of South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam before making any agreement with Hanoi. Lam is considered a possible leader of the Saigon delegation which will be "overseen" by Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky.

Another sign the talks could not open next week was the departure for Washington of U.S. Ambassador-at-Large W. Averell Harriman. He is presiding over the President's Commission on Human Rights Dec. 3-4 and was not expected back in Paris until the end of the week.

Charles G. Strom Dies At 59

Charles G. Strom, longtime San Rafael resident and sales manager of Pacific Union Metal Co. in San Francisco, died yesterday in a local hospital at the age of 59.

Strom suffered a stroke after entering the hospital two weeks ago after becoming dizzy at home. He apparently recovered, however, and returned home Wednesday. He collapsed after Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday and was rushed back to the hospital.

He had spent 20 years in sales of street lighting and traffic signals, entering the business after World War II, in which he was a commander in the Navy, serving as skipper of oil tankers in the Pacific. He received the Silver Star award in Navy service.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., he came to California as a youth and was graduated from University of California at Berkeley. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity at U.C., and of the Meadow Club, Electric Club, Illuminating Engineering Society, Institute of Traffic Engineers, International Municipal Signal Association, and American Public Works Association.

He leaves his wife, Anita C. Strom, former San Rafael Board of Education member, and two daughters and a son, Sandra, Wendy and Peter, at the family home at 260 Linden Lane.

Funeral will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. The family prefers that tributes be contributions to Guide Dogs for the Blind.

Pluto Proves Heavyweight Space Puzzle

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Pluto, farthest out of the sun's planets, has always been a puzzle. There is, apparently, too much stuff in it for its size.

Since Pluto was discovered in the 1930s calculations based on gravitational theory — on Pluto's pull on nearby Neptune and Uranus — have given it a mass quite near to the earth's 6,000 billion billion metric tons. Recent studies show Pluto with eight or nine tenths of earth's mass.

The difficulty is that Pluto appears to be only half the size of earth — something like 4,000 miles in diameter compared to the earth's 8,000 — and the volume so calculated combined with the large mass would make it 40 times as dense as water.

On the other hand, calculations that start from Pluto's size and assume that it is about as dense as the earth give it a mass only 0.13 times that of the earth. But this figure did not fit the gravitational calculations.

The reason for the discrepancy, says Drs. R. L. Duncombe, W. J. Klepczynski and P. K. Seidelman of the Naval Observatory, was that there were too many unknown factors in the gravitational equations. They have done a series of calculations in which they have gone a long step toward harmonizing the figures.

They noticed that the predicted orbits for the planet Neptune that had been used in calculating Pluto's mass were beginning to disagree with observation. These orbits had been fitted carefully to observations up to the times they were calculated, but observations since then were coming out up to 1/720 of a degree away from the predictions.

This is very small error, but it can mean a big difference in the mass of Pluto, because Pluto's gravitational effect on Heptune is very small compared to that of the sun and other planets.

The Naval Observatory astronomers concluded that the inaccuracies grew out of attempts to calculate the orbit of Neptune and the mass of Pluto at the same time.

So they resolved to do a series of calculations of Neptune's orbit in which they assumed different values for Pluto's mass and see which one came closest to Neptune's observed positions.

One of the problems in this kind of fitting is that since the first certain observation of Neptune in 1795 (Neptune was not definitely identified until 1846), the planet has completed only about 70 per cent of a single orbit. For inner planets like Venus or Mars thousands of orbits are recorded.

A calculation made with Pluto's mass set equal to 0.18 earth mass fits the observations of Neptune best, say the three astronomers. With this mass Pluto would have to be 4,500 miles across to be as dense as the earth. If the observed diameter of 4,000 miles is taken as accurate, the density comes out 1.4 times that of the earth or 7.7 times the density of water, a plausible figure.

Fate Of Surtax Sparks Differing Congress Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, believes that with good fiscal management Richard M. Nixon will be able to let the 10 per cent income surtax expire next June if the Vietnam War continues at its present pace.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, has said he sees little possibility for letting the surtax expire. In his view the only hope for tax relief is to impose stringent economies on government spending.

Ford's view is somewhat at variance with that of Wisconsin's John W. Byrnes, top Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, who has said that if there is no change in the Vietnam war during the next few months Congress will have to continue the surtax.

At the same time, Byrnes said that if the shooting aspect of the war is pretty well resolved by January or February, it would be possible to eliminate the surtax or to make changes such as reducing it by 5 per cent.

Bread, Cheese Wine And Jail

Three young persons were booked into Marin County Jail last night after a San Anselmo police officer saw them sitting across from the police station eating bread and cheese and drinking from a bottle believed to contain wine.

Charles Thomas Walsh, 20, of 19 Sheila Court, San Anselmo, and Naomi Marie Barton, 20, and Rosanne MacLeod, 19, both of 9 Summer Avenue, Fairfax, were booked on suspicion of possession of alcohol, contributing to the delinquency of a minor and furnishing alcoholic beverage to a minor.

The minor, a 13-year-old boy, was cited to probation officers on suspicion of possession of alcohol, police reported.

The three were held in lieu of $1,005 bail each and scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday.

Daylight Thieves Flee With $375

Thieves made off with about $375 in cash and checks in a daylight robbery at the Enco Service Station, 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, yesterday, police reported.

Police said the station attendant, John Bittner, reported he saw a car drive in about 4:15 p.m. while he was busy with another customer. He said the car stopped as though the occupants were just going to use the restroom.

has come now."

One of those present, declining to be identified, said Corcoran told them that "every human effort to save the men had been made," and that he could no longer jeopardize the lives of men on the drilling crews and rescue teams.

"There is only one alternative now," he quoted Corcoran, "to put out the fire by sealing the mine."

The Rev. John Barnes, pastor of the church, rose to say a prayer. Loud, wracking sobs filled the room.

The most Rev. Joseph Hodges, Roman Catholic bishop of Wheeling, W. Va., followed with a spontaneous prayer, then asked the congregation to join him in reciting the Lord's Prayer.

Outside, Tony Megna was bitter, Megna, a high school principal in Plain City, Ohio, lost a brother, Emelio, to the mine.

"I don't think they have done enough," Megna said. "They could have brought in more drills or used the foam machine as a last resort. By sealing the mine they aren't really sure whether they are alive and at the same time they are eliminating the chance that they might be alive. I believe the emphasis here is more on production than safety."

Psychological Group Revives

Marin psychologists met yesterday to reactivate the Marin Psychological Association and elected Dr. William Pemberton of Mill Valley as president and Hildegard Berliner of San Rafael as secretary.

Dr. Pemberton said the organization will coordinate services for Marin residents and will also provide specialists to keep members abreast of current developments in the field.

He said the association plans to bring specialists in behavioral science to the county. He said keys to meeting current problems can be found in research in the field.

Woman Dies In Strewn Apartment

San Rafael police last night found a 61-year-old woman dead in her Laurel Avenue apartment, which they said was in shambles.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Katherine Ketner of 215 Laurel Avenue, Apt. 4.

The cause of death was not known, according to police, pending a coroner's autopsy.

Officers said that the woman's husband, Henry Walter Ketner, 57, called family friends in Walnut Creek, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Brungard, about 8:30 p.m., asking them to come over because his wife was dead.

Brungard notified police at 10:30 p.m. Officer Timothy O'Donnell said he found Mrs. Ketner lying face up near the front door and with several bruises on her body.

Ketner told police that he and his wife had been on a three-week drinking spree and that he did not remember what happened to her.

The apartment was littered with clothes and furniture was overturned, O'Donnell added.

Ketner was committed to Napa State Hospital at Imola.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Marin Air Cadets Aid Plane Hunt

An air search has failed to turn up any sign of the light plane piloted by a Ukiah businessman which disappeared Wednesday on a flight from Imperial to Ukiah.

The search for Sid Beamer, 49, and his wife, Audrey, 42, and their aircraft was being conducted by the Coast Guard and Civil Air Patrol planes, along with liaison craft from the Air Rescue Service at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Flying with the Civil Air Patrol as ground watchers during the search were nine boys, aged 15 to 17, of Marin County Cadet Squadron No. 137.

The cadets, who receive training in search and rescue operations and first aid, travel with piloting members of the air patrol, watching the ground for signs of missing aircraft.

The aircraft was believed down somewhere between Tomales Bay and Fort Bragg.

Beamer's father, Steven R. Beamer of Sacramento, has offered a $10,000 reward for the rescue or recovery of the Beamers.

Under Saigon street banners proclaiming, "The government shows tolerance to the people who have gone down the wrong path and want to mend their ways," the prisoners snapped to attention as Minister of State Mai Tho Truyen arrived to preside over the ceremony.

"Some say the South Vietnamese government's action in 'sending tigers back to the jungle' is risky," Truyen said. "However, we think that with the release of such a great number of prisoners we can prove to the domestic and foreign public opinions that we believe in the certain victory of the righteous cause."

Do Van Thinh, spokesman for the prisoners, read from a typewritten statement:

"I was forced by the Communists to fight against the South Vietnamese government. But in reality, there is no hope in fighting for them."

Rare Turtle Stolen; Needs Special Care

A rare six-month-old turtle, stolen yesterday from Aquarium Beautiful, 1409 Fourth Street, San Rafael, will die if it does not receive special care, Mrs. Pat Miller, owner of the pet store, reported to police today.

Mrs. Miller, who reported the turtle was taken between 4 and 6 p.m. yesterday, said it must be kept in shallow, warm salt water and given live food. Because of its age, she said, the turtle cannot fend for itself. She valued the turtle at $30.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Will's Wording A Tricky Thing

When a lawyer writes your will and refers to "personal belongings" this may not mean "personal property."

Greta found this out recently when she tried to enlarge her inheritance from her bachelor Uncle Ed. Ed has his lawyer write the will instructing his executor to sell his real property for cash, and to give $30,000 of the proceeds to Greta, his only relative, along with his "personal belongings." The rest of the estate was to go to Ed's university.

In court Greta argued that Ed meant her to get more than just jewelry, knickknacks, and the $30,000. Since by law "personal property" is everything except real estate. Greta also wanted bank accounts and securities and the like.

The court ruled against Greta. It asked, what was Ed's intent when he had his lawyer write his will? When the lawyer used the words "personal belongings," he meant Ed's jewelry and tangible personal items.

Ed had clearly limited Greta's inheritance. In his will he disposed of specific things, leaving a certain amount to Greta, and gave the rest to the university. If he had meant Greta to get all "personal property," he would not have left the university all the "rest of his personal property."

When a non-lawyer writes his own will, a long court hearing may be necessary to find out what he meant by "personal belongings," "belongings," or "the balance of my estate."

Evidence must be produced as to what he had in mind — any written letters, his expressed desires, and the like. The court then must make out his wishes as best it can and distribute his estate accordingly.

The court may have to disregard the technical legal meanings of the words to find out and carry out his intentions.

Words such as "heirs," "family," "relatives," used in a home-made will are confusing because their legal meaning may be much more precise than what the will-writer had meant to say.

If you wish to give something to a charity, have your attorney review it, perhaps in consultation with the charity or its legal counsel. The law limits some such gifts, especially when the testator has close relatives.

ambassador to West Germany, has frequently been mentioned as a possible successor to Harriman.

Because of this, the diplomats said, Saigon may well wait until after January 20th before seriously settling down to talk.

The South Vietnamese government still has not sent its 100-member delegation to Paris and therefore it would be "physically impossible" to start before late in the week. U.S. officials doubted they could begin even then.

Both Saigon and the NLF demand to be treated as the only authentic representative of the people of South Vietnam. Each has vowed to ignore the other at the talks.

U.S. officials said they were waiting for the return from Saigon tomorrow of South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam before making any agreement with Hanoi. Lam is considered a possible leader of the Saigon delegation which will be "overseen" by Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky.

Another sign the talks could not open next week was the departure for Washington of U.S. Ambassador-at-Large W. Averell Harriman. He is presiding over the President's Commission on Human Rights Dec. 3-4 and was not expected back in Paris until the end of the week.

Two Burglaries In Ross Homes

Burglars entered the home of William Cavalier on Shady Lane in Ross between Wednesday and yesterday and made off with a pair of solid gold cufflinks and several 1912 and 1920 $20 bills, police reported.

Police said the total value of the stolen goods had not been determined. The method of entry was unknown, police said.

Police said burglars entered through a louvered window and removed a stereo, 230 records and earphones. The value of the records was not determinied, police said, but the other items totaled $225.

Charles G. Strom Dies At 59

Charles G. Strom, longtime San Rafael resident and sales manager of Pacific Union Metal Co. in San Francisco, died yesterday in a local hospital at the age of 59.

Strom suffered a stroke after entering the hospital two weeks ago after becoming dizzy at home. He apparently recovered, however, and returned home Wednesday. He collapsed after Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday and was rushed back to the hospital.

He had spent 20 years in sales of street lighting and traffic signals, entering the business after World War II, in which he was a commander in the Navy, serving as skipper of oil tankers in the Pacific. He received the Silver Star award in Navy service.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., he came to California as a youth and was graduated from University of California at Berkeley. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity at U.C., and of the Meadow Club, Electric Club, Illuminating Engineering Society, Institute of Traffic Engineers, International Municipal Signal Association, and American Public Works Association.

He leaves his wife, Anita C. Strom, former San Rafael Board of Education member, and two daughters and a son, Sandra, Wendy and Peter, at the family home at 260 Linden Lane.

Funeral will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. The family prefers that tributes be contributions to Guide Dogs for the Blind.

Pluto Proves Heavyweight Space Puzzle

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Pluto, farthest out of the sun's planets, has always been a puzzle. There is, apparently, too much stuff in it for its size.

Since Pluto was discovered in the 1930s calculations based on gravitational theory — on Pluto's pull on nearby Neptune and Uranus — have given it a mass quite near to the earth's 6,000 billion billion metric tons. Recent studies show Pluto with eight or nine tenths of earth's mass.

The difficulty is that Pluto appears to be only half the size of earth — something like 4,000 miles in diameter compared to the earth's 8,000 — and the volume so calculated combined with the large mass would make it 40 times as dense as water.

On the other hand, calculations that start from Pluto's size and assume that it is about as dense as the earth give it a mass only 0.13 times that of the earth. But this figure did not fit the gravitational calculations.

The reason for the discrepancy, says Drs. R. L. Duncombe, W. J. Klepczynski and P. K. Seidelman of the Naval Observatory, was that there were too many unknown factors in the gravitational equations. They have done a series of calculations in which they have gone a long step toward harmonizing the figures.

They noticed that the predicted orbits for the planet Neptune that had been used in calculating Pluto's mass were beginning to disagree with observation. These orbits had been fitted carefully to observations up to the times they were calculated, but observations since then were coming out up to 1/720 of a degree away from the predictions.

This is very small error, but it can mean a big difference in the mass of Pluto, because Pluto's gravitational effect on Neptune is very small compared to that of the sun and other planets.

The Naval Observatory astronomers concluded that the inaccuracies grew out of attempts to calculate the orbit of Neptune and the mass of Pluto at the same time.

So they resolved to do a series of calculations of Neptune's orbit in which they assumed different values for Pluto's mass and see which one came closest to Neptune's observed positions.

One of the problems in this kind of fitting is that since the first certain observation of Neptune in 1795 (Neptune was not definitely identified until 1846), the planet has completed only about 70 per cent of a single orbit. For inner planets like Venus or Mars thousands of orbits are recorded.

A calculation made with Pluto's mass set equal to 0.18 earth mass fits the observations of Neptune best, say the three astronomers. With this mass Pluto would have to be 4,500 miles across to be as dense as the earth. If the observed diameter of 4,000 miles is taken as accurate, the density comes out 1.4 times that of the earth or 7.7 times the density of water, a plausible figure.

New Swimsuits Use Metal

By NADEANE WALKER

LONDON (AP) — Bullet-proof clothes, suitable for chic soldiers or riot police, made their debut Tuesday in fashions for the future, and one designer forecast handbags instead of pockets for men.

FISH SCALE fashions—with plastic discs knitted into flexible fabrics—were the sensation of the show at Britain's designers' convention.

Middle-aged designer-technician John Carr Doughty said his plastic-plated swimsuits made of the same materials would simulate fish scales and "cut through the water like an electric eel with negative skin resistance."

"When split seconds can win or lose a gold medal, no Olympic swimmer will be without the new swimsuits," Carr Doughty says. Ski clothes fashioned from the same fabric might cut down wind resistant on the racing slopes.

Carr Doughty said he is also working with the government on substituting thin titanium or nylon alloy plates for the plastic scales, and this would make his knitwear bullet-proof.

MADE OF METAL instead of plastic, the designer claims, his clothes can withstand rifle bullets at close range. He showed only plastic clothing Tuesday, but says the discs on his multi-colored cocktail dresses can be knitted invisibly into bullet-proof suits.

Of one all-gold sinuous mermaid number using 6,000 gold scales, he commented that it could be mass-produced without real gold to retail for $24. Another dress in black and white scales reproduced the designer's conception of electronic sound waves.

Prof. Janie Ironside, until recently head of the Royal College of Art's school of fashion, told the convention that as styles change, pockets may vanish and men might carry handbags.

THE DESIGNERS' convention, sponsored by the Clothing Institute, concentrates on technological advances in fashion. Among the speakers was a representative of "ergonomics" or biological designing, meaning engineered clothing adapted to a wearer's needs.

One young men's wear designer, Miss Gail Ansell, complained that "it's impossible to get manufacturers to change basic styles. Men are still in the Victorian era of built-in shape or external corsets."

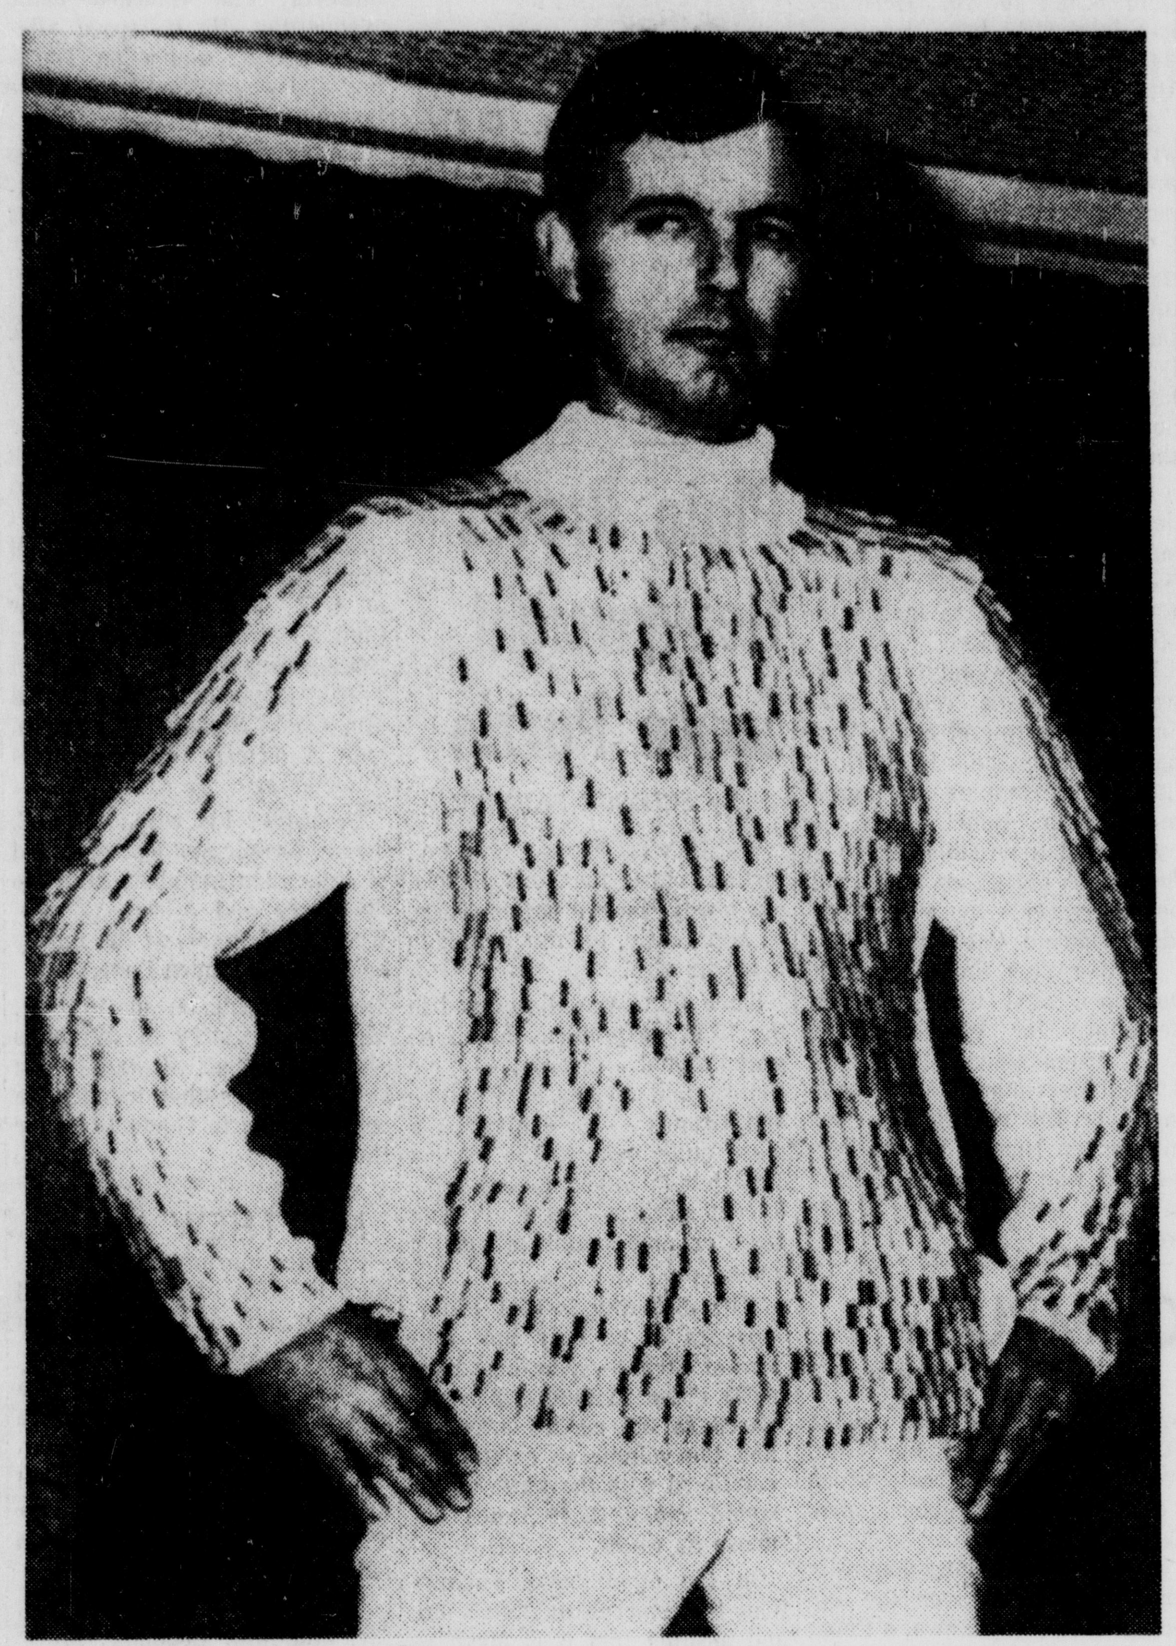
"IT'S TIME for a complete new look for men," said designer Tom Gilbey, "instead of struggling against public resistance to change of the basic suit."

Carr Doughty said: "I don't foresee garments being made much longer with any seams at all."

As to when his own fish scale fashions may appear in shops for sale, Carr Doughty said, "We already have the technique. Now it's up to the manufacturers to show some interest."

A KNIT FABRIC base makes the garments agreeable to wear, and the clothes will be washable.

He said troops wearing his bullet-proof knitwear "would win a lot more medals for bravery." The garments are also to be made for "riot police, politicians and those who value their lives in hazardous conditions," he said.



THIS IS A MACHINE-KNITTED PLAYSUIT with protective plastic plating shown at the British designers convention show in London. The designer, John Carr Doughty, said he's working with the British government on substituting thin titanium or nylon alloy plates for the plastic scales which would make his knitwear bullet-proof. This outfit is in white with the plastic shapes knitted on yard. (AP Wirephoto)

More Seamstresses

The interest in sewing shows in pattern and fabric sales. At a seminar held by one sewing machine manufacturer, panelists said that in 1967 pattern sales were up 30 per cent from the previous year, fabric sales up 29 per cent.

Experts at the seminar estimate that today, 85 per cent of all high school girls know how to sew. In 1967, these 10,650 million girls made nearly 71 million garments.

Bachelor-Inclined Would Send Flowers In Place Of Proposal

DEAR HELEN:

I have been going with a girl for four years. Several times she hinted at marriage, but it didn't seem like a good idea at the time. I am 23 and she is 22. We both work. But I like bachelor life.

Well, I went away for a two-week vacation and, when I returned, my girl said we were through. Just like that. She said she had met another guy. I saw him. He doesn't seem like much. But he looks like a husband, if you know what I mean.

I can't believe my girl really prefers him over me, but she is very stubborn. Do you think candy, flowers and the works might bring her back? — JILTED

DEAR JILTED:

No — but a marriage license would. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

If my mother knew I was writing this, she'd probably kill me because she figures a "tramp" doesn't need any help.

I'm not a tramp. My friends are good kids. They like fun, but they know when to stop, and they don't break the law. I wouldn't think of petting with a boy, but try to convince my mother about that! A neighbor saw me kissing a boy good-night, and now my folks are sure I'll end up pregnant. They seem to think that no teen could possibly say "No." To tell the truth, I am not even tempted, and a little kiss doesn't make me go wildly out of control.

JIS:

Probably. If parents would throw away the passionate-purple tinted glasses and see teens as they are — not as they're too often written about — we'd turn the Generation Gap into a two-way street. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

When you wrote about the domestic student exchange program, it could have been written about our school. For many years, Glen Rock High School has been interested in exchanging students between different states. Last year our first exchange was successfully carried out with Matoon High School in Illinois.

A dozen students from Illinois came here to New Jersey, where they saw New York City and attended our school for a week. In turn, the teens from Glen Rock lived with their hosts and toured a little bit of Lincolnland.

Not only did we see how other Americans live and feel, but we also exchanged ideas about improving our schools. I hope many other schools will join in the program. It's terrific! — S.P.

Don't Kiss The Girls

LOS SANTOS DE MAIMONA, Spain (UPI)—A word of advice if you visit this little town in western Spain:

Don't put your arm around your wife or girl friend.

Above all, don't kiss her or even give her a quick peck, unless you're sure no one is looking.

For this is a town that has banned any and every demonstration of affection in public— by order of the mayor, Don Francisco Murillo de la Calzada.

Violators face fines, possibly prison and a punishment of Murillo's devising — their names are inscribed on town bulletin boards for a period of eight days.

So far, nobody has violated the anti-love laws—at least not in public.

"They are very good people," said parish priest Angel Munoz Ramirez.

Murillo himself has admitted he would turn a blind eye to discreet hand-holding, even to couples walking steadily arm in arm.

But his decree forbids "any demonstration of love in streets and public places ... which can be considered an affront to public morality, a bad example for children and a moral defect on the guilty persons."

Included are "walks in solitary places" after dusk, including all places outside urban limits, even on highways and roads.

Couturier Touch Given Hem

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

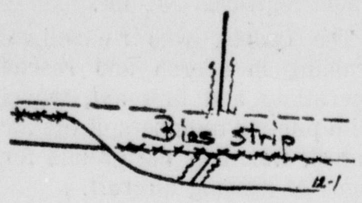
Is there a way to finish a hem in a coat without the stitches showing from the right side?

MRS. S. T.

DEAR MRS. S.T.:

The stitches at the hemline may be eliminated by adding a strip of light-weight interfacing fabric to the hem of your coat or suit and fastening the hem to this.

Use a bias strip of woven interfacing about the same weight as muslin. Be sure it is at least ½ inch wider than the width of the hem. Baste this strip of bias fabric to your garment; the edge of the bias should be exactly on the hemline marks of your garment. Catch stitch this edge of the bias strip to your garment.



Next, fold the hem of the garment in place of the bias strip, baste near the fold to keep it even and straight, and press lightly in place. (Be sure to use silk thread for this basting. If you are working with fleecy fabrics or broadcloth finishes in wool, the silk thread will eliminate marks when pressing.)

Next, catch stitch the edge of the hem to the bias strip only; the bias strip should extend at the hem. Catch stitch the edge of the bias interfacing to the garment seams only. This will eliminate the need for placing hemming stitches on the entire hem, which would be sure to show from the right side. The last ½ inch above the width of lining of your coat will keep the hem in place and prevent it from pulling down. The bias strip of fabric will give the necessary body to the hem of any garment and prevent it from becoming limp and stretched out of shape. One of those important couturier touches!

I have a little trick for concealing shoulder straps. It works beautifully for sleeveless dresses as well as those with sleeves.

Instead of fastening down a neck facing all the way around, I only fasten it down across the front and the back centers, leaving the sections across the shoulders open.

I place a snap at the shoulder seam on the facing, as well as the garment itself. After slipping my dress on, I tuck my straps under the facing and snap the facing down. Straps never creep into sight. This trick will enable a gal to wear a regular bra instead of a strapless one with most low-necked formals or cocktail dresses.

DEAR EUNICE,

Recently I made a suit of imported Scottish tartan fabric, an even-plaid, each square approximately four inches. I thought I had everything matched perfectly, but when I set the sleeves in the armholes, I found that they didn't match the plaids of the jacket. Would you please tell me if there is some rule about matching the sleeves and the body of the jacket?

MRS. R. W. B.

DEAR MRS. R. W. B:

It sounds like you thought of almost everything, except where the sleeves should match. You never try to match the vertical plaids, just the horizontal lines. When placing the pattern on the fabric, use the notch in the front section of your pattern at the armhole as the guide to your plaid. When placing the sleeve in position to cut, place the front notch of the sleeve on the same horizontal line as the front notch of the jacket front. Unfortunately, you will not be able to match the notch at the back armhole, but the front is the most important.

Always remember that a most attractive sleeve in a plaid suit or coat is to cut the sleeve on the bias of the plaid. It is not only decorative but also eliminates the need for matching completely. (Sounds like the coward's way out, but it is actually a detail used by many designers and the better coat and suit manufacturers.)

DEAR READERS,

To the many of you who wrote about your interest in using "signal dots" as markers on garments instead of chalk or tailors chalk, but didn't know where to find these "dots," they come in colors and can be purchased in most stationery stores or office supply stores. They are self adhesive and stick to the fabric, and yet they can be easily lifted off after they have served their pupose.

DEAR EUNICE,

Is there any way to make the flat feld seams inside the pants legs or the long sleeves of a garment? I seem to have quite a bit of difficulty achieving this because the sleeves and legs are so narrow; when the seam goes from the bottom all the way to the top, there just isn't room to work with.

MRS. K. R. C.

DEAR MRS. K. R. C.:

It is always more difficult to make a flat feld seam when the area to work with is small, but it can be done. When you have the seam basted in place, turn the garment wrong side out. Now when you place the seam under the presser foot you will be working with the wrong side flat against the plate of the machine and still be machine stitching on the right side of the garment.

This is much easier than trying to machine stitch seams of this type with the garment right side out.

New Swimsuits Use Metal

By NADEANE WALKER

LONDON (AP) — Bulletproof clothes, suitable for chic soldiers or riot police, made their debut Tuesday in fashions for the future, and one designer forecast handbags instead of pockets for men.

FISH SCALE fashions—with plastic discs knitted into flexible fabrics—were the sensation of the show at Britain's designers' convention.

Middle-aged designer-technician John Carr Doughty said his plastic-plated swimsuits made of the same materials would simulate fish scales and "cut through the water like an electric eel with negative skin resistance."

"When split seconds can win or lose a gold medal, no Olympic swimmer will be without the new swimsuits," Carr Doughty says. Ski clothes fashioned from the same fabric might cut down wind resistant on the racing slopes.

Carr Doughty said he is also working with the government on substituting thin titanium or nylon alloy plates for the plastic scales, and this would make his knitwear bulletproof.

MADE OF METAL instead of plastic, the designer claims, his clothes can withstand rifle bullets at close range. He showed only plastic clothing Tuesday, but says the discs on his multi-colored cocktail dresses can be knitted invisibly into bullet-proof suits.

Of one all-gold sinuous mermaid number using 6,000 gold scales, he commented that it could be mass-produced without real gold to retail for $24. Another dress in black and white scales reproduced the designer's conception of electronic sound waves.

Prof. Janie Ironside, until recently head of the Royal College of Art's school of fashion, told the convention that as styles change, pockets may vanish and men might carry handbags.

THE DESIGNERS' convention, sponsored by the Clothing Institute, concentrates on technological advances in fashion. Among the speakers was a representative of "ergonomics" or biological designing, meaning engineered clothing adapted to a wearer's needs.

One young men's wear designer, Miss Gail Ansell, complained that "it's impossible to get manufacturers to change basic styles. Men are still in the Victorian era of built-in shape or external corsets."

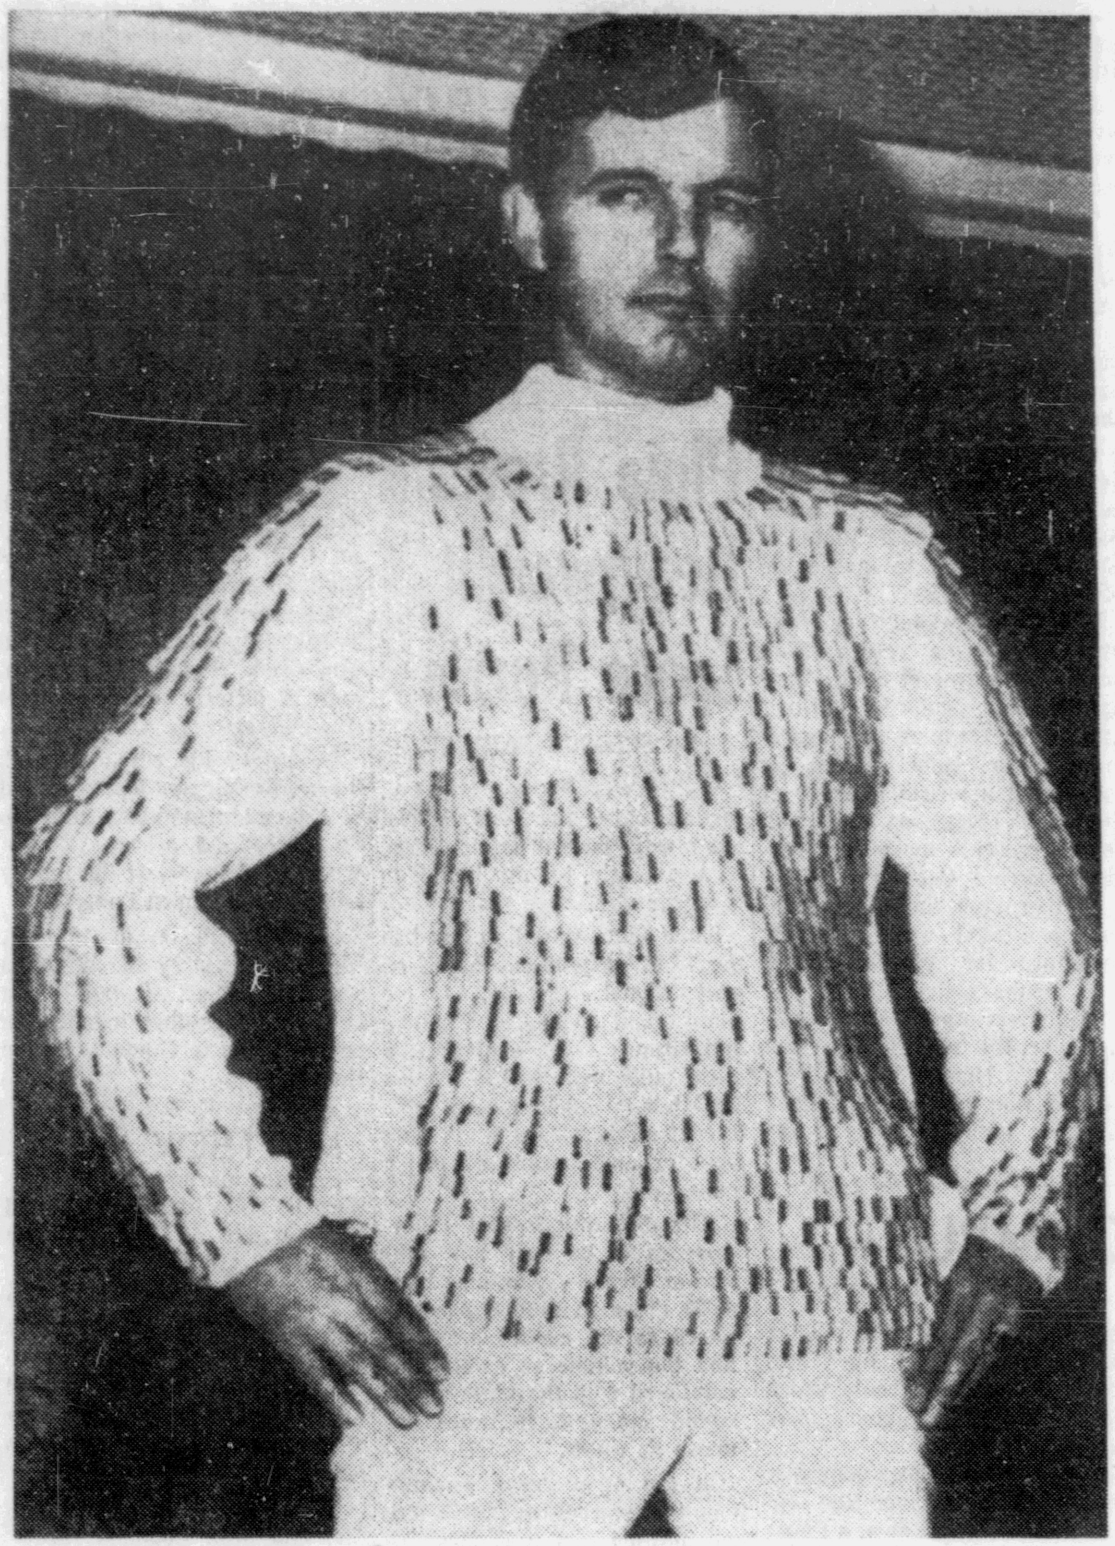
"IT'S TIME for a complete new look for men," said designer Tom Gilbey, "instead of struggling against public resistance to change of the basic suit."

Carr Doughty said: "I don't foresee garments being made much longer with any seams at all."

As to when his own fish scale fashions may appear in shops for sale, Carr Doughty said, "We already have the technique. Now it's up to the manufacturers to show some interest."

A KNIT FABRIC base makes the garments agreeable to wear, and the clothes will be washable.

He said troops wearing his bullet-proof knitwear "would win a lot more medals for bravery." The garments are also to be made for "riot police, politicians and those who value their lives in hazardous conditions," he said.



THIS IS A MACHINE-KNITTED PLAYSUIT with protective plastic plating shown at the British designers convention show in London. The designer, John Carr Doughty, said he's working with the British government on substituting thin titanium or nylon alloy plates for the plastic scales which would make his knitwear bullet-proof. Madrigal Singers To Serenade For Social Services Auxiliary

THE CHRISTMAS TEA and Boutique given each year by the Social Service Auxiliary of Marin will be held Wednesday from 2 to 5 p.m. at Fanjeaux Hall on the Dominican College campus, San Rafael.

Mrs. Lawrence Murray, president; Mrs. William Losee, vice president, and Mesdames Adolph Capurro, Arthur Goepp Jr. and Thomas Sinna will greet the auxiliary members and their guests at the holiday party.

Home baked foods, boutique gift items, hand sewn articles and Christmas decorations will be offered for sale by the auxiliary, which aids the Catholic Social Service Agency of Marin.

A special feature of the afternoon will be a serenade of Christmas songs by the Madrigal Singers from Dominican College.

Mesdames Clinton Waring and Constance Bricca are chairmen for the tea; Mrs. Robert O'Mara will do decorations; and other chairmen are Mesdames C. Stanley Lawrence, hospitality; Bernard Conroy, awards; Richard A. Williams, refreshments; T. V. McGuire, publicity; James Drier, properties and Arthur V. Fay, invitations.

EPISCOPAL CHURCHWOMEN of the Church of Our Saviour, Mill Valley, will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. to hear members of their Altar Guild explain and demonstrate the work they do for the church.

Also present to answer questions concerning Altar Guild duties will be Mrs. W. E. Somervell of Kentfield, who is directress of Altar Guilds for the Episcopal Diocese of Northern California. Directress of the local guild is Mrs. Robert Brinton.

ALPHA TAU Chapter of Kappa Phi Sigma will have its Christmas dinner at the Flamingo Hotel in Santa Rosa on Dec. 7.

Members and their husbands will attend the social hour at 7 p.m. followed by dinner at 8 and dancing. Mrs. Carol Varner is social chairman.

A luncheon for Alpha Tau member, Mrs. Dennis Monahan, will be held at Dominic's Restaurant in San Rafael on Wednesday. Mrs. Monahan and her husband are moving to New York.

A CHRISTMAS tea for members will be held by the Petaluma Newcomers Club Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. John Olmstead Jr. in Petaluma. Mrs. Edgar Biswell is cohostess for the party.

A NEWLY organized art interest group in Rohnert Park will have an "artistic flea market" of art and craft objects as its first event. The flea market, in which everyone can bring anything in the art or crafts line and sell it, with a 25 per cent commission to the art group, will be held Dec. 7 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Dec. 8 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sales chairman Mrs. Lauren Anderson, said that the sale will be held at the Chamber of Commerce office on the mall in Rohnert Park Shopping Center. Sale items will be received Dec. 6 from noon to 9 p.m. Baked goods will be sold also.

"CHRISTMAS at the Club" will be the theme for the annual Christmas ball to be held for Outdoor Art Club members and guests on Dec. 7 at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Vincent White is chairman for the party planned by Mrs. Roy Simpkins as a fund raising event. A get-acquainted cocktail hour at 7 p.m. will precede the 8 p.m. roast beef dinner, and there will be dancing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to music of a dance band.

President and Mr. Walter Long and past presidents, Mesdames J. Paul Hurd and Kenyon Spalding, and their husbands will be hosts and hostesses.

Reservations chairmen are Mesdames William Bacon and Henri Boussy. Other chairmen are Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Keane, dinner; Joseph Brewster and Gordon Reynolds, dessert; Mesdames Hurd, decorations; Fred Wight, table settings; Roland Kelly, serving; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Laird, potables; and Mrs. Peter Van Dalen, invitations.

STEPHENS COLLEGE Alumnae of Marin will hold it's annual Christmas party on Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Koepke, 15 Lower Drive, Mill Valley.

Plans for the party are being coordinated by Mesdames Robert Nerrie of Mill Valley, and Harold Mickens, William Lewis and D. C. Drake of San Rafael.

A WINE and cheese tasting will be held tomorrow from 5 to 8 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Marvin in Greenbrae, and the gathering will feature a fashion show with an African motif. The event is a benefit for the secretarial school at San Domenico School for Girls, with three women from Greenbrae, members of the Education Corps, who were instrumental in starting the school and three girls from the class as models for the fashions.

THE LARKSPUR Women's Club will hold its annual bazaar and luncheon on Wednesday at the Larkspur City Hall. The bazaar will open at 10:30 a.m., and luncheon will be served at noon. Mrs. Marvin McCarthy is chairman of the bazaar and Mrs. Frank B. Frantz is in charge of the luncheon. Mrs. Carlotta Thomas, president, will welcome guests.

Proceeds from the bazaar and luncheon will go to the club's program of community service.

Reservations chairman is Mrs. Frank Gunner.

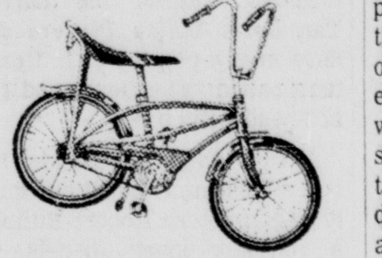
Is A Safe Riding Area Located Near Your Home?

More bicycles are sold during the Christmas shopping season than at any other time of the year. Parents making these purchases should keep certain accident hazards in mind.

Two kinds of braking systems for bicycles are currently available. The simplest to operate is the coaster brake, which requires only that the direction of the pedals be reversed. To apply reverse pedal pressure the arms are used to push the main weight of the body back from the handle bars and onto the pedals. This bracing action tends to keep the rider from being pitched headlong over the front wheel as the cycle stops.



Becoming increasingly popular with youngsters are bicycles with gears which permit the use of multiple speeds. Usually, such cycles are equipped with brakes operated by special grips applied to the handle bars. Cables transmit the pressure from one hand grip to the front wheel and from the other grip to the rear wheel. If equal pressure is applied to both wheels the braking action of this system is excellent, but obtaining this result requires a degree of skill not possessed by all children. It too often happens that most of the braking is applied to the front wheel, flipping the bike so that the rider is thrown headfirst to the pavement. Hand brakes also add to risk of severe injury by encouraging coasting with the weight suspended over the handle bars instead of back over the pedals.

In addition, parents considering the purchase of bicycles should ponder the availability in their neighborhoods of areas safe for cyclists. Physicians are reporting more fatalities and serious head injuries from falls, particularly from bicycle accidents, in the 5 to 15 age group than all other causes combined. Here are four suggestions for reducing the danger to your child:

Give more thought to matching the bike to the skill of the rider.

Beware of hand brakes for younger children.

Provide a hard helmet, similar to those worn by motorcyclists, to be worn while bicycling.

Make certain that lights (the tail light in particular) are installed, maintained, and used when your youngster rides in darkness and times of poor visibility (dawn, dusk, rain, fog).

If your neighborhood does not provide safe areas for bicycling, consider the selection of a different gift.

Physical Condition Affects Ski Injuries

More than 90 per cent of all ski injuries are caused by poor physical condition, fatigue, and overconfidence in skiing ability.

The first step in accident prevention is to get into sturdy physical condition and stay that way. Well before your skiing season starts, loosen up your leg and thigh muscles. Trot and jog awhile each day. When you walk, take long strides with a definite kick-off on slightly bent legs. Other sports, such as canoeing, rowing, swimming, and water skiing will contribute to the strength and flexibility of your arms, shoulders, and legs.

DURING THE SEASON, spend 10 minutes a day in knee bends, waist bends, and a few pushups. Walking on tip-toe is good exercise for the ankles. To develop the thighs, sit on the edge of a table and straighten the legs slowly. When you are able to extend the legs without their trembling, add two pounds of weight on each foot and continue the exercise. A simple home device for adding weight is to put canned goods in a pillow case. Increase gradually until you can extend a weight of 35 to 40 pounds without a tremor. Maintain these daily exercises throughout the skiing season.

A skiier who is tired is more susceptible to injury, because he tends to become careless and is more likely to lose control of his body's coordination. Get enough sleep before the trip, and eat well. Most important, don't overdo it. If you are too tired or weak to brake or to turn suddenly, you may become a casualty.

It is imperative that the beginner receive ski instruction from someone who is thoroughly qualified to teach. If he tries to learn alone, he may teach himself bad position and posture habits, and he may develop techniques which expose himself and others to danger.

A FEW OTHER TIPS: Ski with proper equipment. Watch snow conditions; there may be midday softening of the snow and, as the sun sets, trail conditions may change rapidly. Never ski alone — if you get hurt, a ski buddy can get help. Every skier should have an elementary knowledge of first aid.

Frostbite fallacy: Do not rub frostbitten parts with snow! Rubbing increases risk of gangrene. Symptoms are pink skin just before frostbite develops, changing to white or greyish-yellow. Initial pain quickly subsides and the victim feels cold and numb — usually not aware of frostbite. In giving first aid, 1) cover affected areawith a warm hand or woolen material (hands may be tucked under armpits), 2) get victim inside, 3) place frostbitten part in lukewarm (not hot) water or gently wrap in blankets, 4) let circulation re-establish itself naturally, 5) give a warm, nonalcoholic drink, 6) when fingers or toes are involved, encourage gentle exercise when they are warmed. Never use hot water bottles or heat lamps.

Remember: Accidents rarely happen to the experienced skier because he keeps himself in good physical condition — he recognizes his own limitations — he keeps his skiing under control — he uses the proper equipment and keeps it in good repair — he has learned all the rules of safe skiing — and, he knows how to handle the dangers found on the different types of trails.

ON THE AGENDA

Madrigal Singers To Serenade For Social Services Auxiliary

THE CHRISTMAS TEA and Boutique given each year by the Social Service Auxiliary of Marin will be held Wednesday from 2 to 5 p.m. at Fanjeaux Hall on the Dominican College campus, San Rafael.

Mrs. Lawrence Murray, president; Mrs. William Losee, vice president, and Mesdames Adolph Capurro, Arthur Goepp Jr. and Thomas Sinna will greet the auxiliary members and their guests at the holiday party.

Home baked foods, boutique gift items, hand sewn articles and Christmas decorations will be offered for sale by the auxiliary, which aids the Catholic Social Service Agency of Marin.

A special feature of the afternoon will be a serenade of Christmas songs by the Madrigal Singers from Dominican College.

Mesdames Clinton Waring and Constance Bricca are chairmen for the tea; Mrs. Robert O'Mara will do decorations; and other chairmen are Mesdames C. Stanley Lawrence, hospitality; Bernard Conroy, awards; Richard A. Williams, refreshments; T. V. McGuire, publicity; James Drier, properties and Arthur V. Fay, invitations.

EPISCOPAL CHURCHWOMEN of the Church of Our Saviour, Mill Valley, will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. to hear members of their Altar Guild explain and demonstrate the work they do for the church.

Also present to answer questions concerning Altar Guild duties will be Mrs. W. E. Somervell of Kentfield, who is directress of Altar Guilds for the Episcopal Diocese of Northern California. Directress of the local guild is Mrs. Robert Brinton.

ALPHA TAU Chapter of Kappa Phi Sigma will have its Christmas dinner at the Flamingo Hotel in Santa Rosa on Dec. 7.

Members and their husbands will attend the social hour at 7 p.m. followed by dinner at 8 and dancing. Mrs. Carol Varner is social chairman.

A luncheon for Alpha Tau member, Mrs. Dennis Monahan, will be held at Dominic's Restaurant in San Rafael on Wednesday. Mrs. Monahan and her husband are moving to New York.

A CHRISTMAS tea for members will be held by the Petaluma Newcomers Club Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. John Olmstead Jr. in Petaluma. Mrs. Edgar Biswell is co-hostess for the party.

A NEWLY organized art interest group in Rohnert Park will have an "artistic flea market" of art and craft objects as its first event. The flea market, in which everyone can bring anything in the art or crafts line and sell it, with a 25 per cent commission to the art group, will be held Dec. 7 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Dec. 8 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sales chairman Mrs. Lauren Anderson, said that the sale will be held at the Chamber of Commerce office on the mall in Rohnert Park Shopping Center. Sale items will be received Dec. 6 from noon to 9 p.m. Baked goods will be sold also.

"CHRISTMAS at the Club" will be the theme for the annual Christmas ball to be held for Outdoor Art Club members and guests on Dec. 7 at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Vincent White is chairman for the party planned by Mrs. Roy Simpkins as a fund raising event. A get-acquainted cocktail hour at 7 p.m. will precede the 8 p.m. roast beef dinner, and there will be dancing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to music of a dance band.

President and Mr. Walter Long and past presidents, Mesdames J. Paul Hurd and Kenyon Spalding, and their husbands will be hosts and hostesses.

Reservations chairmen are Mesdames William Bacon and Henri Boussy. Other chairmen are Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Keane, dinner; Joseph Brewster and Gordon Reynolds, dessert; Mesdames Hurd, decorations; Fred Wight, table settings; Roland Kelly, serving; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Laird, potables; and Mrs. Peter Van Dalen, invitations.

STEPHENS COLLEGE Alumnae of Marin will hold it's annual Christmas party on Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Koepke, 15 Lower Drive, Mill Valley.

Plans for the party are being coordinated by Mesdames Robert Nerrie of Mill Valley, and Harold Mickens, William Lewis and D. C. Drake of San Rafael.

A WINE and cheese tasting will be held tomorrow from 5 to 8 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Marvin in Greenbrae, and the gathering will feature a fashion show with an African motif. The event is a benefit for the secretarial school at San Domenico School for Girls, with three women from Greenbrae, members of the Education Corps, who were instrumental in starting the school and three girls from the class as models for the fashions.

THE LARKSPUR Women's Club will hold its annual bazaar and luncheon on Wednesday at the Larkspur City Hall. The bazaar will open at 10:30 a.m., and luncheon will be served at noon. Mrs. Marvin McCarthy is chairman of the bazaar and Mrs. Frank B. Frantz is in charge of the luncheon. Mrs. Carlotta Thomas, president, will welcome guests.

Proceeds from the bazaar and luncheon will go to the club's program of community service.

Reservations chairman is Mrs. Frank Gunner.

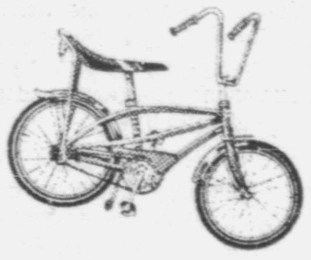
Is A Safe Riding Area Located Near Your Home?



More bicycles are sold during the Christmas shopping season than at any other time of the year. Parents making these purchases should keep certain accident hazards in mind.

Two kinds of braking systems for bicycles are currently available. The simplest to operate is the coaster brake, which requires only that the direction of the pedals be reversed. To apply reverse pedal pressure the arms are used to push the main weight of the body back from the handle bars and onto the pedals. This bracing action tends to keep the rider from being pitched headlong over the front wheel as the cycle stops.

Becoming increasingly popular with youngsters are bicycles with gears which permit the use of multiple speeds. Usually, such cycles are equipped with brakes operated by special grips applied to the handle bars. Cables transmit the pressure from one hand grip to the front wheel and from the other grip to the rear wheel. If equal pressure is applied to both wheels the braking action of this system is excellent, but obtaining this result requires a degree of skill not possessed by all children. It too often happens that most of the braking is applied to the front wheel, flipping the bike so that the rider is thrown headfirst to the pavement. Hand brakes also add to risk of severe injury by encouraging coasting with the weight suspended over the handle bars instead of back over the pedals.

In addition, parents considering the purchase of bicycles should ponder the availability in their neighborhoods of areas safe for cyclists. Physicians are reporting more fatalities and serious head injuries from falls, particularly from bicycle accidents, in the 5 to 15 age group than all other causes combined. Here are four suggestions for reducing the danger to your child:

Give more thought to matching the bike to the skill of the rider.

Beware of hand brakes for younger children.

Provide a hard helmet, similar to those worn by motorcyclists, to be worn while bicycling.

Make certain that lights (the tail light in particular) are installed, maintained, and used when your youngster rides in darkness and times of poor visibility (dawn, dusk, rain, fog).

If your neighborhood does not provide safe areas for bicycling, consider the selection of a different gift.

Physical Condition Affects Ski Injuries

More than 90 per cent of all ski injuries are caused by poor physical condition, fatigue, and overconfidence in skiing ability.

The first step in accident prevention is to get into sturdy physical condition and stay that way. Well before your skiing season starts, loosen up your leg and thigh muscles. Trot and jog awhile each day. When you walk, take long strides with a definite kick-off on slightly bent legs. Other sports, such as canoeing, rowing, swimming, and water skiing will contribute to the strength and flexibility of your arms, shoulders, and legs.

DURING THE SEASON, spend 10 minutes a day in knee bends, waist bends, and a few pushups. Walking on tip-toe is good exercise for the ankles. To develop the thighs, sit on the edge of a table and straighten the legs slowly. When you are able to extend the legs without their trembling, add two pounds of weight on each foot and continue the exercise. A simple home device for adding weight is to put canned goods in a pillow case. Increase gradually until you can extend a weight of 35 to 40 pounds without a tremor. Maintain these daily exercises throughout the skiing season.

A skiier who is tired is more susceptible to injury, because he tends to become careless and is more likely to lose control of his body's coordination. Get enough sleep before the trip, and eat well. Most important, don't overdo it. If you are too tired or weak to brake or to turn suddenly, you may become a casualty.

It is imperative that the beginner receive ski instruction from someone who is thoroughly qualified to teach. If he tries to learn alone, he may teach himself bad position and posture habits, and he may develop techniques which expose himself and others to danger.

A FEW OTHER TIPS: Ski with proper equipment. Watch snow conditions; there may be midday softening of the snow and, as the sun sets, trail conditions may change rapidly. Never ski alone — if you get hurt, a ski buddy can get help. Every skier should have an elementary knowledge of first aid.

Initial pain quickly subsides and the victim feels cold and numb — usually not aware of frostbite. In giving first aid, 1) cover affected areawith a warm hand or woolen material (hands may be tucked under armpits), 2) get victim inside, 3) place frostbitten part in lukewarm (not hot) water or gently wrap in blankets, 4) let circulation re-establish itself naturally, 5) give a warm, nonalcoholic drink, 6) when fingers or toes are involved, encourage gentle exercise when they are warmed. Glamor Of Old India Invades Beverly Hills

Frelinghuysen, 57, a millionaire art collector, big-game hunter and globe-trotter transformed the Crystal Room of the Beverly Hills Hotel into an Indian palace. Outside the windows flickered 1,500 votive candles while a Beverly Hills Fire Department inspector stood watch.

ELEPHANTS, TIGERS

Inside there were elephant and tiger figures, a gigantic papier-mache cobra, endless arrays of flowers and maharajah and maharani figures which Frelinghuysen brought back from a hunting trip in India, along with a canopy for the royal platform.

For entertainment, a pair of Siamese dancers performed with hand-held flames and clanking ornaments.

Two other dancers, costumed as tigers, were carried in a bamboo cage. They simulated an old Far Eastern sport in which two warriors clad in loincloths fought with steel fingernails until one was dead.

COMING-OUT PARTY

Frelinghuysen, of Beverly Hills, gave the affair as a coming-out party in honor of brunette Mary Victoria Leiter, 18, of Washington, D.C., and Newport, R.I., daughter of his longtime friend, the late Thomas Leiter.

She is a great-niece of Lady Mary Victoria Curzon, whose husband gave a durbar in New Delhi 65 years ago as viceroy to celebrate King Edward VII's coronation in London.

Ann Miller wore an Indian sari gown of green with gold-thread figures. She confided the garment took a year to make and the material cost $1,000 a bolt.

Kurt Kreuger appeared as a Romanian Ambassador and the Ricardo Montalbans as an Indian prince and princess. Ross Martin was a Bengal lancer, his wife, Olavee, in Indian costume.

Former movie skating queen Sonja Henie came from Norway with her shipowner husband Neils Onstand.

Frelinghuysen declined to say what his durbar cost except that a published estimate of nearly $250,000 was "a gross exaggeration. It couldn't cost even one quarter of that."

Punch Thrown At Film Fete

LONDON (UPI)—French film director Jean Luc Godard socked Canadian film producer Iain Quarrier in the face and stomach on the stage of the National Film Theater last night before 600 startled movie fans.

The fisticuffs broke out after Godard urged the audience to walk out rather than staying to see his latest film "One Plus One" starring the Rolling Stones and Black Power leader Frankie Y. He objected to a change made in the film.

Godard suggested the fans ask for their money back and then send it to Eldridge Cleaver, the U.S. Black Power leader being sought by California authorities.

Godard punched Quarrier as the Canadian rose to try to talk to him.

"You're all bourgeoise fascists," shouted Godard who complained the addition of a Rolling Stone song "Sympathy for the Devil" had ruined his film. He blamed Quarrier for the change.

DRAMA REVIEW

Odd Near-Melodrama Comes To Mill Valley

By KARL BARRON

The constant search of little theaters to find new vehicles turns up some strange stage fare — witness the current Tamalpais Valley Players production of a play by J. L. Rosenberg called "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch."

At first glance one decides this is a melodrama. But it has hardly begun before Robert Butts as a narrator-singer dispels the idea, explaining that the title character is the one character who is out of place in the traditional Western.

BREAKS 'CODE'

Everyone else is stock, from the fastest gun in the West to the booze-heisting "Doc." But Sneaky Fitch is a no-good, drunken, cowardly son of an epithet who refuses to abide by the "code of the West." When Rackham, the fastest gun, challenges Sneaky, Sneaky just grovels and refuses to draw his shootin' iron.

But then, through a plot complication which I will not give away, the tables are turned. Sneaky becomes the town terror, bumps off the sheriff, takes over Maroon, the sheriff's dance hall girl friend, and generally raises hell.

LIKES COWARDICE

The double switch at this point is that Sneaky discovers that a life filled with fear, especially fear of death, is much more rewarding than a life which is indestructible. And he finally returns to the ways of cowardice with great delight.

The premise that fear is the spice of life is not new, and Rosenberg adds no new discoveries. He has penned a script which keeps promising but seldom produces. Only a top-notch cast keeps the production from being a colossal bore. The satire on the fabled, unreal West of TV is not broad enough; the melodrama does not mellow; the real drama almost jells, but cannot because of the treatment. The result is a bit strange.

STAR EXCELS

However, Rick Hackney as Sneaky is so good that we often forget he is fighting a losing script. Stubble-bearded, beady-eyed, his unashamed cowardice is positively refreshing, while his change to the debonair man-about-Gopher Gulch is a little masterpiece of characterization.

Alan Burdick is remarkably sinister as Rackham, aided by an all black costume, a walrus mustache and a pearl-handled gun. Bern Healey plays the rascally Doc with melodramatic zest, while Phoebe Deignan's gum-chewing, deadpan Maroon is right out of Dodge City.

Others who aid in keeping up the pace under G. S. Andrews' slightly static direction are Mike Geisler, Joe Allen and Diane Wood.

Healey, Allen and Tod Andrews have turned the postage stamp stage of Brown's Hall into the main street of Gopher Gulch, complete with jail, saloon and bank.

J. L. Rosenberg will not win any Pulitzer prizes for "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch" but there have been worse evenings in Mill Valley. And it's worth seeing for Hackney's performance alone. It'll play today at 8:30 p.m. and again next Friday and Saturday.

Adult Trial Set In Star's Killing

VAN NUYS (UPI)—A 17-year-old boy accused of helping club silent screen lover Ramon Navarro to death during a robbery will be tried as an adult.

Juvenile court referee Julius Libow ruled yesterday that the teen-ager, Thomas Scott Ferguson, must stand trial along with his brother, Paul, 22.

Novarro, 69, was found beaten to death in his blood spattered mansion in the Hollywood hills Oct. 31.

The Ferguson brothers, who formerly lived in Round Lake, Ill., a Chicago suburb, were arrested a week later.

SPLENDID ANACHRONISM

This is the kind of home that people don't often live in these days, but should. Obsolescent, impractical, inconvenient, and absolutely delightful. Completely fenced three quarters of an acre with fabulous landscaping attributed to John McLaren, a big absolutely private swimming pool and a moon-viewing terrace. Rambling old house with a view of Mt. Tamalpais, 2 fireplaces, quarry tile floors, and old-fashioned charm. House and grounds are private, serene, and sun-drenched. The price for all this glory? A mere $47,500, far below present owner's cost. Exclusive.

Volunteer Firemen Group Seeking To Incorporate

The 94-year-old San Rafael Volunteer Fire Department — once all that stood between disaster and the city's homes, schools and businesses, but now largely a social group — has filed papers as a nonprofit corporation with Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan in Sacramento.

The organization is seeking nonprofit status mainly for tax and insurance benefits, vice president Richard H. Miehling said.

Twenty of the 85 members have belonged to the organization over 40 years and therefore don't pay the required monthly dues, according to secretary-treasurer Lloyd C. Brooks. The membership includes professional firemen.

The organization's major event — the annual dance in February, near George Washington's birthday — is to benefit a relief fund for members who were injured or made ill on duty and for widows and children of those who died combating fires.

The volunteer company was established by the original city charter in February, 1874, and was organized Dec. 17, 1874. It has been supplanted by a professional company but several volunteer firemen have helped to fight recent blazes, San Rafael Fire Inspector Dennis A. Jenson said.

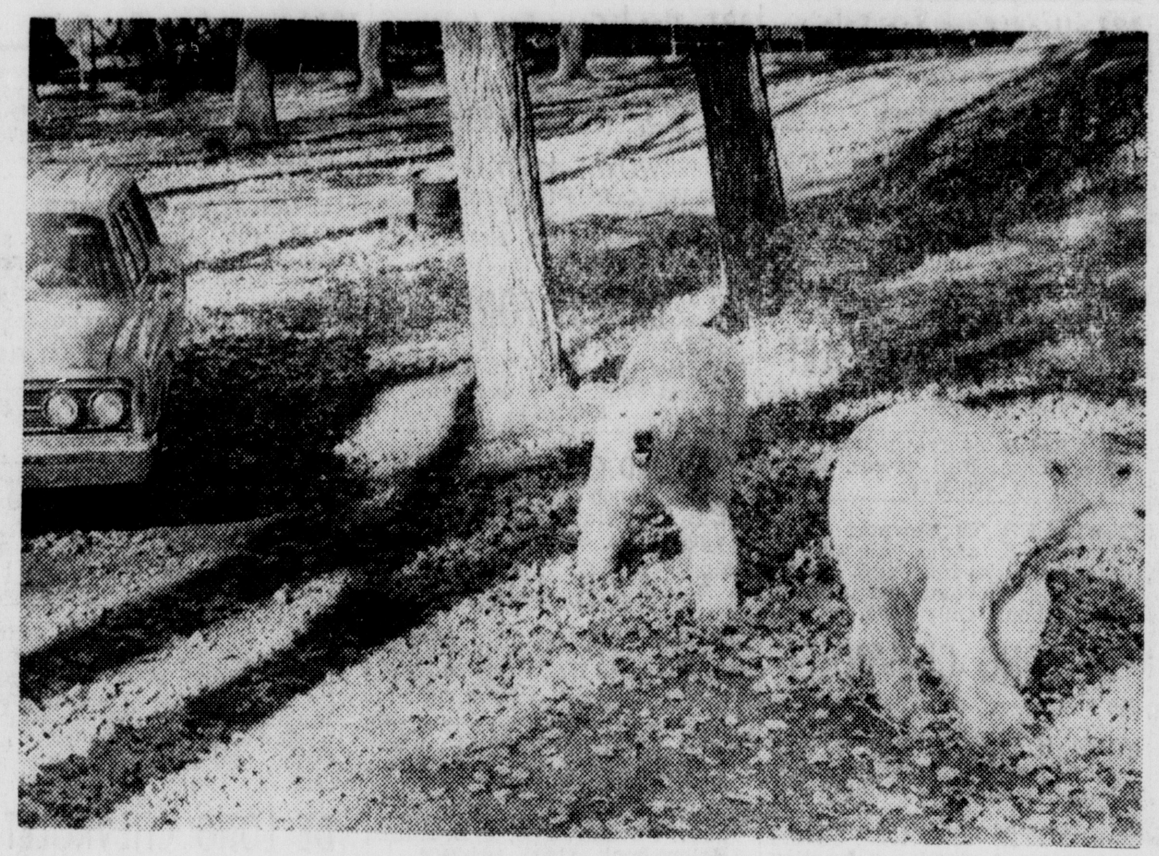
Drug Abuse Programs Will Begin Dec. 8

A three-Sunday program of drug abuse information, beginning Dec. 8 at 11 a.m. at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia, will be sponsored by the center's Commonwealth Club.

Robert Levin, a pharmacologist, will speak Dec. 8. Robert Flynn, College of Marin Sociologist, will speak on the subject at 11 a.m. Dec. 15. Inspector William G. Burgess of the Marin Durg Abuse Bureau will complete the program with a talk at 11 a.m. Jan. 5.

Civil Liberty Parley

The Committee for Civil Liberties in Secondary Schools, whose aim is to insure student freedoms granted in the Bill of Rights, will hold an organizational meeting Wednesday in Room 163 of Redwood High School. Officers will be elected and goals will be set.



AN EXCITING STROLL

Keepers at the Rio Grande Zoo in Albuquerque, N.M., had an exciting half hour yesterday when three polar bears discovered their pen's gate had been left open. One bear chased a keeper through a hole in a fence, but otherwise the ursines concentrated on enjoying an autumn stroll. They were finally recaptured with a combination of fish as bait and cars used for herding them back into their pen. (UPI Telephoto)

Polar Visit Junket Going To Moscow

BOSTON (AP) — Businessmen on a flight over both North and South poles, added Moscow to their itinerary yesterday.

A spokesman said arrangements for the stop were made through Anatoly F. Dobrinin, Soviet ambassador to the United States, when the flight landed in Rome and passengers said they'd like to visit the Russian capitol.

Marinites on the journey include William E. Steen of Belvedere, president of a San Francisco clothing firm, and Richmond steel firm executive Marshall I. Wais of San Rafael.

The spokesman said the side trip was arranged after calls to Washington where Dobrynin approved visas and clearances.

The flight was organized by Cmdr. Fred G. Dustin, head of the Byrd Polar Center in Boston, as a tribute to famed Arctic explorer Adm. Richard E. Byrd and to interest businessmen in potential polar resources.

The flight left Boston Nov. 8 and is due back Tuesday.

Session Postponed

The Belvedere City Council will not meet Monday as regularly scheduled because a quorum of the council will be unable to attend. The meeting has been rescheduled for 8 p.m. Dec. 9 at the Belvedere City Hall.

Honor T Society Seats Officers

Liese Greensfelder was installed as grand oracle of the Tamalpais High School Honor T Society in initiation ceremonies this week at the school.

William Guerin was installed as vice oracle, Sue Folder as scribe and Evelyn Shiro as treasurer.

Certificates for the Honor T and California Scholarship societies were presented to students who maintained a B average or higher during the semester.

Volunteer Firemen Group Seeking To Incorporate

The 94-year-old San Rafael Volunteer Fire Department — once all that stood between disaster and the city's homes, schools and businesses, but now largely a social group — has filed papers as a nonprofit corporation with Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan in Sacramento.

The organization is seeking nonprofit status mainly for tax and insurance benefits, vice president Richard H. Miehling said.

Twenty of the 85 members have belonged to the organization over 40 years and therefore don't pay the required monthly dues, according to secretary-treasurer Lloyd C. Brooks. The membership includes professional firemen.

The organization's major event — the annual dance in February, near George Washington's birthday — is to benefit a relief fund for members who were injured or made ill on duty and for widows and children of those who died combating fires.

The volunteer company was established by the original city charter in February, 1874, and was organized Dec. 17, 1874. It has been supplanted by a professional company but several volunteer firemen have helped to fight recent blazes, San Rafael Fire Inspector Dennis A. Jenson said.

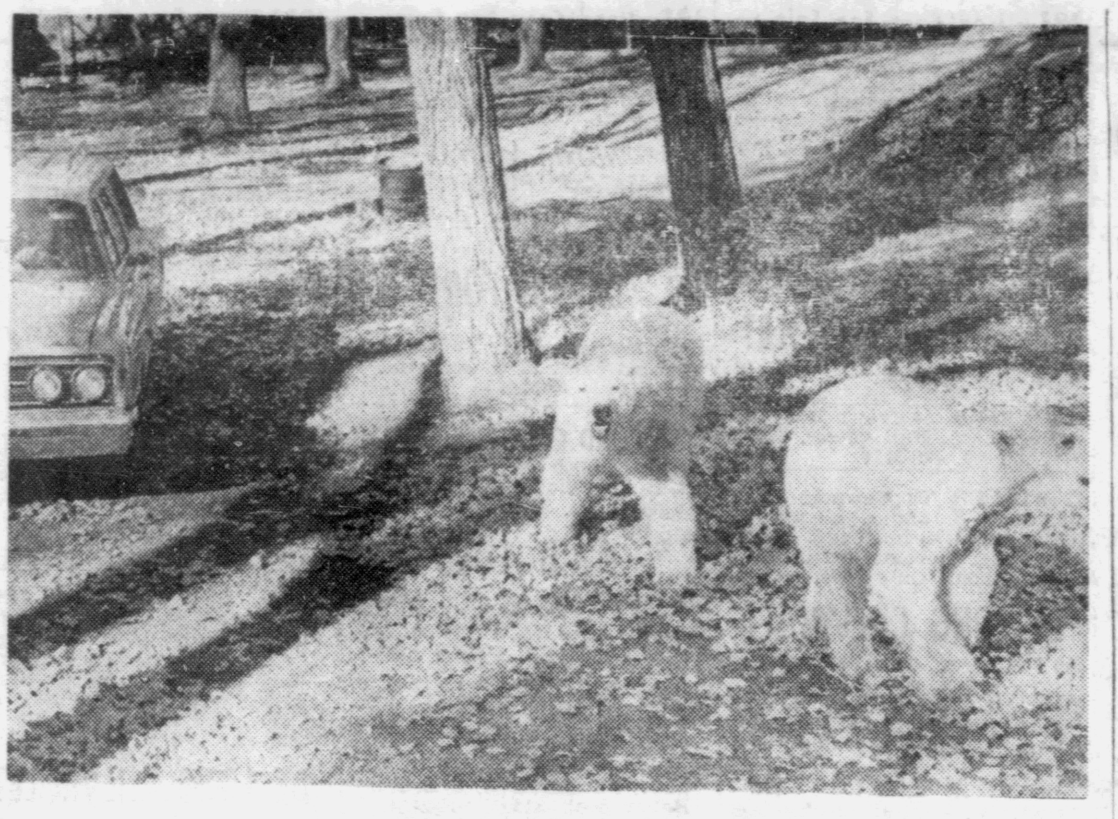
Drug Abuse Programs Will Begin Dec. 8

A three-Sunday program of drug abuse information, beginning Dec. 8 at 11 a.m. at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia, will be sponsored by the center's Commonwealth Club.

Robert Levin, a pharmacologist, will speak Dec. 8. Robert Flynn, College of Marin Sociologist, will speak on the subject at 11 a.m. Dec. 15. Inspector William G. Burgess of the Marin Durg Abuse Bureau will complete the program with a talk at 11 a.m. Jan. 5.

Civil Liberty Parley

The Committee for Civil Liberties in Secondary Schools, whose aim is to insure student freedoms granted in the Bill of Rights, will hold an organizational meeting Wednesday in Room 163 of Redwood High School. Officers will be elected and goals will be set.



AN EXCITING STROLL

Keepers at the Rio Grande Zoo in Albuquerque, N.M., had an exciting half hour yesterday when three polar bears discovered their pen's gate had been left open. One bear chased a keeper through a hole in a fence, but otherwise the ursines concentrated on enjoying an autumn stroll. They were finally recaptured with a combination of fish as bait and cars used for herding them back into their pen. (UPI Telephoto)

Polar Visit Junket Going To Moscow

BOSTON (AP) — Businessmen on a flight over both North and South poles, added Moscow to their itinerary yesterday.

A spokesman said arrangements for the stop were made through Anatoly F. Dobrinin, Soviet ambassador to the United States, when the flight landed in Rome and passengers said they'd like to visit the Russian capitol.

Marinites on the journey include William E. Steen of Belvedere, president of a San Francisco clothing firm, and Richmond steel firm executive Marshall I. Wais of San Rafael.

The spokesman said the side trip was arranged after calls to Washington where Dobrynin approved visas and clearances.

The flight was organized by Cmdr. Fred G. Dustin, head of the Byrd Polar Center in Boston, as a tribute to famed Arctic explorer Adm. Richard E. Byrd and to interest businessmen in potential polar resources.

The flight left Boston Nov. 8 and is due back Tuesday.

Session Postponed

The Belvedere City Council will not meet Monday as regularly scheduled because a quorum of the council will be unable to attend. The meeting has been rescheduled for 8 p.m. Dec. 9 at the Belvedere City Hall.

Honor T Society Seats Officers

Liese Greensfelder was installed as grand oracle of the Tamalpais High School Honor T Society in initiation ceremonies this week at the school.

William Guerin was installed as vice oracle, Sue Folder as scribe and Evelyn Shiro as treasurer.

Certificates for the Honor T and California Scholarship societies were presented to students who maintained a B average or higher during the semester.

Boys Club Given Nod For Park In Corte Madera

The Corte Madera Parks and Recreation Commission Wednesday night gave the Javelin Club for Boys permission to use Town Park except for its archery activities. It was incorrectly reported to the Independent-Journal by a commission spokesman yesterday that the club had been denied use of the park for all purposes.

The commission said it might be interested in aiding the club financially if the boys were from only Corte Madera and Larkspur, but didn't, as reported Friday, limit park use to the club for boys from just these communities.

The club, directed by Frank J. Selas, has 35 boys ranging in age from 5 to 13 and living from Terra Linda to Sausalito. It offers, for an hourly fee, activities in golf, judo, swimming, horseback riding, crafts and archery.

New Year's Party

The Marin Jewish Community Center will hold its New Years Eve party, including dinner and dancing, from 9 p.m. Dec. 31 at Temple Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road. Mrs. Al Schilling, chairman of the New Years Eve Committee, recommends reservations in advance.

MARIN HEALTH-SEEKERS

Some Jog As Others Commute

By MARY LEYDECKER

An increasingly familiar early morning sight on Marin's roads and walks is the jogger in ever-growing numbers, clad usually in a sweat shirt and trotting happily along oblivious to his gray-flanneled neighbors as they head for the freeway crush.

"Jogging or running for a few minutes every day is probably the best kind of exercise there is," said Dr. James R. Dahl of Greenbrae, an internist who follows his own prescription.

Not only does Dr. Dahl run a mile every day, he has a strong believer in his wife, Wanda, who does her own every morning.

"My husband and I can't run at the same time, because someone has to watch the baby," Mrs. Dahl explained. She puts on shorts and heads outdoors before 8 a.m. to run near her home at 116 Almenar Drive, doing a mile in eight or 10 minutes.

Dr. Dahl, also more of a runner than jogger, does his mile in the evenings in about six minutes.

"If it's pouring rain, I run in place in the house," Mrs. Dahl explained, "but it's so much nicer to get outdoors."

Mrs. Dahl, the mother of three youngsters, is lean, firm and trim after about a year of running, but said that this wasn't always the case. "I was in terrible shape after the birth of the baby, Kristin, a year and a half ago," she laughed.

Not only do her two sons, Jim, 6, and Erik, 5, often join her in running but her most faithful companion is the family basset hound, Poky. "She's so stupid she would get lost if I didn't take her on a leash," Mrs. Dahl said with a smile.

Although basset hounds are not noted for speed, Poky zooms ahead on the mornings when garbage trucks are in the nighborhood. "At any rate, she's a very healthy dog," said Mrs. Dahl.

While Mrs. Dahl sees the fun of it and a trim figure as the prime benefits, her doctor husband is equally as interested in what jogging and running do for the heart.

"I treat many patients who have had heart attacks," said Dr. Dahl. "I start them off walking, then walking briskly and finally jogging," he explained.

"It's actually possible for them to build up hearts that are in better shape after an attack than before if they exercise regularly, give up smoking and eat a low cholesterol diet," he said.

"The best exercise is one which a person can do vigorously for six to 10 minutes without becoming completely exhausted," the internist said. Swimming laps, bicycling and rowing are also good, Dr. Dahl said, but few of the competitive sports meet his standards because most require sudden spurts of energy.

Playing tennis singles for a half-hour no less than every other day would fill Dr. Dahl's health bill, but "golf is not enough."

Not only does jogging have great health benefits, there is sometimes a special dividend.

A story going the rounds of Marin joggers tells of a Terra Linda man who was jogging in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park when his wife's purse was snatched. The jogger took after the thief, jogging until he finally wore down the out-of-shape purse-snatcher, who dropped the bag and disappeared.

Cheaper To Build Tunnels Than Roads

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—The city is building tunnels under the Mobile River for interstate highway traffic and people are asking: "Why not a bridge over it?"

The Alabama Trucker magazine has an answer. "In the 1970s, it says, "it will be cheaper to build tunnels than highways." It cites a study which based cost savings on new techniques in tunnel construction and rising land costs.

Christmas Calls Best Placed By GIs Overseas

Persons who wish to speak to relatives stationed in Vietnam during the holiday season have been encouraged by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. to have the servicemen place the calls.

Troy E. Lewis, manager of Pacific Telephone's San Rafael office, said that although the company makes every effort to locate men in Vietnam, it is often difficult because of Vietnam travel restrictions and curfews.

On the other hand, calls originating in Vietnam are handled on a first-come, first-served basis at various telephone centers for servicemen, Lewis explained. "Once a serviceman places his call, it's just a matter of minutes before it is completed," he said.

However, if relatives wish to place calls to Vietnam, Lewis said, it is important for them to have the serviceman's unit, APO number and, if possible, a telephone number where he can be reached. He said the speed with which the calls goes through depends on the number of calls at the time and the serviceman's availability.

Anti-Cancer Plant Compound Discovered

BERKELEY, Calif (UPI)—In a development that may assist cancer research, University of California pathologists have discovered a "medicine" that destroys bacteria-caused tumors on living plants.

The compound is now being manufactured for agricultural use, but medical researchers say it offers hope in the human cancer disease. They note it is "the first evidence of a selectively toxic agent that completely and consistently destroys tumors without injuring the host."

Policeman Playing More Than One Role

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Ernest Roger Griss is a policeman-poet-actor-song composer.

His acting, writing and entertaining are off-duty hobbies. Griggs writes poetry, music and essays. He has appeared in "The Blacks" by Jean Genet. His songs have been recorded by Arthur Prysock, Nancy Wilson, Gloria Lynn and The Fifth Dimension.

Boys Club Given Nod For Park In Corte Madera

The Corte Madera Parks and Recreation Commission Wednesday night gave the Javelin Club for Boys permission to use Town Park except for its archery activities. It was incorrectly reported to the Independent-Journal by a commission spokesman yesterday that the club had been denied use of the park for all purposes.

The commission said it might be interested in aiding the club financially if the boys were from only Corte Madera and Larkspur, but didn't, as reported Friday, limit park use to the club for boys from just these communities.

The club, directed by Frank J. Selas, has 35 boys ranging in age from 5 to 13 and living from Terra Linda to Sausalito. It offers, for an hourly fee, activities in golf, judo, swimming, horseback riding, crafts and archery.

New Year's Party

The Marin Jewish Community Center will hold its New Years Eve party, including dinner and dancing, from 9 p.m. Dec. 31 at Temple Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road. Mrs. Al Schilling, chairman of the New Years Eve Committee, recommends reservations in advance.

MARIN HEALTH-SEEKERS

Some Jog As Others Commute

By MARY LEYDECKER

An increasingly familiar early morning sight on Marin's roads and walks is the jogger in ever-growing numbers, clad usually in a sweat shirt and trotting happily along oblivious to his gray-flanneled neighbors as they head for the freeway crush.

"Jogging or running for a few minutes every day is probably the best kind of exercise there is," said Dr. James R. Dahl of Greenbrae, an internist who follows his own prescription.

Not only does Dr. Dahl run a mile every day, he has a strong believer in his wife, Wanda, who does her own every morning.

"My husband and I can't run at the same time, because someone has to watch the baby," Mrs. Dahl explained. She puts on shorts and heads outdoors before 8 a.m. to run near her home at 116 Almenar Drive, doing a mile in eight or 10 minutes.

Dr. Dahl, also more of a runner than jogger, does his mile in the evenings in about six minutes.

"If it's pouring rain, I run in place in the house," Mrs. Dahl explained, "but it's so much nicer to get outdoors."

Mrs. Dahl, the mother of three youngsters, is lean, firm and trim after about a year of running, but said that this wasn't always the case. "I was in terrible shape after the birth of the baby, Kristin, a year and a half ago," she laughed.

Not only do her two sons, Jim, 6, and Erik, 5, often join her in running but her most faithful companion is the family basset hound, Poky. "She's so stupid she would get lost if I didn't take her on a leash," Mrs. Dahl said with a smile.

Although basset hounds are not noted for speed, Poky zooms ahead on the mornings when garbage trucks are in the nighborhood. "At any rate, she's a very healthy dog," said Mrs. Dahl.

While Mrs. Dahl sees the fun of it and a trim figure as the prime benefits, her doctor husband is equally as interested in what jogging and running do for the heart.

"I treat many patients who have had heart attacks," said Dr. Dahl. "I start them off walking, then walking briskly and finally jogging," he explained.

"It's actually possible for them to build up hearts that are in better shape after an attack than before if they exercise regularly, give up smoking and eat a low cholesterol diet," he said.

"The best exercise is one which a person can do vigorously for six to 10 minutes without becoming completely exhausted," the internist said. Swimming laps, bicycling and rowing are also good, Dr. Dahl said, but few of the competitive sports meet his standards because most require sudden spurts of energy.

Not only does jogging have great health benefits, there is sometimes a special dividend.

A story going the rounds of Marin joggers tells of a Terra Linda man who was jogging in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park when his wife's purse was snatched. The jogger took after the thief, jogging until he finally wore down the out-of-shape purse-snatcher, who dropped the bag and disappeared.

Cheaper To Build Tunnels Than Roads

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—The city is building tunnels under the Mobile River for interstate highway traffic and people are asking: "Why not a bridge over it?"

The Alabama Trucker magazine has an answer. "In the 1970s, it says, "it will be cheaper to build tunnels than highways." It cites a study which based cost savings on new techniques in tunnel construction and rising land costs.

Christmas Calls Best Placed By GIs Overseas

Persons who wish to speak to relatives stationed in Vietnam during the holiday season have been encouraged by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. to have the servicemen place the calls.

Troy E. Lewis, manager of Pacific Telephone's San Rafael office, said that although the company makes every effort to locate men in Vietnam, it is often difficult because of Vietnam travel restrictions and curfews.

On the other hand, calls originating in Vietnam are handled on a first-come, first-served basis at various telephone centers for servicemen, Lewis explained. "Once a serviceman places his call, it's just a matter of minutes before it is completed," he said.

However, if relatives wish to place calls to Vietnam, Lewis said, it is important for them to have the serviceman's unit, APO number and, if possible, a telephone number where he can be reached. He said the speed with which the calls goes through depends on the number of calls at the time and the serviceman's availability.

Anti-Cancer Plant Compound Discovered

BERKELEY, Calif (UPI)—In a development that may assist cancer research, University of California pathologists have discovered a "medicine" that destroys bacteria-caused tumors on living plants.

The compound is now being manufactured for agricultural use, but medical researchers say it offers hope in the human cancer disease. They note it is "the first evidence of a selectively toxic agent that completely and consistently destroys tumors without injuring the host."

Hayakawa Needs Help To Save State College

THE FEWER DETAILS you know about the situation at San Francisco State College, the easier it is to be sure of simple ways to end the trouble.

The converse is also true.

Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, one of Marin's most distinguished citizens, ascends to the San Francisco State College presidency knowing considerable about the problems underlying recent events on the campus. He first served on the faculty there more than 15 years ago.

In short, he knows a multitude of reasons why no simple, easy solution is possible.

But he seems to be off on the right foot.

At the outset, he approached his task cautiously.

"I prefer to avoid comment on specific matters of policy and operation," he said at the press conference which followed the announcement of his appointment as acting president.

LATER HE EXPRESSED the belief that most students want to return to classes, and observed that many classes had been held despite the strike and the turmoil of the past two weeks.

He made special mention of the Committee for an Academic Environment and lamented the lack of publicity its activities have received.

Privately, Hayakawa has disclosed his conviction that the Black Students Union, Students for a Democratic Society and Third World Liberation Front constitute a relatively small minority agitating for the continuing shutdown of the school.

Each of these three militant, activist organizations has been widely publicized. Committee for Academic Environment has not. Privately, Hayakawa has expressed the hope that the latter organization will rally as spokesman for what up to now has been the "silent majority" in favor of immediate resumption of classes.

IF YOU READ PAMPHLETS handed out on campus by each of the aforementioned organizations, only those from the Committee for Academic Environment reflect calm reason, as distinguished from the hysteria evident in most campus pamphleering.

While favoring the building of a black studies department, the CAE recognizes that thus far this year San Francisco State has spent more than three quarters of a million dollars beyond its budget. CAE offers its services to help raise an additional $350,000 needed for posposed expansion of a black studies department.

However, says, CAE, "The Black Studies Department must meet regular standards of the college in order to be academically recognized and part of the accredited college curriculum. This must be done to satisfy the needs of black students who are to benefit by the program."

Those who have followed the demands of the Black Students Union recognize the reasonableness of the CAE view as contrasted with the BSU position.

ON CAMPUS VIOLENCE, the CAE has expressed an intelligent attitude.

"We cannot stop the violence. We cannot stop police from coming on campus. We can prevent it from becoming a major crisis by not becoming part of a mob. The police do not decide of themselves to come on campus and attacking them will not prevent them from coming again. It will close the campus."

Obviously, that is a more mature view than the oft-mouthed assertion of the radicals that "invasion of the campus by police causes violence."

The CAE has advocated — without much public notice — that present student body officers be recalled.

Eighty to 90 per cent of students attended classes (when they were held) during the strike, but "student government sided with the small minority of radical students that did support the strike," said the CAE.

"The present student government has made no attempt to present the issues to the student body and conduct an intelligent, nonviolent alternative to settle the disputes," it observed.

WHY DOESN'T THE SILENT majority just stand up and speak out in support of restoration of order and resumption of classes?

Perhaps it is because its members are intimidated by threats from minority extremists. Two faculty members who spoke out thus subsequently found their offices fire-bombed and their very lives threatened.

When Dr. Hayakawa assumed the acting presidency he asked for support — on campus and off — and for the prayers of well wishers.

He both deserves and needs support and prayers.

If he fails, San Francisco State College will either be closed up tight or become an armed camp, perhaps occupied by national guardsmen in an atmosphere of martial law.

If he fails, other state colleges will experience similar disasters.

If he succeeds in bringing order out of the present chaos, he will set a pattern for others to follow in preserving order.

Let us fervently hope and pray for the latter course.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Meaningful Racial Dialogue Necessary

Bill McShane in "What Our Readers Say," Nov. 25, insults a greater majority of the black people than he could ever imagine.

He had best leave his amateurish attempts at sounding like Art Hoppe at home in the waste basket.

Mr. McShane's attitude only accelerates it.

These students will be heard and we had all better listen, hard. Unless a meaningful dialogue quickly occurs between the people who have exploited and oppressed the black man for 300 years and his "victims," we will all look back on the last month as "the good old days."

One notes a considerable fear of retaliation in this letter. I think those he fears would be hard pressed, however justified, to match the ingenious exclusion from life itself that they have endured for about the last time.

Leydecker Case 'Just Plain Stinks'

The Leydecker case, as reported, just plain stinks!

As many other Marin County parents have done, we saw our teen-ager's name on the I-J's front page, saw her through court appearances, saw her caught up in the red tape of the juvenile department — all because she was found in a car parked where marijuana was found on the road outside.

She lost her job with a local bank as a result.

But she wasn't the president, or otherwise enough of a local "shot" for the district attorney to recommend that she and her companion be freed, and to win discharge on a legal technicality.

How can we parents teach teen-agers respect for the courts, for attorneys, for bankers, for "the establishment" in general, when they see a whitewash job like this on the front page? No one can know that the defendant is actually guilty unless a true adversary trial has taken place — but try to tell that to any intelligent teen-ager these days!

If the suspicions left by this case can be satisfactorily explained away, you owe the county's parents an editorial to do so.

LINES ON LIVING

Nature's Constant Revival Has Lessons For Man

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

If you ever become despondent when you see fallen leaves of a past summer and the lengthening shadows of a nearing winter, stop and look, listen and observe.

There are sights on the horizon and voices in the air to brighten man's darkened soul. There is hidden mystery and splendor in ebbing colors and shades. There is sweet melancholy in nature that proclaims change and prompts innovation and enthusiasm.

A GREEN LEAF on soggy ground is a sad sight, a gesture of resignation. But the tree beside it tells another tale. It is a solitary witness to an eternal and more reliable and recurrent cycle of life, of never-fading promise. For every drying leaf, there is another leaf in the making, in expectancy and budding. Ice, snow and black skies can only shroud it in what seems to be an invitable hibernation necessary to life.

There is a loveliness in nature, a grace that makes leaves blown in the wind as mystifying to our imagination as the freshly born blade that springs out of a deep freeze to burst into new life.

There is an economy in nature, a brilliance of cleansing and dusting, pruning and revitalizing. A cosmic vacuum cleaner is at work to give newness and freshness to weary leaf, branch, root and soil. And with it comes rest to teeming life and pause from dazzling heat and growth.

THE SUN is cutting corners today and is hiding in chilly air and gloomy clouds. But the sun's circle is reliably round and perfect. Beginning and end are merged; light and darkness are co-mingled into the perennial completeness of a globular whole.

Seasons provide us with a variety of beauty. And all elements in nature are fair. It is what we ascribe to them and the way we learn to live with them that makes the difference in what we see. There is a splendor even in the dark of night, a delicacy in slumber, a comely serenity in retreat. And the sensitive ear will listen to the voices of change and welcome them as the inscrutable rule of all life and all creation.

Beneath the fiery sun of a distant glow, you can still hear the chatters, the calls of birds in migratory flight. They are departing, but to return again; they are leaving, but to come back and rebuild their shattered nests, as soon as change on day not far off will usher in a warmer season and brighter days.

THE WISDOM of birds can be instructive. They have no time for sad lamentations. They mourn not last summer and a lost spring. An inner urgency of life impels them to embark upon their long journey of survival. They will die if they learn not to live with change, with the seasons, with transition. They linger not idly for devastating winds to pluck away their feathers and to chill their breath of life. They survive to sing another spring's song of life because they are too busy living and flying to surrender to winter gloom and doom. They cross mountains, rivers and lands and rise skyward so that the cold earth will not overcome them.

Everything in nature—even fall's deep night—tells us of transition and movement, not of finality and end. A cold November day is only a partial summary of leaves and a certain stage of life. But by no means is it the signal of fatal descent and final impending death.

We can enhance life with enthusiasm and beauty if we add the vision of faith and optimism to the sights of falling leaves and howling winds; if we summon the hope of confidence when black clouds seem to darken our horizon; if we escape sorrow by an upward flight, to rise again with the sun and to rebuild our battered nests with the dawning of a new spring in our life.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Congressional Divisions Hamper Democratic Party's Rebuilding

WASHINGTON — In remaking the fragmented Democratic party the congressional piece is bound to have a prominent place. The Republicans on Nov. 5 were held to minimal gains and the Democrats control both Senate and House and the powerful committee chairmanships that have so much to do with the progress of legislation. Richard Nixon's failure to carry with him majorities of his own party is the first time this has happened to an incoming President since Zachary Taylor in 1848.

The fact is, however, that the congressional piece is split down the middle. On one side are the old stand-bys and on the other the young activists long restive under the shackles of seniority.

It is here that Vice President Hubert Humphrey can function most effectively. He knows Congress inside out with a direct and personal understanding of the rivalry and factionalism deeply embedded in the two majorities — nominal majorities in light of southern dominance — in Senate and House. Determined to put new life into the Democratic National Committee, so long moribund, Humphrey can draw on such talented senators as Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Fred Harris of Oklahoma, who contributed a lot to his campaign.

THE NEXT congressional election is only two years off and the division between the liberal-moderates and the old liners and southerners can mean trouble for the Democrats in that contest. The image of an old, barnacle-ridden ship of state is hardly one to inspire younger voters. At the helm in the House is Speaker John W. McCormack looking like a troubled ghost of Christmas past. Of his 77 years, 40 have been spent on the seniority escalator that carried him to his present eminence.

The mutterings of revolt are louder this time over the obduracy of what the young activists feel is the entrenched and resistant Old Guard. The talk among the bolder spirits is of sidetracking McCormack when Democratic House members hold their caucus and replacing him with one of the activists. The name most often mentioned is Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona.

But Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, whose recent book, "Power in the House," contains a broadside attack on McCormack's feeble, wavering leadership, would not go along. While the Democratic Study Group claims a membership up to 140 out of 243 Democrats in the House, the hard core willing to stand up and be counted is perhaps 60 to 70. In short, the votes are not there to move McCormack out of the speaker's chair.

A crafty player of the seniority game, cultivating the Boston-Austin axis as it is known in the House, McCormack at the end of the last session made some strategic appointments to the powerful ways and means committee. Omar Burleson of Texas, James C. Corman of California and William J. Green of Philadelphia all were rewarded, and that fine geographical distribution speaks well for McCormack's astuteness in holding his power.

BUT IF McCormack cannot be dislodged, the DSG does intend to move on Democratic members whom Bolling calls Republicans with a southern accent. High on this list is Rep. John R. Rarick of Louisiana who, according to the DSG, spoke around the country for the National Youth for (George C.) Wallace organization. They are even making a pass at one of the southern ineffables, chairman Mendel Rivers, who exercises an authority over the armed services committee and the Pentagon that the czar of all the Russias might have envied. The DSG has a picture of Rivers locked in a fraternal embrace with Gen. Curtis LeMay, former Chief of the Air Force, Wallace's vice presidential candidate. The caption under the picture says that Rivers was being given a briefing, presumably on the state of the Wallace campaign, by LeMay.

In the Senate the liberal-moderates would like to remove Sen. Russell Long from the whip's position. As No. 2 to majority leader Mike Mansfield, he has been erratic, often taking a position contrary to that of Mansfield and the administration.

Those who look realistically at the divisions in the Democratic party are convinced there can be no forward movement without drastic changes in Congress. Nor, they argue, can Richard Nixon be counted on to make boners that will atuomatically return them to power.

20 Questions About Money-And Try To Understand Answers

WASHINGTON — Now that everyone understands the world monetary crisis, we're going to give you your final quiz:

1—If I have five French francs and you have three West German Deutschemarks, what will we have all together?

ANSWER — One of the damndest money messes since World War II.

2—If I want to sell my French francs for German marks at 10 per cent less than they're officially quoted, what currency will be hurt the most?

A—The British pound.

3—Why?

A—Because it's tied to the American dollar.

4—WHEN THE American dollar gets in serious trouble, what country sells its dollar and demands gold, to make it go down further?

A—France.

5—When the French franc gets in trouble, what country agrees to go to its rescue and shore it up with its own gold?

A—The United States.

6—Why?

A—Because of the British pound.

7—WHEN THE British pound gets into trouble, who is the first person to demand that it be devalued?

A—President Charles de Gaulle.

8—When the French franc gets in trouble, who is the last person to agree to its devaluation?

A—President Charles de Gaulle.

9—Why?

A—Because of the West German mark.

10—WHAT HAS the German mark got to do with the French franc?

A—The West German mark is undervalued because the Germans don't have enough inflation. The French franc is overvalued because the French have too much inflation.

11—What is the solution?

A—The British have to tighten their belts.

You have a coffee break now before we go on with the quiz.

ALL RIGHT, let's continue:

12—What happens to all the gold that is supposed to support world currencies?

A—It's bought by the Swiss for people who have numbered accounts in Zurich.

13—When they buy the gold, what happens to the currencies?

14—Why?

A—Because everyone is afraid of the British pound.

15—WHAT CAN France do to restore confidence in the French franc?

A—Attack the American dollar.

16—How can they do this?

A—By using the money we've loaned them to preserve their franc.

17—Why would we allow this?

A—To preserve the British pound.

18—WHO WILL President De Gaulle blame if his reforms don't work?

A—The United States.

19—Who will get the credit if De Gaulle can pull it off?

A—That's a stupid question.

A—Take an Englishman to lunch.

Perhaps the highest function of a public servant in a free and democratic society is to preserve its oneness as a community while he fights the battles that divide it. — Walter Lippmann.

Nature's Constant Revival Has Lessons For Man

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

If you ever become despondent when you see fallen leaves of a past summer and the lengthening shadows of a nearing winter, stop and look, listen and observe.

There are sights on the horizon and voices in the air to brighten man's darkened soul. There is hidden mystery and splendor in ebbing colors and shades. There is sweet melancholy in nature that proclaims change and prompts innovation and enthusiasm.

A GREEN LEAF on soggy ground is a sad sight, a gesture of resignation. But the tree beside it tells another tale. It is a solitary witness to an eternal and more reliable and recurrent cycle of life, of never-fading promise. For every drying leaf, there is another leaf in the making, in expectancy and budding. Ice, snow and black skies can only shroud it in what seems to be an invitable hibernation necessary to life.

There is a loveliness in nature, a grace that makes leaves blown in the wind as mystifying to our imagination as the freshly born blade that springs out of a deep freeze to burst into new life.

There is an economy in nature, a brilliance of cleansing and dusting, pruning and revitalizing. A cosmic vacuum cleaner is at work to give newness and freshness to weary leaf, branch, root and soil. And with it comes rest to teeming life and pause from dazzling heat and growth.

THE SUN is cutting corners today and is hiding in chilly air and gloomy clouds. But the sun's circle is reliably round and perfect. Beginning and end are merged; light and darkness are co-mingled into the perennial completeness of a globular whole.

Seasons provide us with a variety of beauty. And all elements in nature are fair. It is what we ascribe to them and the way we learn to live with them that makes the difference in what we see. There is a splendor even in the dark of night, a delicacy in slumber, a comely serenity in retreat. And the sensitive ear will listen to the voices of change and welcome them as the inscrutable rule of all life and all creation.

Beneath the fiery sun of a distant glow, you can still hear the chatters, the calls of birds in migratory flight. They are departing, but to return again; they are leaving, but to come back and rebuild their shattered nests, as soon as change on day not far off will usher in a warmer season and brighter days.

THE WISDOM of birds can be instructive. They have no time for sad lamentations. They mourn not last summer and a lost spring. An inner urgency of life impels them to embark upon their long journey of survival. They will die if they learn not to live with change, with the seasons, with transition. They linger not idly for devastating winds to pluck away their feathers and to chill their breath of life. They survive to sing another spring's song of life because they are too busy living and flying to surrender to winter gloom and doom. They cross mountains, rivers and lands and rise skyward so that the cold earth will not overcome them.

Everything in nature—even fall's deep night—tells us of transition and movement, not of finality and end. A cold November day is only a partial summary of leaves and a certain stage of life. But by no means is it the signal of fatal descent and final impending death.

We can enhance life with enthusiasm and beauty if we add the vision of faith and optimism to the sights of falling leaves and howling winds; if we summon the hope of confidence when black clouds seem to darken our horizon; if we escape sorrow by an upward flight, to rise again with the sun and to rebuild our battered nests with the dawning of a new spring in our life.

Congressional Divisions Hamper Democratic Party's Rebuilding

WASHINGTON — In remaking the fragmented Democratic party the congressional piece is bound to have a prominent place. The Republicans on Nov. 5 were held to minimal gains and the Democrats control both Senate and House and the powerful committee chairmanships that have so much to do with the progress of legislation. Richard Nixon's failure to carry with him majorities of his own party is the first time this has happened to an incoming President since Zachary Taylor in 1848.

The fact is, however, that the congressional piece is split down the middle. On one side are the old stand-bys and on the other the young activists long restive under the shackles of seniority.

It is here that Vice President Hubert Humphrey can function most effectively. He knows Congress inside out with a direct and personal understanding of the rivalry and factionalism deeply embedded in the two majorities — nominal majorities in light of southern dominance — in Senate and House. Determined to put new life into the Democratic National Committee, so long moribund, Humphrey can draw on such talented senators as Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Fred Harris of Oklahoma, who contributed a lot to his campaign.

THE NEXT congressional election is only two years off and the division between the liberal-moderates and the old liners and southerners can mean trouble for the Democrats in that contest. The image of an old, barnacle-ridden ship of state is hardly one to inspire younger voters. At the helm in the House is Speaker John W. McCormack looking like a troubled ghost of Christmas past. Of his 77 years, 40 have been spent on the seniority escalator that carried him to his present eminence.

The mutterings of revolt are louder this time over the obduracy of what the young activists feel is the entrenched and resistant Old Guard. The talk among the bolder spirits is of sidetracking McCormack when Democratic House members hold their caucus and replacing him with one of the activists. The name most often mentioned is Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona.

But Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, whose recent book, "Power in the House," contains a broadside attack on McCormack's feeble, wavering leadership, would not go along. While the Democratic Study Group claims a membership up to 140 out of 243 Democrats in the House, the hard core willing to stand up and be counted is perhaps 60 to 70. In short, the votes are not there to move McCormack out of the speaker's chair.

A crafty player of the seniority game, cultivating the Boston-Austin axis as it is known in the House, McCormack at the end of the last session made some strategic appointments to the powerful ways and means committee. Omar Burleson of Texas, James C. Corman of California and William J. Green of Philadelphia all were rewarded, and that fine geographical distribution speaks well for McCormack's astuteness in holding his power.

BUT IF McCormack cannot be dislodged, the DSG does intend to move on Democratic members whom Bolling calls Republicans with a southern accent. High on this list is Rep. John R. Rarick of Louisiana who, according to the DSG, spoke around the country for the National Youth for (George C.) Wallace organization. They are even making a pass at one of the southern ineffables, chairman Mendel Rivers, who exercises an authority over the armed services committee and the Pentagon that the czar of all the Russias might have envied. The DSG has a picture of Rivers locked in a fraternal embrace with Gen. Curtis LeMay, former Chief of the Air Force, Wallace's vice presidential candidate. The caption under the picture says that Rivers was being given a briefing, presumably on the state of the Wallace campaign, by LeMay.

In the Senate the liberal-moderates would like to remove Sen. Russell Long from the whip's position. As No. 2 to majority leader Mike Mansfield, he has been erratic, often taking a position contrary to that of Mansfield and the administration.

Those who look realistically at the divisions in the Democratic party are convinced there can be no forward movement without drastic changes in Congress. Nor, they argue, can Richard Nixon be counted on to make boners that will atuomatically return them to power.

20 Questions About Money-And Try To Understand Answers

WASHINGTON — Now that everyone understands the world monetary crisis, we're going to give you your final quiz:

1—If I have five French francs and you have three West German Deutschemarks, what will we have all together?

ANSWER — One of the damndest money messes since World War II.

2—If I want to sell my French francs for German marks at 10 per cent less than they're officially quoted, what currency will be hurt the most?

A—The British pound.

3—Why?

A—Because it's tied to the American dollar.

4—WHEN THE American dollar gets in serious trouble, what country sells its dollar and demands gold, to make it go down further?

A—France.

5—When the French franc gets in trouble, what country agrees to go to its rescue and shore it up with its own gold?

A—The United States.

6—Why?

A—Because of the British pound.

7—WHEN THE British pound gets into trouble, who is the first person to demand that it be devalued?

A—President Charles de Gaulle.

8—When the French franc gets in trouble, who is the last person to agree to its devaluation?

A—President Charles de Gaulle.

9—Why?

A—Because of the West German mark.

10—WHAT HAS the German mark got to do with the French franc?

A—The West German mark is undervalued because the Germans don't have enough inflation. The French franc is overvalued because the French have too much inflation.

11—What is the solution?

A—The British have to tighten their belts.

You have a coffee break now before we go on with the quiz.

ALL RIGHT, let's continue:

12—What happens to all the gold that is supposed to support world currencies?

A—It's bought by the Swiss for people who have numbered accounts in Zurich.

13—When they buy the gold, what happens to the currencies?

14—Why?

A—Because everyone is afraid of the British pound.

15—WHAT CAN France do to restore confidence in the French franc?

A—Attack the American dollar.

16—How can they do this?

A—By using the money we've loaned them to preserve their franc.

17—Why would we allow this?

A—To preserve the British pound.

18—WHO WILL President De Gaulle blame if his reforms don't work?

A—The United States.

19—Who will get the credit if De Gaulle can pull it off?

A—That's a stupid question.

A—Take an Englishman to lunch.

Perhaps the highest function of a public servant in a free and democratic society is to preserve its oneness as a community while he fights the battles that divide it. — Walter Lippmann.

Major Labor Problems Face Nixon From Start

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Major labor troubles are likely to confront Richard M. Nixon immediately when he becomes president.

His biggest labor problem will be the same issue he would have faced had he won the presidency in 1960—the so-called railroad featherbedding controversy.

By the time Nixon is sworn in Jan. 20 the nation could easily be in the midst of a crippling strike of dock workers from Maine to Texas, as well as the start of a nationwide walkout on the railroads.

Within a month after he moves into the White House, the new chief executive may be faced with strikes against five major airlines and a second rail strike.

But the only certainty at this point appears to be that longshoremen will resume their strike at East and Gulf Coast ports as soon as an 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction against them expires. That's Dec. 20.

Conceivably this could force President Johnson to call Congress into emergency session to deal with the strike, although there seems very little likelihood of that.

The basic issue involved in the dispute is the problem of containerized cargoes, a problem that could eventually cost the International Longshoreman's Association up to 50 per cent of its membership.

More important to the labor movement, however, is the effect a longshore strike would have on future relations between Nixon and organized labor. As a result, sources close to the talks said AFL-CIO President George Meany "is making a tremendous effort to try to avoid a longshore strike."

Since the election, the AFL-CIO has been making a concerted effort to avoid any confrontation with Nixon since relations between the president-elect and labor already were strained.

Labor is not particularly worried about any sweeping anti-labor reforms in Congress as long as a crisis situation is averted. The liberal majority in the Senate gives labor a safeguard against anything the House might do.

A major strike crisis could, however, tip the balance against labor and this is where the railroad situation comes in.

A special presidential emergency board has been holding hearings on a demand by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (BRT) that three railroads —Louisville & Nashville, the Belt Railway and Illinois Central—hire extra crewmen beyond what the lines consider necessary for safe operations.

By Jan. 6, three days after the 91st Congress opens, the union could be free to strike the railroads on the issue. If the government then wanted to stop a strike, it would have to go to Congress for special legislation —all other legal avenues having been exhausted.

A BRT victory in its fight for extra crewmen could open the door to much broader rail labor problems. In the background is a similar case involving railroad firemen.

The firemen's union is demanding that the railroads return the firemen from the steam engine era of railroading to the cab of the diesel locomotive. The union claims the extra man is needed for safety reasons; the railroads say he isn't.

This case is presently under the jurisdiction of the National Mediation Board and could be forced into an emergency situation at any time. If the firemen's union decides to strike the nation's railroads to match the gains of the trainmen's union, an emergency situation would face labor.

Under the law, the firemen's union—unlike the BRT must negotiate with all the railroads. Thus, if it wanted to strike it would strike all the railroads.

If it decided on a strike, the government could force it to wait under the 60-day cooling off period of the Railway Labor Act. But once the 60 days expired, special legislation would be required from Congress to end the strike.

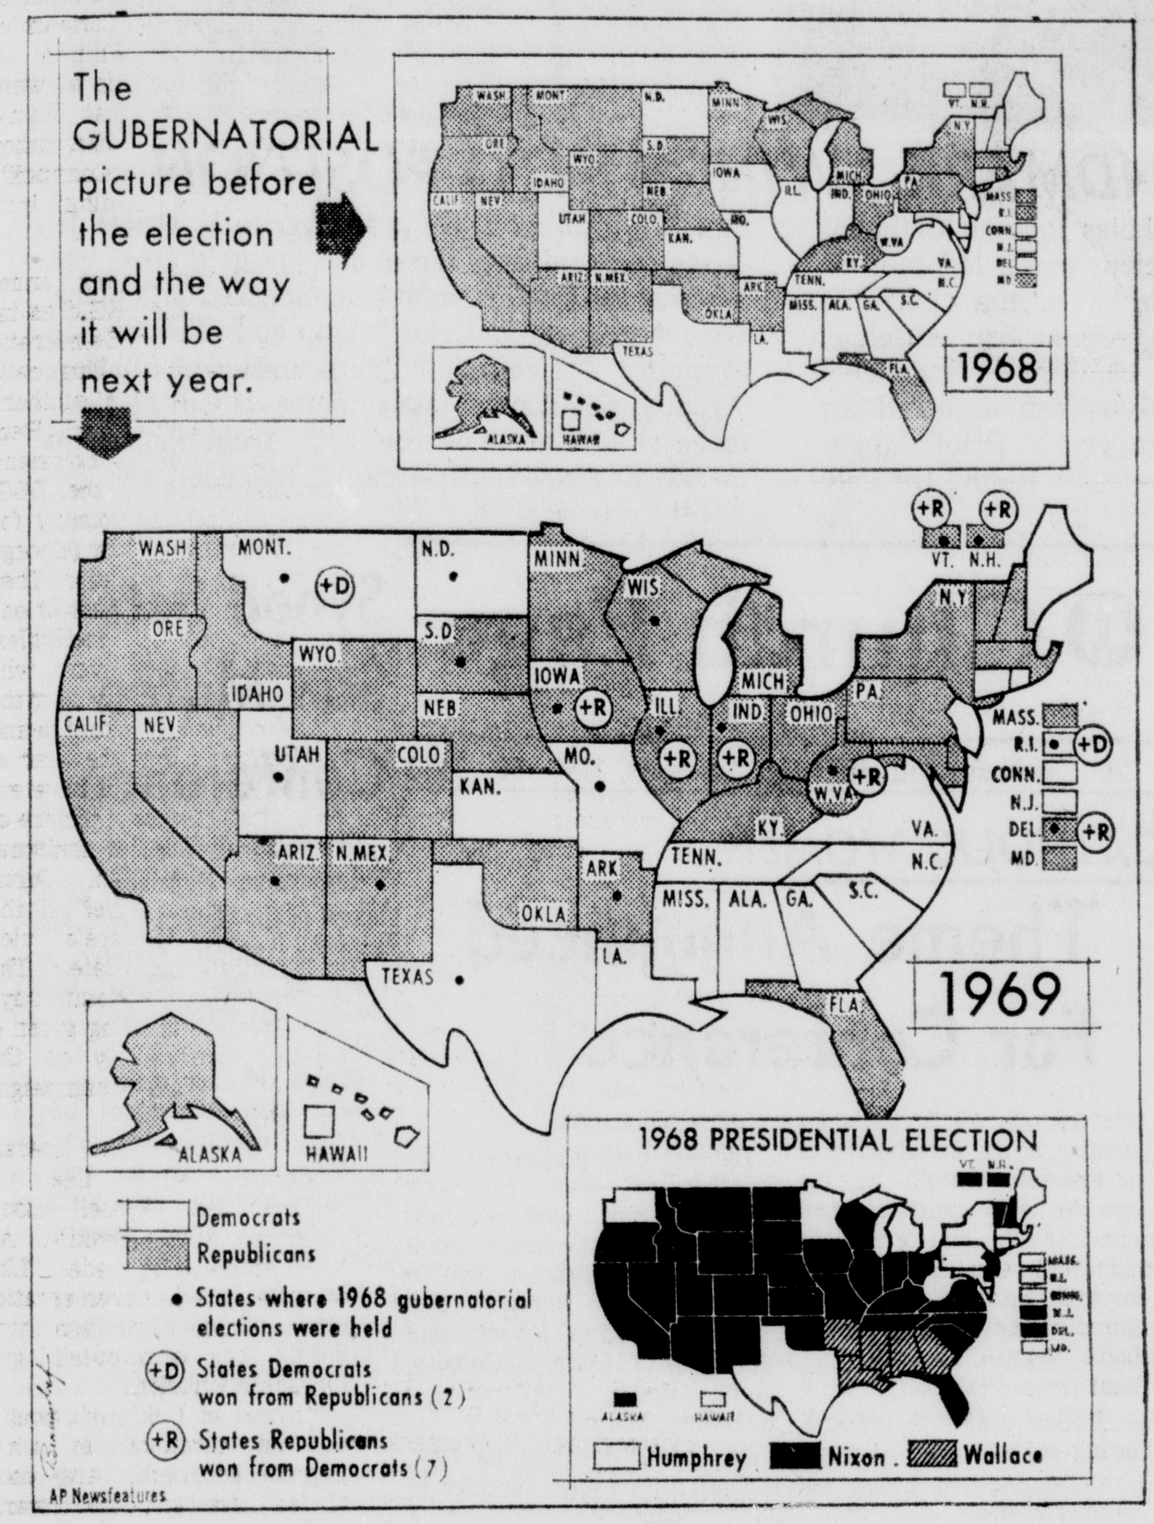
On top of this is the possible threat of another nationwide rail strike by the same shopcraft unions that struck the railroads in the summer of 1967. The unions, headed by the International Association of Machinists (IAM), will be legally free to strike Dec. 31, the same day 35,000 IAM mechanics will be free to strike Eastern, United, Transworld, National and Northwest Airlines.

In both cases, however, the government could forestall a strike for 60 days under the Railway Labor Act.

The rail shopcraft unions are demanding a basic 10 per cent wage increase this time.

Demands in the airline negotiations run as high as 40 per cent for wages. Just what will happen is uncertain. The machinists union is negotiating separately with each airline.

A strike in any of the transportation areas could touch off punitive action by Congress, which labor leaders hope to avoid while they try to size up Nixon.



Republicans Show Best Gains In Governorships In 45 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans came out of the 1968 election with 31 governors, their highest total in 45 years, including the five largest and eight of the 10 biggest states.

Even when Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew resigns as governor of Maryland, to be replaced in all likelihood by a Democrat selected by the overwhelmingly Democratic legislature, the GOP will control 30 governorships for the first time since the 1952-54 period. In 1923, they held 34.

States with Republican governors represent 69 per cent of the population of the 50 states, according to the Republican Governors Association.

The big GOP prize this year was Illinois, where Richard B. Ogilvie unseated Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro, who had moved up to the governorship when Otto Kerner became a federal appeals judge in May.

Besides Texas, only New Jersey, which elects a governor in 1969, is in Democratic hands. In that state, Republicans plan a vigorous bid as Gov. Richard J. Hughes is forbidden by the state constitution from seeking a third successive four-year term.

Republicans had held a 26-24 lead over the Democrats going into the 1968 election. GOP winners this year in previously Democratic states included Russell W. Peterson, Delaware; Edgar D. Whitcomb, Indiana; Robert D. Ray, Iowa; Deane C. Davis, Vermont; Walter R. Peterson, New Hampshire and Arch A. Moore Jr., West Virginia. Only in Delaware, where Peterson defeated Gov. Charles L. Terry, was a Democratic incumbent running.

Republicans retained Arizona, Jack Williams; Arkansas, Winthrop Rockefeller; New Mexico, David Cargo; South Dakota, Frank Farrar; Washington, Daniel Evans; and Wisconsin, Warren P. Knowles.

Major Republican-held governorships to be contested in 1970 include New York, Nelson A. Rockefeller; California, Ronald Reagan; Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer; Ohio, James A. Rhodes; Michigan, George Romney; Massachusetts, John A. Volpe; and Floriad, Claude Krk Jr.

LOTS OF PIZAZZ

Detroit Answers Buyers' Whims

The emphasis on new styling and new comforts in the 1969 offerings is concentrated in the so-called medium priced field. Auto manufacturers this year spent approximately $1 billion to bring out their new cars, and by far the greatest amount was spent on the high end of the so-called low-priced field, and in the medium-priced area.

In 1967, the average selling price of a new car in the United States was $3,200, and though figures are not yet complete, indications are that in 1968, Americans spent an average $200 more per car on the new models.

But the statistics also show that the high end of the low-priced three — the full-sized Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth—took a smaller segment of the new car market.

INTERMEDIATE MODELS

The so-called intermediate field '68 models made gains. They had a lower basic price tag, but the orders for optional equipment such as bigger engines, power brakes and steering, and air conditioning, brought the average selling price up.

Low-priced compacts such as Ford Falcon, Chevrolet Corvair, Plymouth Valiant and American Rambler American which boomed in the early 1960s, have about run their course and with rising affluence of buyers, probably will stay in the relatively low volume class, with Corvair likely to be dropped after 1969.

SPORTY MODELS

Sporty and specialty cars which boomed with the introduction of the Ford Mustang in mid-1964, have about reached the saturation point and are expected to level off at about 10 per cent of the domestic market.

Intermediates — Chevelle, Fairlane, Montego, Pontiac Tempest, Olds F85 and Buick Special—forged ahead in 1967 and made further gains in 1968 until they were taking close to 30 per cent of the new car market.

The high-priced field—Cadillac, Lincoln Continental and Chrysler Imperial—has always been the most stable area in automobile sales with Cadillac taking the lion's share.

That leaves the medium-priced field and the upper range of the lower priced field as represented by the full-sized cars of each maker. The '68 models in this category sagged in market sales, but automakers are betting their new models will move well.

LEADS BATTLE

Ford has led this battle by boosting its full-sized Ford in wheelbase and restyling it, and by offering two new full-sized Mercurys, including the Mercury Marquis, with a Lincoln-Continental look.

General Motors restyled its medium-priced leaders like the Oldsmobile. Buick and Pontiac and offered a new Pontiac Grand Prix, bringing back the front end styling of the 1930s with a chrome radiator shell ala Lincoln Continental Mark III.

Chevrolet did not change the wheelbase of its full-size Chevrolet, but gave it new styling, added an inch to its length and boosted such innovations as an automatic headlight washer and rear wheel dispensers of special antiskid chemical for getting out of snowbanks in the winter. It also offered the widest line of engine and transmission options ever.

Chrysler upped its top-of-the-line Plymouth Fury to a 120-inch wheelbase and widened it by 2 inches.

TOP OF LINE

American Motors did little to its intermediate and low-priced lines, but boosted its top-of-the-line Ambassador model by 4 inches in the wheelbase and widened it to 60 inches. American Motors, the original exponent of compact economy cars, drew further from that image by offering hotter engine options for all its cars.

With its sporty AMX and Javelin models, the company also has been striving for a youth image by entering racing competition and challenging speed marks for stock cars in trials at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah.

The U.S. auto market also has seen steady growth in the lowest economy segment of the market—at the expense of Detroit.

This lowest priced area has been taken over by the small foreign imports. Experts estimate the 1968 sales of these foreign cars, most of them under-$2,000 mini-cars, will be around 950,000, and probably will spill over the one million mark in 1969.

IMPORT CHALLENGE

Combatting this trend, Ford will challenge the imports early in 1969 with a new small car built in Canada and priced to compete directly with the most popular of all imports, the German Volkswagen. This car consistently takes 50 per cent or more of the U.S. import market.

Ford's new car, a sporty type built to seat four passengers, will be made at St. Thomas, Ont., and imported duty-free into the United States under the Canadian-American tariff agreement. It probably will be priced just above the Volkswagen, which means a sticker price between $1,800 and $1,900.

General Motors is concentrating on boosting sales of its German-made Opel, distributed through Buick dealers, and has introduced a two-passenger GT model with disc brakes to attract the sports-car minded.

A MINICAR

GM's Chevrolet division also is expected to introduce a new minicar to compete directly against Volkswagen. It is expected to be about a year behind the Ford entry, in spite of assurances by Chevrolet general manager E.M. "Pete" Estes that "we do not intend to be behind ever again."

This was a reference to the two-and-a-half year lag of the division behind Ford's Mustang. The Ford product created a new field for the medium-priced sporty car and more than half a million of them were sold before Chevrolet introduced its rival Camaro.

Added Status Near For 'Family Doctor'

NEW YORK (UPI)—There is a stirring in the medical world to upgrade the doctor who has no formally recognized specialty—the "good old doc" of bygone days who doctored everyone in the family from grandma to baby, and for everything.

These scientific days, babies are delivered by obstetricians and thereafter pediatricians take charge.

Broken bones are set by orthopedists. The teen-ager's pimples are looked at by a dermatologist, and there is a psychiatrist to intervene soothingly in family quarrels.

HE COULD VANISH

There now is a speciality for almost every part and function of the human body. The result is that "good old doc," a jack of all medical trades but a specialist in none, has been so downgraded that fewer and fewer medical students aspire to take his place and it could be that in a few more generations he'll disappear entirely.

It's a pity, even to many medical specialists, and the stirring comes from an organized effort to upgrade him to equality with specialists by making him a specialist, too. His speciality would be family medicine, a term so new it has not yet been precisely defined in any detail, but it is what "good old doc" practiced and what today's dwindling general practitioners (G.P.'s) practice.

He would be the permanent doctor of families, caring for all their members from the cradle to the grave, assuming he outlived them, personally treating their less complicated ills, calling in appropriate specialists for the really complicated ones, giving them period checkups to keep them in the pink, getting to know them so well he'd be their helpful medical friend unfailingly on call for all life's trials.

The difference would be that he'd have a specialist's education in the generalities of family practice which today's general practitioners didn't have although those who are members of the American Academy of General Practice (AAGP) are required to provide periodic proof they're keeping up with medical progress and call themselves family doctors.

To acquire this education, the medical school graduate would take up a three-year hospital residency in family medicine and learn practical applications of pediatrics, internal medicine, obstetrics, gynecology, psychiatry and surgery but not in such depth as to qualify for any of those specialties. He'd also be exposed to psychology and other behavioral sciences.

DETAILED PROGRAM

The detailed formal program has been approved by the AAGP which with 31,000 members is second only to the American Medical Association as a medical society. It is expected to be approved by the AMA House of Delegates in Miami Beach next week and then it will come up before the AMA's Congress on Medical Education in February. The congress probably will approve, if not in 1969, then in 1970, and that will make family practice the 20th recognized medical speciality.

Soviet Union Begins New Era In Subs, But Still Far Behind

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union stands at the beginning of a new era in its development of ballistic missile submarines. But by U.S. standards it still has far to go.

The Russians have recently built a few nuclear-powered submarines which the U.S. Navy regards as near copies of its own Polaris vessels.

So far these have operated in home waters. They have not sailed within missile range of the United States.

16 LAUNCH TUBES

The new Russian subs have 16 launch tubes each, the same as Polaris subs. Soviet ballistic missile subs already in operation have at most three launchers each, and many of these fire missiles with ranges of only a few hundred miles.

The Russians have built a new missile to go with their new submarine. Its range is said to be at least that of the early Polaris missiles. The range of the Polaris A-1, now obsolete, was 1,200 nautical miles.

The Polaris A-2 and A-3, both now in use, have ranges of 1,500 and 2,500 nautical miles respectively, according to U.S. Navy publications. The Poseidon, designed for the 1970's will go farther.

The ballistic sub programs have developed very differently in the two countries. The United States launched its first Polaris submarine, the George Washington, in 1959, and in 1967, completed its present fleet of 41 Polaris vessels, carrying a total of 656 missiles.

FLEET OF 50

The latest "Janes Fighting Ships" credits Russia with 15 nuclear-powered and 35 diesel ballistic missile subs. Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford estimates the Soviet undersea force in terms of missiles—75 to 80.

The Polaris fleet is thus a present-tense deterrent. The Soviet fleet would have to be moved into position before it could be used in nuclear war. This movement could be detected by underwater listening devices. And this would be one of the ways the U.S. would be warned of Soviet war preparations.

The United States considers its three nuclear forces—land-based missiles, manned bombers and submarines — as each capable alone of inflicting enough damage on the Soviet Union so as to constitute an independent deterrent.

Russia's submarine force still forms a very small part of its strategic power, which lies mainly in its 900 land-based missiles.

Though it has the largest overall submarine fleet in the world—360 subs of all ocean-going categories—Russia has been slow to develop the technology of far-flung submarine operations. But it is steadily working on extending the distances its subs can operate.

What is the United States doing about it? This country has already, in recent years, taken steps to reduce the take-off delay of U.S. bombers in an alert situation, since one purpose of a small submarine missile force could be to try to catch nuclear bombers on the ground.

FOR THE FUTURE

For the future, the United States has options which it could take off the shelf depending on how the Soviet threat develops. If the United States decides to install Sprint defense missiles to protect its land-based missile force, it may have to design the radars controlling the Sprints so they can look to sea as well as toward the approach routes overland.

Another U.S. option would be to put more resources into anti-submarine warfare.

NGUYEN THIEU
Agrees to Paris

United Press International

South Vietnamese officials softened their hard line on the Paris peace talks this week by agreeing to send an observers' mission to the talks. But America's chief allies in the Vietnam War demonstrated they had lost little of their recalcitrance.

Nguyen Van An, Saigon's No. 2 man on the observers' team, said Thursday that any peace contract on the war concluded in Paris would have to be backed by an international guarantee.

An emphasized that Saigon would walk away from the conference table if the talks produced a peace agreement on Communist terms. ja north Vietnamese diplomat said such a move would produce "unforeseen circumstances."

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu announced on Wednesday that he was sending his chief political rival, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, to "oversee and control" the delegation.

The developments came as new fighting broke out in South Vietnam and diplomats in Paris haggled over such questions as what shape the conference table would have and whether Saigon and the Viet Cong should have separate bar facilities.

Sinologists generally agreed that the timing of Communist China's move this week to resume ambassadorial talks with the United States was more important than the invitation

Cleaver, author of the book "Soul on Ice," had his parole suspended last April when he was found at a house where Black Panthers were involved in a shootout with Oakland police.

New Work — Stoic through strikes and strike threats by a dozen different unions in the past three months, New Yorkers prepared to meet still another strike this weekend.

If it decided on a strike, the government could force it to wait under the 60-day cooling off period of the Railway Labor Act. But once the 60 days expired, special legislation would be required from Congress to end the strike.

On top of this is the possible threat of another nationwide rail strike by the same shopcraft unions that struck the railroads in the summer of 1967. The unions, headed by the International Association of Machinists (IAM), will be legally free to strike Dec. 31, the same day 35,000 IAM mechanics will be free to strike Eastern, United, Transworld, National and Northwest Airlines.

In both cases, however, the government could forestall a strike for 60 days under the Railway Labor Act.

The rail shopcraft unions are demanding a basic 10 per cent wage increase this time.

Demands in the airline negotiations run as high as 40 per cent for wages. Just what will happen is uncertain. The machinists union is negotiating separately with each airline.

A strike in any of the transportation areas could touch off punitive action by Congress, which labor leaders hope to avoid while they try to size up Nixon.

Republicans Show Best Gains In Governorships In 45 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans came out of the 1968 election with 31 governors, their highest total in 45 years, including the five largest and eight of the 10 biggest states.

Even when Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew resigns as governor of Maryland, to be replaced in all likelihood by a Democrat selected by the overwhelmingly Democratic legislature, the GOP will control 30 governorships for the first time since the 1952-54 period. In 1923, they held 34.

States with Republican governors represent 69 per cent of the population of the 50 states, according to the Republican Governors Association.

The big GOP prize this year was Illinois, where Richard B. Ogilvie unseated Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro, who had moved up to the governorship when Otto Kerner became a federal appeals judge in May.

Besides Texas, only New Jersey, which elects a governor in 1969, is in Democratic hands. In that state, Republicans plan a vigorous bid as Gov. Richard J. Hughes is forbidden by the state constitution from seeking a third successive four-year term.

Republicans had held a 26-24 lead over the Democrats going into the 1968 election. GOP winners this year in previously Democratic states included Russell W. Peterson, Delaware; Edgar D. Whitcomb, Indiana; Robert D. Ray, Iowa; Deane C. Davis, Vermont; Walter R. Peterson, New Hampshire and Arch A. Moore Jr., West Virginia. Only in Delaware, where Peterson defeated Gov. Charles L. Terry, was a Democratic incumbent running.

Republicans retained Arizona, Jack Williams; Arkansas, Winthrop Rockefeller; New Mexico, David Cargo; South Dakota, Frank Farrar; Washington, Daniel Evans; and Wisconsin, Warren P. Knowles.

Major Republican-held governorships to be contested in 1970 include New York, Nelson A. Rockefeller; California, Ronald Reagan; Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer; Ohio, James A. Rhodes; Michigan, George Romney; Massachusetts, John A. Volpe; and Floriad, Claude Krk Jr.

This Week In The World

NGUYEN THIEU
Agrees to Paris

South Vietnamese officials softened their hard line on the Paris peace talks this week by agreeing to send an observers' mission to the talks. But America's chief allies in the Vietnam War demonstrated they had lost little of their recalcitrance.

Nguyen Van An, Saigon's No. 2 man on the observers' team, said Thursday that any peace contract on the war concluded in Paris would have to be backed by an international guarantee.

An emphasized that Saigon would walk away from the conference table if the talks produced a peace agreement on Communist terms. ja north Vietnamese diplomat said such a move would produce "unforeseen circumstances."

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu announced on Wednesday that he was sending his chief political rival, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, to "oversee and control" the delegation.

The developments came as new fighting broke out in South Vietnam and diplomats in Paris haggled over such questions as what shape the conference table would have and whether Saigon and the Viet Cong should have separate bar facilities.

Sinologists generally agreed that the timing of Communist China's move this week to resume ambassadorial talks with the United States was more important than the invitation

Around The World; Around The Clock:

In San Francisco — A search continued until the weekend for Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver, who is wanted for parole violation, amid speculation that he might have left the country.

Cleaver, author of the book "Soul on Ice," had his parole suspended last April when he was found at a house where Black Panthers were involved in a shootout with Oakland police.

New Work — Stoic through strikes and strike threats by a dozen different unions in the past three months, New Yorkers prepared to meet still another strike this weekend.

Consolidated Edison, the city's giant utilities company, was faced with a strike Sunday by 20,000 union workers who rejected the company's contract offer.

LOTS OF PIZAZZ

Detroit Answers Buyers' Whims

The emphasis on new styling and new comforts in the 1969 offerings is concentrated in the so-called medium priced field. Auto manufacturers this year spent approximately $1 billion to bring out their new cars, and by far the greatest amount was spent on the high end of the so-called low-priced field, and in the medium-priced area.

In 1967, the average selling price of a new car in the United States was $3,200, and though figures are not yet complete, indications are that in 1968, Americans spent an average $200 more per car on the new models.

But the statistics also show that the high end of the low-priced three — the full-sized Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth—took a smaller segment of the new car market.

INTERMEDIATE MODELS

The so-called intermediate field '68 models made gains. They had a lower basic price tag, but the orders for optional equipment such as bigger engines, power brakes and steering, and air conditioning, brought the average selling price up.

Low-priced compacts such as Ford Falcon, Chevrolet Corvair, Plymouth Valiant and American Rambler American which boomed in the early 1960s, have about run their course and with rising affluence of buyers, probably will stay in the relatively low volume class, with Corvair likely to be dropped after 1969.

SPORTY MODELS

Sporty and specialty cars which boomed with the introduction of the Ford Mustang in mid-1964, have about reached the saturation point and are expected to level off at about 10 per cent of the domestic market.

Intermediates — Chevelle, Fairlane, Montego, Pontiac Tempest, Olds F85 and Buick Special—forged ahead in 1967 and made further gains in 1968 until they were taking close to 30 per cent of the new car market.

The high-priced field—Cadillac, Lincoln Continental and Chrysler Imperial—has always been the most stable area in automobile sales with Cadillac taking the lion's share.

That leaves the medium-priced field and the upper range of the lower priced field as represented by the full-sized cars of each maker. The '68 models in this category sagged in market sales, but automakers are betting their new models will move well.

LEADS BATTLE

Ford has led this battle by boosting its full-sized Ford in wheelbase and restyling it, and by offering two new full-sized Mercurys, including the Mercury Marquis, with a Lincoln-Continental look.

General Motors restyled its medium-priced leaders like the Oldsmobile, Buick and Pontiac and offered a new Pontiac Grand Prix, bringing back the front end styling of the 1930s with a chrome radiator shell ala Lincoln Continental Mark III.

Chevrolet did not change the wheelbase of its full-size Chevrolet, but gave it new styling, added an inch to its length and boosted such innovations as an automatic headlight washer and rear wheel dispensers of special antiskid chemical for getting out of snowbanks in the winter. It also offered the widest line of engine and transmission options ever.

Chrysler upped its top-of-the-line Plymouth Fury to a 120-inch wheelbase and widened it by 2 inches.

TOP OF LINE

American Motors did little to its intermediate and low-priced lines, but boosted its top-of-the-line Ambassador model by 4 inches in the wheelbase and widened it to 60 inches. American Motors, the original exponent of compact economy cars, drew further from that image by offering hotter engine options for all its cars.

With its sporty AMX and Javelin models, the company also has been striving for a youth image by entering racing competition and challenging speed marks for stock cars in trials at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah.

The U.S. auto market also has seen steady growth in the lowest economy segment of the market—at the expense of Detroit.

This lowest priced area has been taken over by the small foreign imports. Experts estimate the 1968 sales of these foreign cars, most of them under-$2,000 mini-cars, will be around 950,000, and probably will spill over the one million mark in 1969.

IMPORT CHALLENGE

Combatting this trend, Ford will challenge the imports early in 1969 with a new small car built in Canada and priced to compete directly with the most popular of all imports, the German Volkswagen. This car consistently takes 50 per cent or more of the U.S. import market.

Ford's new car, a sporty type built to seat four passengers, will be made at St. Thomas, Ont., and imported duty-free into the United States under the Canadian-American tariff agreement. It probably will be priced just above the Volkswagen, which means a sticker price between $1,800 and $1,900.

General Motors is concentrating on boosting sales of its German-made Opel, distributed through Buick dealers, and has introduced a two-passenger GT model with disc brakes to attract the sports-car minded.

A MINICAR

GM's Chevrolet division also is expected to introduce a new minicar to compete directly against Volkswagen. It is expected to be about a year behind the Ford entry, in spite of assurances by Chevrolet general manager E.M. "Pete" Estes that "we do not intend to be behind ever again."

This was a reference to the two-and-a-half year lag of the division behind Ford's Mustang. The Ford product created a new field for the medium-priced sporty car and more than half a million of them were sold before Chevrolet introduced its rival Camaro.

Behind The News

Added Status Near For 'Family Doctor'

NEW YORK (UPI)—There is a stirring in the medical world to upgrade the doctor who has no formally recognized specialty—the "good old doc" of bygone days who doctored everyone in the family from grandma to baby, and for everything.

These scientific days, babies are delivered by obstetricians and thereafter pediatricians take charge.

Broken bones are set by orthopedists. The teen-ager's pimples are looked at by a dermatologist, and there is a psychiatrist to intervene soothingly in family quarrels.

HE COULD VANISH

There now is a speciality for almost every part and function of the human body. The result is that "good old doc," a jack of all medical trades but a specialist in none, has been so downgraded that fewer and fewer medical students aspire to take his place and it could be that in a few more generations he'll disappear entirely.

It's a pity, even to many medical specialists, and the stirring comes from an organized effort to upgrade him to equality with specialists by making him a specialist, too. His speciality would be family medicine, a term so new it has not yet been precisely defined in any detail, but it is what "good old doc" practiced and what today's dwindling general practitioners (G.P.'s) practice.

He would be the permanent doctor of families, caring for all their members from the cradle to the grave, assuming he outlived them, personally treating their less complicated ills, calling in appropriate specialists for the really complicated ones, giving them period checkups to keep them in the pink, getting to know them so well he'd be their helpful medical friend unfailingly on call for all life's trials.

The difference would be that he'd have a specialist's education in the generalities of family practice which today's general practitioners didn't have although those who are members of the American Academy of General Practice (AAGP) are required to provide periodic proof they're keeping up with medical progress and call themselves family doctors.

To acquire this education, the medical school graduate would take up a three-year hospital residency in family medicine and learn practical applications of pediatrics, internal medicine, obstetrics, gynecology, psychiatry and surgery but not in such depth as to qualify for any of those specialties. He'd also be exposed to psychology and other behavioral sciences.

DETAILED PROGRAM

The detailed formal program has been approved by the AAGP which with 31,000 members is second only to the American Medical Association as a medical society. It is expected to be approved by the AMA House of Delegates in Miami Beach next week and then it will come up before the AMA's Congress on Medical Education in February. The congress probably will approve, if not in 1969, then in 1970, and that will make family practice the 20th recognized medical speciality.

IN HOME WATER

Soviet Union Begins New Era In Subs, But Still Far Behind

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union stands at the beginning of a new era in its development of ballistic missile submarines. But by U.S. standards it still has far to go.

The Russians have recently built a few nuclear-powered submarines which the U.S. Navy regards as near copies of its own Polaris vessels.

So far these have operated in home waters. They have not sailed within missile range of the United States.

16 LAUNCH TUBES

The new Russian subs have 16 launch tubes each, the same as Polaris subs. Soviet ballistic missile subs already in operation have at most three launchers each, and many of these fire missiles with ranges of only a few hundred miles.

The Russians have built a new missile to go with their new submarine. Its range is said to be at least that of the early Polaris missiles. The range of the Polaris A-1, now obsolete, was 1,200 nautical miles.

The Polaris A-2 and A-3, both now in use, have ranges of 1,500 and 2,500 nautical miles respectively, according to U.S. Navy publications. The Poseidon, designed for the 1970's will go farther.

The ballistic sub programs have developed very differently in the two countries. The United States launched its first Polaris submarine, the George Washington, in 1959, and in 1967, completed its present fleet of 41 Polaris vessels, carrying a total of 656 missiles.

FLEET OF 50

The latest "Janes Fighting Ships" credits Russia with 15 nuclear-powered and 35 diesel ballistic missile subs. Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford estimates the Soviet undersea force in terms of missiles—75 to 80.

The Polaris fleet is thus a present-tense deterrent. The Soviet fleet would have to be moved into position before it could be used in nuclear war. This movement could be detected by underwater listening devices. And this would be one of the ways the U.S. would be warned of Soviet war preparations.

The United States considers its three nuclear forces—land-based missiles, manned bombers and submarines — as each capable alone of inflicting enough damage on the Soviet Union so as to constitute an independent deterrent.

Russia's submarine force still forms a very small part of its strategic power, which lies mainly in its 900 land-based missiles.

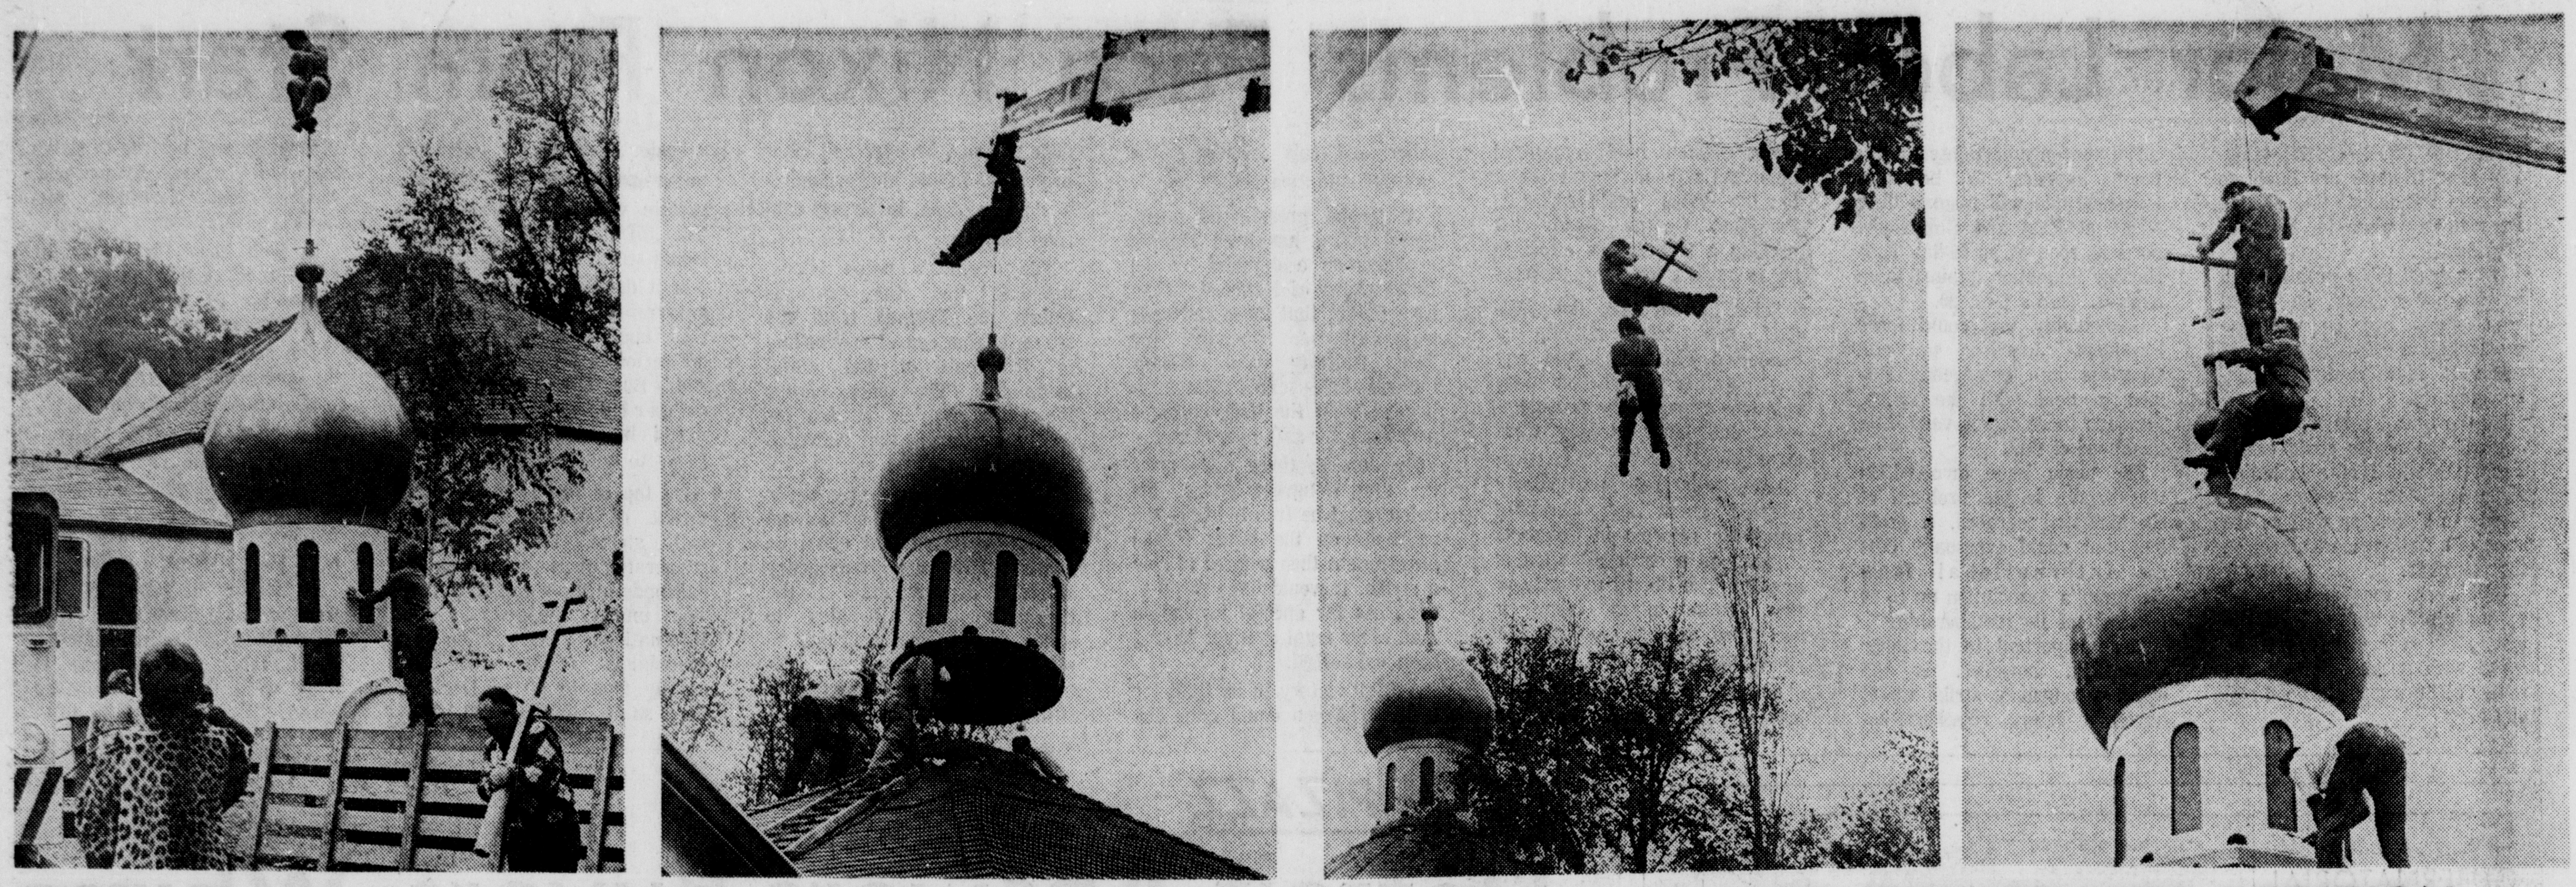
Though it has the largest overall submarine fleet in the world—360 subs of all ocean-going categories—Russia has been slow to develop the technology of far-flung submarine operations. But it is steadily working on extending the distances its subs can operate.

What is the United States doing about it? This country has already, in recent years, taken steps to reduce the take-off delay of U.S. bombers in an alert situation, since one purpose of a small submarine missile force could be to try to catch nuclear bombers on the ground.

FOR THE FUTURE

For the future, the United States has options which it could take off the shelf depending on how the Soviet threat develops. If the United States decides to install Sprint defense missiles to protect its land-based missile force, it may have to design the radars controlling the Sprints so they can look to sea as well as toward the approach routes overland.

Another U.S. option would be to put more resources into antisubmarine warfare.



NEW LANDMARK SWINGS INTO POSITION

Goodness, Mercy Of God Key Thanksgiving Themes

By LOUIS CASSELS
U. P. International

"It is good to give thanks to the Lord," the Bible declares.

Why?

What purpose is served when a human creature turns in gratitude to his creator?

The wrong answer is that rites of Thanksgiving are necessary to appease a touchy deity. It is an insult to God to treat him like a stingy giver who may cut off his benefactions if we fail to display proper appreciation.

It's amazing how many "religious" people seem to think of Thanksgiving as an onerous duty, to be undertaken out of prudential regard for the divine wrath which may fall upon those who neglect it.

Jesus rebuked this attitude. He reminded his disciples that even human parents, with all of their shortcomings, usually are unselfish enough to provide for their children's welfare without demanding anything—including expressions of gratitude—in return. God, he added, is infinitely more willing than the best of earthly fathers to give without strings.

Another widespread attitude views Thanksgiving as an act in which we acknowledge, gladly or grudgingly as the case may be, that there may be some good things in our lives which are not directly traceable to our own hard work and other virtues.

The pitfall in this approach is that those who take it are apt to give God credit for good luck while nursing secret grudges against him for any bad luck that befalls them. In either event, they run the risk of attributing to express divine volition events which result from the random workings of a natural order in which God has seen fit, for our soul's health, to leave room for chance, accidents, uncertainty, danger and pain, as well as undeserved prosperity, health, happiness, love, truth and beauty.

If gratitude is not an emotion to be conjured up by "counting our blessings" (and trying to forget our troubles), what is it?

The biblical answer is that true Thanksgiving—the only kind that can possibly matter a whit to God or to us—is a spontaneous response of our hearts to the conviction that God loves us. Its spirit is perfectly expressed in the ancient Jewish prayer found at the beginning of several Old Testament psalms:

"O give thanks to the Lord, for he is good;

"His steadfast love endures forever."

Another way of putting it is that Thanksgiving is a celebration of the goodness and mercy of God, on the part of one who has experienced that goodness and mercy at first hand in his own life.

It should be noted that belief in God's kindness is not confined to persons who are conspicuously endowed with material "blessings." On the contrary, it very often is the midst of pain, trouble, need or despair that a person becomes most certainly aware of the inexplicable love in whose presence all else seems unimportant.

It is indeed good to give thanks to the Lord. For Thanksgiving is the other face of faith. You can't have one without the other.

Viet War Major Convention Topic

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Vietnam War and the crisis in the cities dominated resolutions taken up at the recent convention of the American Lutheran Church.

Most vigorous deliberations dealt with a proposal asking for approval of "selective conscientious objection," under which Congress would be asked to provide alternate service for those who object to particular wars as unjust. The resolution was referred back for study.

Session Of Council Is Tomorrow

Annual meeting of the Marin County Council of Churches will be held at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Community Congregational Church of Tiburon, 145 Rock Hill Drive.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Robert Lee, professor of social ethics at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Rev. Henry Kent, pastor of St. Luke's Presbyterian Church of San Rafael and president of the council, will preside at which time brief reports of council work will be presented and the annual election of officers will be held.

Preceding the annual session a pancaker supper will be served.

A World Congress On Evangelism Slated Next Year

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—About 8,000 religious leaders from throughout North America are expected to attend a World Congress on Evangelism, to be held at the Minneapolis Auditorium Sept. 8-14, 1969.

The meeting is a U.S. counterpart of the 1966 World Congress on Evangelism, held in Berlin.

The seven-day program will focus attention on the need of America for the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The Minneapolis Congress is one of several planned since the Berlin session. An African Congress was held in July this year and one is planned in Latin America early in 1969.

CATHOLIC WOMEN

Theme Announced For Conference

"Future of Adult Religious Education in the Archdiocese of San Francisco," will be the theme for the quarterly conference of the San Francisco Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women to be held Dec. 7 at Dominican College in San Rafael.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. with a business meeting following at 9:30 a.m. At 10:30 a.m. delegates will break for discussion sessions.

Morning topics will include enrichment of the mature Christian's life, role of instructional television, approaches in the 'inner city" and parent and family centered education.

The afternoon program will be focused on four county workshops moderated by priest coordinators in the field of adult education. The directors will be Revs. Matthew Sullivan, San Francisco; Loren Dwyer, San Mateo; William McGuiness, Santa Clara, and John McMullen, Marin.

General leader will be Rev. William R. Lowery, director of adult education for the archdiocese.

Bellringers Get Rained Out

RATTERY, England (UPI)—The bells of St. Mary's never ring when it rains. Water pours through holes in the spire and soaks the 10 bellringers despite their raincoats and umbrellas. How the little parish has decided to spend $31,000 for repairs, including the spire.

"It wasn't only the bellringers who suffered," said the Rev. Herbert Knights. "Rainwater sometimes shortcircuited the electricity meters and plunged the church into darkness. It was becoming really dangerous."

Membership Loss

LONDON (AP) — British Baptist churches sustained a membership loss of 5,314 in the last year, compared with a loss of 4,334 in the previous year. Total membership is down to 284,999.

Synod Sets San Mateo Conference

Delegates of the 167 United Presbyterian churches in the Synod of the Golden Gate, which includes Marin County, will meet at San Mateo Junior College in special session on Dec. 7.

Object of the meeting will debate and map plans for a drastic reorganization of the judicatory in order for a more effective ministry, John Keith of Los Altos, synod moderator, said this week.

The new synod, covering 15 counties of northern coastal California, has been operating under provisional rules since the larger Synod of California was divided into three synods, according to geographical alignment last January. The new bylaws, if approved, will go into effect, beginning this coming January.

Among suggestions to be presented will be greater participation of laymen in policies and programs of the synod and establishment of a lay academy, staffed by experts, to inform and prepare laymen for greater church roles.

NEW LANDMARK SWINGS INTO POSITION

Goodness, Mercy Of God Key Thanksgiving Themes

By LOUIS CASSELS
U. P. International

"It is good to give thanks to the Lord," the Bible declares.

Why?

What purpose is served when a human creature turns in gratitude to his creator?

The wrong answer is that rites of Thanksgiving are necessary to appease a touchy deity. It is an insult to God to treat him like a stingy giver who may cut off his benefactions if we fail to display proper appreciation.

It's amazing how many "religious" people seem to think of Thanksgiving as an onerous duty, to be undertaken out of prudential regard for the divine wrath which may fall upon those who neglect it.

Jesus rebuked this attitude. He reminded his disciples that even human parents, with all of their shortcomings, usually are unselfish enough to provide for their children's welfare without demanding anything—including expressions of gratitude—in return. God, he added, is infinitely more willing than the best of earthly fathers to give without strings.

Another widespread attitude views Thanksgiving as an act in which we acknowledge, gladly or grudgingly as the case may be, that there may be some good things in our lives which are not directly traceable to our own hard work and other virtues.

The pitfall in this approach is that those who take it are apt to give God credit for good luck while nursing secret grudges against him for any bad luck that befalls them. In either event, they run the risk of attributing to express divine volition events which result from the random workings of a natural order in which God has seen fit, for our soul's health, to leave room for chance, accidents, uncertainty, danger and pain, as well as undeserved prosperity, health, happiness, love, truth and beauty.

If gratitude is not an emotion to be conjured up by "counting our blessings" (and trying to forget our troubles), what is it?

The biblical answer is that true Thanksgiving—the only kind that can possibly matter a whit to God or to us—is a spontaneous response of our hearts to the conviction that God loves us. Its spirit is perfectly expressed in the ancient Jewish prayer found at the beginning of several Old Testament psalms:

"O give thanks to the Lord, for he is good;

"His steadfast love endures forever."

Another way of putting it is that Thanksgiving is a celebration of the goodness and mercy of God, on the part of one who has experienced that goodness and mercy at first hand in his own life.

It should be noted that belief in God's kindness is not confined to persons who are conspicuously endowed with material "blessings." On the contrary, it very often is the midst of pain, trouble, need or despair that a person becomes most certainly aware of the inexplicable love in whose presence all else seems unimportant.

It is indeed good to give thanks to the Lord. For Thanksgiving is the other face of faith. You can't have one without the other.

Viet War Major Convention Topic

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Vietnam War and the crisis in the cities dominated resolutions taken up at the recent convention of the American Lutheran Church.

Most vigorous deliberations dealt with a proposal asking for approval of "selective conscientious objection," under which Congress would be asked to provide alternate service for those who object to particular wars as unjust. The resolution was referred back for study.

Session Of Council Is Tomorrow

Annual meeting of the Marin County Council of Churches will be held at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Community Congregational Church of Tiburon, 145 Rock Hill Drive.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Robert Lee, professor of social ethics at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Rev. Henry Kent, pastor of St. Luke's Presbyterian Church of San Rafael and president of the council, will preside at which time brief reports of council work will be presented and the annual election of officers will be held.

Preceding the annual session a pancaker supper will be served.

A World Congress On Evangelism Slated Next Year

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—About 8,000 religious leaders from throughout North America are expected to attend a World Congress on Evangelism, to be held at the Minneapolis Auditorium Sept. 8-14, 1969.

The meeting is a U.S. counterpart of the 1966 World Congress on Evangelism, held in Berlin.

The seven-day program will focus attention on the need of America for the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The Minneapolis Congress is one of several planned since the Berlin session. An African Congress was held in July this year and one is planned in Latin America early in 1969.

CATHOLIC WOMEN

Theme Announced For Conference

"Future of Adult Religious Education in the Archdiocese of San Francisco," will be the theme for the quarterly conference of the San Francisco Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women to be held Dec. 7 at Dominican College in San Rafael.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. with a business meeting following at 9:30 a.m. At 10:30 a.m. delegates will break for discussion sessions.

Morning topics will include enrichment of the mature Christian's life, role of instructional television, approaches in the 'inner city" and parent and family centered education.

The afternoon program will be focused on four county workshops moderated by priest coordinators in the field of adult education. The directors will be Revs. Matthew Sullivan, San Francisco; Loren Dwyer, San Mateo; William McGuiness, Santa Clara, and John McMullen, Marin.

General leader will be Rev. William R. Lowery, director of adult education for the archdiocese.

Bellringers Get Rained Out

RATTERY, England (UPI)—The bells of St. Mary's never ring when it rains. Water pours through holes in the spire and soaks the 10 bellringers despite their raincoats and umbrellas. How the little parish has decided to spend $31,000 for repairs, including the spire.

"It wasn't only the bellringers who suffered," said the Rev. Herbert Knights. "Rainwater sometimes shortcircuited the electricity meters and plunged the church into darkness. It was becoming really dangerous."

Membership Loss

LONDON (AP) — British Baptist churches sustained a membership loss of 5,314 in the last year, compared with a loss of 4,334 in the previous year. Total membership is down to 284,999.

Synod Sets San Mateo Conference

Delegates of the 167 United Presbyterian churches in the Synod of the Golden Gate, which includes Marin County, will meet at San Mateo Junior College in special session on Dec. 7.

Object of the meeting will debate and map plans for a drastic reorganization of the judicatory in order for a more effective ministry, John Keith of Los Altos, synod moderator, said this week.

The new synod, covering 15 counties of northern coastal California, has been operating under provisional rules since the larger Synod of California was divided into three synods, according to geographical alignment last January. The new bylaws, if approved, will go into effect, beginning this coming January.

Among suggestions to be presented will be greater participation of laymen in policies and programs of the synod and establishment of a lay academy, staffed by experts, to inform and prepare laymen for greater church roles.

Mariners Nip Sierra In Basketball Debut

That old Sierra College magic almost did in the College of Marin Tars again. Marin always has trouble with the Wolverines from Rocklin, and last night's 82-81 opening-game win was no exception in their basketball season opener at Kentfield.

The young Mariners led by as much as 21 points in the first half and seemed well in control of the game, only to let down and come within a rimmed shot of defeat in the last seconds.

"We've been playing 32-minute games in practice," said Marin coach Cal Riemcke, "and we played well for about that long, then let down. We let them off the hook, but won."

Frosh forward Pat Schafer scored 26 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead both teams in both categories, while 6-foot, 7-inch center Ken Kramer, guard Andre Horn, forwards Tom Seidenberg and Art Goepp and guard Joe Smith also played well.

NICE SHOOTING

Kramer showed quickness and a nice shooting touch, as well as good defensive instincts before fouling out with five minutes to go. Horn shot and passed beautifully, while Seidenberg and Goepp aided Schafer in giving the Tars a strong board game. Smith failed to score but moved the ball well. Riemcke praised all his starters, giving extra credit to Horn, Schafer and Kramer.

Horn made both ends of a two-shot foul with 45 seconds remaining, giving Marin an 82-79 lead, then grabbed the crucial rebound after Sierra's carefully set up last shot bounced off the rim with four seconds left.

EXPECTED MISTAKES

Riemcke felt that his club had played "real well for a first game. You expect mistakes with so many freshmen. We panicked a little and let down after having them on the ropes, but the kids kept their poise. I was really happy with it, although our defense didn't hustle enough. We gave them a lot of shots. You can't go undefeated without winning the first one."

Kramer and Horn each had 17 markers to follow Schafer in the scoring column, while Seidenberg had 14. Gary Forgard, one of three hot outside shooters for Sierra, hit for 15 points to pace the Wolverines.

In the preliminary game, coach Jim Halm's frosh routed Marin Catholic's varsity 91-59 behind 20 points by Daryl Ravani and 16 by Bill Hoge. Mike Murray's 12 paced the Wildcats.

Marin treks to Concord tonight to play Diablo Valley College at 8 o'clock.

Marin Tars' Grid Fortunes Bright Again Next Season

Despite that 20-13 California junior college playoff loss in Fresno Thursday, it's been a gratifying year for College of Marin football coach Dick Read.

His Tars from Kentfield captured a share of the newly created Camino Norte Conference, rang up a 7-2 won-lost record and proved that they could play with the big boys. It was done with a team that was largely a question mark, despite a nucleus of seven tried and true veterans.

The best part of it all may be that Read can look forward to more of the same next year.

GARVIN GONE

True, wonderful Tim Garvin, the Tars' leading ground gainer and scoring wizard, will be gone from the backfield along with Gary Dinkel and alternate quarterback Val Sabuco. Going bye-bye also are linebacker and kicking specialist Bill Hickerson, defensive halfback Karl Stein, an all-leaguer in both Camino Norte and Golden Valley Conference play, ends Len Pieri, Bob Bauman and Sam Crowell, guards Trevor Benedict and Doug Guillon, tackles Rich Woodall and Tom Heacox and linebacker Rusty Poole and some other veteran sophs.

But look what's coming back.

SUPERB RUNNERS

It's enough to make any coach drool. For Read, it could be another banner year.

It could mean another step in the sudden upswing of College of Marin football. A real sign of growth.

Considering that this year's success came in sometimes haphazard ways, the next year looks bright indeed.

'BOYS FOUGHT'

"The boys fought all the time," Read said. "We were sometimes inconsistent, and we didn't always win big. We made mistakes but we always fought."

The switch from the Golden Valley to the Camino Norte Conference proved not to be fatal.

"I was worried about it," he said. "It's a better all-around conference. There are no patsies. After we lost that first one to West Valley, we had our work cut out. And we came back. That 42-20 win over Contra Costa was the best game we played."

The Tars, under the guidance of Read and with real progress already made, seem to be ready for bigger and better things.

COLLEGE GRID

Houston Gets A Taste Of Its Own Medicine

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The scoreboard tally read 25-0 at halftime and the crowd began chanting: "We want 100!"

Houston's high-scoring Cougars had answered the same call less than a week earlier, but this time they hardly took notice. They couldn't afford to . . . not when the next point they scored would be their first.

Florida State, triggered by the pitch-catch combination of Bill Cappleman and Ron Sellers, beat Houston to the draw last night and whipped the Nation's No. 1 offensive team 40-20 in a prelude to the final fling of the college football season.

The 10th-ranked Cougars, who riddled Tulsa 100-6 last Saturday night after pasting Idaho 77-3 the previous weekend, didn't get their attack off the ground against the Seminoles until Cappleman and Sellers had virtually locked up the game with a first-half aerial blitz.

Cappleman wound up hitting on 25 of 34 passes for 353 yards and four touchdowns while Sellers, the all-time leader in yardage on pass receptions, caught 14 for 214 yards and one score . . . a 62-yard bomb. The victory gave the Seminoles, who meet Louisiana State in the Dec. 30 Peach Bowl, an 8-2 regular season windup.

Houston finished with a 6-2-2 mark.

Today's top games pitted Army against Navy and No. 9 Notre Dame vs. USC at Los Angeles in a nationally televised ABC doubleheader.

Alabama and Auburn tangled in another traditional season finale while fourth-ranked Georgia met Georgia Tech, No. 7 Tennessee took on Vanderbilt, Oklahoma played Oklahoma State, Baylor tackled Rice and Boston College met Holy Cross.

$6 Million Pro Golf Tour Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Gardner Dickinson, Jr., president of the American Professional Golfers announced today that 28 tournaments have been signed by the new organization for the 1969 season and 13 additional sponsors have requested contracts.

Including the Masters, the Open and the Bob Hope Tournament, there are 31 tournaments in which APG players are eligible to participate with purses adding up to $4,250,000 he said.

Dickinson said total purses, when the additional 13 tournaments have been signed up, will exceed $6 million. He said "the only two open dates in the first six months will be filled shortly and five additional satellite tournaments, played opposite a major tournament for those who do not qualify for the major tournament, will be announced within a few weeks."

SHARE PURSE

Under the APG rules all players who complete 72 holes will now have a share of the purse. Four per cent of the total purse has been redistributed to finance the new arrangement but first prize will not be affected.

Dickinson said in a $100,000 tournament, for example, the winner would get $20,000 but 50th place finisher would get $200. If 75 players made the cut and completed the 72 holes, each who finished below 50th would receive $160.

Rangers Recall Young Defenseman

NEW YORK (UPI)—Brad Park, a 20-year-old defenseman, has been recalled by the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League from their Buffalo farm club in the American League. Park is expected to play for the Rangers tomorrow night against the Boston Bruins.

Packers Favored Over S.F.

By JIM CHURCH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Green Bay Packers, down but not out, can get back on the track toward a third straight Super Bowl appearance if what is supposed to happen does tomorrow at Kezar Stadium.

The Packers, 5-5-1 in the National Football League Central Division, are favored over the San Francisco 49ers, who have an identical record in the Coastal Division.

Minnesota, leader of the Central Division at 6-5, is an underdog to the Los Angeles Rams.

Green Bay and Minnesota each have two games remaining after this weekend—Green Bay against Baltimore and Chicago, and Minnesota against the 49ers and Philadelphia.

Most of the Packers' troubles this year were caused by injuries.

'BEST SHAPE'

Coach Phil Bengston, a former 49er assistant, says "We're in the best shape of the year." He plans to start quarterback Bart Starr, who gave way to Zeke Bratkowski in last week's 27-7 victory over Washington.

"They are the same old Packers," says 49er coach Dick Nolan. "They don't try to fool you and they just play a waiting game until the opposition commits an error."

Green Bay has been stifling the opposition's passing game with excellent play by the linebackers and defensive backs, says Nolan.

Lee's Best Game Paces Warriors

OAKLAND (AP) — The San Francisco Warriors hope to repeat their scoring barrage against Milwaukee tonight when they meet the Bucks for the second successive night.

The Warriors blasted Milwaukee 140-119 last night on their home floor. The two teams meet tonight at the Oakland Arena.

San Francisco was led by forward Clyde Lee, a three-year National Basketball Association veteran, who had his best night with 35 points. The Bucks' top man was former Warrior Fred Hetzel, with 29 points.

The victory lifted the Warriors to 11-10 for the season, as they kept pace with Los Angeles, the NBA's Western Division leaders. The Lakers defeated Boston last night.

Wilt Calls Win Over Celts 'Turning Point' For Lakers

BOSTON (AP) — The National Basketball Association season is only a few weeks old but Wilt Chamberlain figures the Los Angeles Lakers have passed the turning point.

"This game should be the turning point for us," Chamberlain said last night after the Lakers rallied from a 58-44 deficit and shocked the Celtics 93-92 before a crowd of 14,929, largest NBA turnout in Boston history.

"Certainly this is our most significant win so far," pro basketball's all-time top scorer said. "You can't single out anyone as a key man. Everybody got into it, including guys like Cliff Anderson and Jay Carty, who hardly had been off the bench before."

Chamberlain, who had only 14 points as he concentrated on defense and play-making, disclosed that the Lakers, who had lost two straight, held a team meeting before the game.

SUPERSTARS

"We decided that if our superstars were really superstars, we should be doing better," he said. "So everybody became a superstar after Boston got the big jump on us."

With Jerry West sidelined with flu, superstar Elgin Baylor topped the Lakers with 19 points, four more than Keith Erickson.

However, Mel Counts, one-time understudy to Boston player-coach Bill Russell, and former Providence star Johnny Egan played the key roles in the dramatic second-half comeback. Counts took control of the boards while Egan assumed charge of the attack.

"Egan can really pick up a team late in a game," Los Angeles Coach Bill van Breda Kolff said. "he just hurries, hurries, hurries. That's a way of life with him.

"And Counts was just tremendous. I see he's only credited with eight rebounds, but they were all key grabs. He had to work for all eight."

In other NBA games last night, Cincinnati dropped Detroit 122-112, Baltimore took Phoenix 124-106, San Francisco ripped Milwaukee 140-119 and Chicago dropped San Diego 110-89.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana tripped Los Angeles 108-113, Oakland ripped Kentucky 133-109 and New Orleans nipped Denver 131-128.

Oscar Robertson poured in a season-high 40 points, leading Cincinnati past Detroit. The Big O had 14 in the final period to keep the Royals in front.

Baltimore took over first place in the East by tagging Phoenix with its ninth straight defeat—longest losing streak in the NBA this season.

The Bullets scored 10-straight points to break the game open in the third period. Kevin Loughery's 23 points led Baltimore.

Bob Boozer scored 27 points and Jerry Sloan led a tough Chicago defense that carried the Bulls past San Diego. Elvin Hayes, the Rockets' rookie flash, had 28, but only four in the second half.

Clyde Lee's career-high 35 points led San Francisco past Milwaukee.

Mariners Nip Sierra In Basketball Debut

ij Sports

That old Sierra College magic almost did in the College of Marin Tars again. Marin always has trouble with the Wolverines from Rocklin, and last night's 82-81 opening-game win was no exception in their basketball season opener at Kentfield.

The young Mariners led by as much as 21 points in the first half and seemed well in control of the game, only to let down and come within a rimmed shot of defeat in the last seconds.

"We've been playing 32-minute games in practice," said Marin coach Cal Riemcke, "and we played well for about that long, then let down. We let them off the hook, but won."

Frosh forward Pat Schafer scored 26 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead both teams in both categories, while 6-foot, 7-inch center Ken Kramer, guard Andre Horn, forwards Tom Seidenberg and Art Goepp and guard Joe Smith also played well.

NICE SHOOTING

Kramer showed quickness and a nice shooting touch, as well as good defensive instincts before fouling out with five minutes to go. Horn shot and passed beautifully, while Seidenberg and Goepp aided Schafer in giving the Tars a strong board game. Smith failed to score but moved the ball well. Riemcke praised all his starters, giving extra credit to Horn, Schafer and Kramer.

Horn made both ends of a two-shot foul with 45 seconds remaining, giving Marin an 82-79 lead, then grabbed the crucial rebound after Sierra's carefully set up last shot bounced off the rim with four seconds left.

EXPECTED MISTAKES

Riemcke felt that his club had played "real well for a first game. You expect mistakes with so many freshmen. We panicked a little and let down after having them on the ropes, but the kids kept their poise. I was really happy with it, although our defense didn't hustle enough. We gave them a lot of shots. You can't go undefeated without winning the first one."

Kramer and Horn each had 17 markers to follow Schafer in the scoring column, while Seidenberg had 14. Gary Forgard, one of three hot outside shooters for Sierra, hit for 15 points to pace the Wolverines.

In the preliminary game, coach Jim Halm's frosh routed Marin Catholic's varsity 91-59 behind 20 points by Daryl Ravani and 16 by Bill Hoge. Mike Murray's 12 paced the Wildcats.

Packers Favored Over S.F.

By JIM CHURCH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Green Bay Packers, down but not out, can get back on the track toward a third straight Super Bowl appearance if what is supposed to happen does tomorrow at Kezar Stadium.

The Packers, 5-5-1 in the National Football League Central Division, are favored over the San Francisco 49ers, who have an identical record in the Coastal Division.

Minnesota, leader of the Central Division at 6-5, is an underdog to the Los Angeles Rams.

Green Bay and Minnesota each have two games remaining after this weekend—Green Bay against Baltimore and Chicago, and Minnesota against the 49ers and Philadelphia.

Most of the Packers' troubles this year were caused by injuries.

'BEST SHAPE'

Coach Phil Bengston, a former 49er assistant, says "We're in the best shape of the year." He plans to start quarterback Bart Starr, who gave way to Zeke Bratkowski in last week's 27-7 victory over Washington.

"They are the same old Packers," says 49er coach Dick Nolan. "They don't try to fool you and they just play a waiting game until the opposition commits an error."

Green Bay has been stifling the opposition's passing game with excellent play by the linebackers and defensive backs, says Nolan.

Marin Tars' Grid Fortunes Bright Again Next Season

Despite that 20-13 California junior college playoff loss in Fresno Thursday, it's been a gratifying year for College of Marin football coach Dick Read.

His Tars from Kentfield captured a share of the newly created Camino Norte Conference, rang up a 7-2 won-lost record and proved that they could play with the big boys. It was done with a team that was largely a question mark, despite a nucleus of seven tried and true veterans.

The best part of it all may be that Read can look forward to more of the same next year.

GARVIN GONE

True, wonderful Tim Garvin, the Tars' leading ground gainer and scoring wizard, will be gone from the backfield along with Gary Dinkel and alternate quarterback Val Sabuco. Going bye-bye also are linebacker and kicking specialist Bill Hickerson, defensive halfback Karl Stein, an all-leaguer in both Camino Norte and Golden Valley Conference play, ends Len Pieri, Bob Bauman and Sam Crowell, guards Trevor Benedict and Doug Guillon, tackles Rich Woodall and Tom Heacox and linebacker Rusty Poole and some other veteran sophs.

But look what's coming back.

SUPERB RUNNERS

It's enough to make any coach drool. For Read, it could be another banner year.

It could mean another step in the sudden upswing of College of Marin football. A real sign of growth.

Considering that this year's success came in sometimes haphazard ways, the next year looks bright indeed.

'BOYS FOUGHT'

"The boys fought all the time," Read said. "We were sometimes inconsistent, and we didn't always win big. We made mistakes but we always fought."

The switch from the Golden Valley to the Camino Norte Conference proved not to be fatal.

"I was worried about it," he said. "It's a better all-around conference. There are no patsies. After we lost that first one to West Valley, we had our work cut out. And we came back. That 42-20 win over Contra Costa was the best game we played."

The Tars, under the guidance of Read and with real progress already made, seem to be ready for bigger and better things.

COLLEGE GRID

Houston Gets A Taste Of Its Own Medicine

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The scoreboard tally read 25-0 at halftime and the crowd began chanting: "We want 100!"

Houston's high-scoring Cougars had answered the same call less than a week earlier, but this time they hardly took notice. They couldn't afford to . . . not when the next point they scored would be their first.

Florida State, triggered by the pitch-catch combination of Bill Cappleman and Ron Sellers, beat Houston to the draw last night and whipped the Nation's No. 1 offensive team 40-20 in a prelude to the final fling of the college football season.

The 10th-ranked Cougars, who riddled Tulsa 100-6 last Saturday night after pasting Idaho 77-3 the previous weekend, didn't get their attack off the ground against the Seminoles until Cappleman and Sellers had virtually locked up the game with a first-half aerial blitz.

Cappleman wound up hitting on 25 of 34 passes for 353 yards and four touchdowns while Sellers, the all-time leader in yardage on pass receptions, caught 14 for 214 yards and one score . . . a 62-yard bomb. The victory gave the Seminoles, who meet Louisiana State in the Dec. 30 Peach Bowl, an 8-2 regular season windup.

Houston finished with a 6-2-2 mark.

Today's top games pitted Army against Navy and No. 9 Notre Dame vs. USC at Los Angeles in a nationally televised ABC doubleheader.

Alabama and Auburn tangled in another traditional season finale while fourth-ranked Georgia met Georgia Tech, No. 7 Tennessee took on Vanderbilt, Oklahoma played Oklahoma State, Baylor tackled Rice and Boston College met Holy Cross.

$6 Million Pro Golf Tour Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Gardner Dickinson, Jr., president of the American Professional Golfers announced today that 28 tournaments have been signed by the new organization for the 1969 season and 13 additional sponsors have requested contracts.

Including the Masters, the Open and the Bob Hope Tournament, there are 31 tournaments in which APG players are eligible to participate with purses adding up to $4,250,000 he said.

Dickinson said total purses, when the additional 13 tournaments have been signed up, will exceed $6 million. He said "the only two open dates in the first six months will be filled shortly and five additional satellite tournaments, played opposite a major tournament for those who do not qualify for the major tournament, will be announced within a few weeks."

SHARE PURSE

Under the APG rules all players who complete 72 holes will now have a share of the purse. Four per cent of the total purse has been redistributed to finance the new arrangement but first prize will not be affected.

Dickinson said in a $100,000 tournament, for example, the winner would get $20,000 but 50th place finisher would get $200. If 75 players made the cut and completed the 72 holes, each who finished below 50th would receive $160.

Lee's Best Game Paces Warriors

OAKLAND (AP) — The San Francisco Warriors hope to repeat their scoring barrage against Milwaukee tonight when they meet the Bucks for the second successive night.

The Warriors blasted Milwaukee 140-119 last night on their home floor. The two teams meet tonight at the Oakland Arena.

San Francisco was led by forward Clyde Lee, a three-year National Basketball Association veteran, who had his best night witn 35 points. The Bucks' top man was former Warrior Fred Hetzel, with 29 points.

The victory lifted the Warriors to 11-10 for the season, as they kept pace with Los Angeles, the NBA's Western Division leaders. The Lakers defeated Boston last night.

BOWLING NOTES

Triplicate Time On Marin's Lanes

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It was triplicate time this past week in Marin County bowling. Joyce Larson rolled three identical 148s in the Ladies' 622 Classic at Greenbrae Lanes, Lila Giambra had a triplicate 145 series in the Sleepers League at San Rafael's Country Club Bowl, and Nancy Cramer bowled three 104s in the Thursday Late Mixed at Nave Lanes in North Marin.

Trying to make it a team affair, Gotelli's Equipment Rental came a pin shy of a triplicate in the Gutter Belles League at Greenbrae Lanes, 555-555-556.

DOWN THE LANES — Bert Tynes wasn't overjoyed with that strike she got in the eighth frame the other night in the Hi-Lo's League at Country Club Bowl — it spoiled her all-spare game. . . Bus Cramer had his high game when he racked up a 234 in the Ball and Chain League at Nave Lanes, best of the night. . . At Country Club Bowl's San Quentin Mixed League, Georgia Tsigelatos rolled her first 200 and it was right on the nose, and Carl Adams had a 246. . . It was first time over the mark for Marilyn Adams, also, in the Gutter Belles League at Greenbrae, 214, some 79 pins better than her average.

STRIKES TO SPARE —Dick White's 671 series in Country Club Bowl's 905 Classic was topped by a 279 game (seven strikes, a spare, then four more strikes). . . Charlie Bogni had a 261 game and 645 series to top the action in Country Club Bowl's 670 Scratch. . . Bill Rhodes is getting back to form, as evidenced by those 235 and 244 games in the 905 Classic. . . In the Friday Nite Leftovers League at Nave Lanes, Reba Wallace and Dick Anthony each spared 6-7 splits and Marian Calbreth (123 avg.) bowled her first 200, a 210 and wound up with a 503 series.

THIS AND THAT — Cy Davey, 158 average, rolled a 595 series and 210 game to steal some honors in the Marin County Mixed Travel League at Nave Lanes. . . Marie Hensler converted the 4-7-10 split in the Ladies 622 Classic. . . Ruth Soldavini knocked down the 6-7 split in the Early Lutheran League and Pat Costello banged out a 242 game and 630 series. . . In the Northern California Merchants League at Greenbrae Lanes, Arne Dryer rolled a 254 line, league secretary Gordon Jennings converted the 6-7-10, and John Thomas showed his fighting spirit when he converted three of the eight splits he had during the night's bowling.

Pancho Vs. Australian In Finals

Gonzales, the Los Angeles veteran, took just 33 minutes to beat Spain's Andres Gimeno 6-1, 6-2 last night and join Roche in the finals. Roche beat countryman Rod Laver 6-4, 6-3 in the other semifinal.

Roche's victory over Laver reversed the result of their only previous meeting when Laver won the Wimbledon Open title in straight sets. Roche also lost in straight sets to Gonzales at Forest Hills in their only previous meeting, so Pancho had better watch out.

LAVER VS. GIMENO

Laver and Gimeno meet for third place before Roche and Gonzales battle for the title. First place is worth $5,000, second place $3,000, third $1,800 and fourth $1,400.

In doubles, Gonzales and Ken Rosewall of Australia will face Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis for the title.

Gonzales and Rosewall beat Roche and John Newcombe of Australia 9-7, 6-1 and Ralston and Buchholz beat Laver and Gimeno 11-9, 6-3.

Oaks Snare 10th Win In A Row

OAKLAND (AP)—There are the National Basketball Association, the American Basketball Association and the Oakland Oaks, who are in a league of their own.

The Oaks won their 10th straight ABA game last night to go 6½ games ahead of Los Angeles in the Western Division by beating Kentucky 133-109.

The victory gave the Oaks a 16-2 record, best in pro basketball.

Rick Barry scored almost at will, pumping in 45 points. The Oaks erupted for 46 points in the second period and never were in serious trouble after that.

The Oaks, ending a road trip in which they won four games in five nights, get a rest until Monday night when they entertain Dallas in the Oakland Auditorium.

Otto In Line For Discipline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle said yesterday he is considering disciplinary action against Otto Graham because the Washington coach criticized officiating during the Redskins' game with the Dallas Cowboys Thursday.

Graham, after his Redskins lost to the Cowboys 29-20, angrily denounced the officiating and said Washington was robbed by calls during the contest.

Rozelle said the fine, which could be levied against Graham for public criticism of officials, has no fixed limits.

All Eyes On UCLA, Purdue In College Cage Opener

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most of the West Coast's major college schools begin their 1968-69 basketball seasons tonight but the eyes of the college hoop world will be on UCLA's Bruins, out to win a third successive national crown.

The Bruins beat Purdue 73-71 when the teams opened last season at Lafayette, Ind.

Oregon is at Utah, Oregon State meets the University of San Francisco, Southern California is at Brigham Young, Washington State plays host to Idaho and Stanford entertains Northwestern to round out the nonconference games of Pacific-8 teams.

West Coast Athletic Conference teams in action are Pacific, which plays host to Hayward State; St. Mary's, which entertains Fresno State; Pepperdine, which is at Lamar Tech; Loyola's Lions, who host Occidental; UC Santa Barbara's Gauchos, who play host to Cal Poly San Luis Obispo; and Santa Clara, which is home to Nevada.

Other coast teams opening their season include Portland, at home to San Francisco State, and Sacramento State, which plays at Seattle.

Pacific-8 member California plays a game with its alumni and Washington opens its schedule Dec. 6 at Utah. San Jose State hosts Fresno State on Monday night.

Rams Battle Minnesota In Big Game

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Minnesota Vikings, staggered by Baltimore and floored by the flu in the past week, hope to make a full recovery in the National Football League championship scramble tomorrow.

But they're liable to find Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen and the rest of the Los Angeles Rams' medicine men a bit too much to swallow.

Of 20 Minnesota players stricken with the flu before and after last Sunday's 21-9 loss to Baltimore, five regulars were reported still ailing yesterday as Coach Bud Grant prepped the Vikings for their date with the rugged Rams.

But Grant expected all hands to be available when the two clubs put their division title hopes on the line at Minneapolis-St. Paul. And, if the Vikings' boss has his way, neither the Rams nor the virus will bug his team.

"It's not going to help afterward to say, 'Next time if everyone is in top shape things will be different,'" he said. "We think we can do certain things to beat this team, just as we feel we can beat every team we play."

The Vikings, 6-5, lead fast-closing Green Bay by one-half game in the Central Division struggle. The Rams, 9-1-1, trail the Colts by one-half length in the Coastal derby.

FAINT HOPES

The New York Giants try to keep their faint pennant hopes alive against Cleveland's streaking Century leaders. The Giants are 2½ games behind Capitol front-runner Dallas with three to play. Green Bay visits San Francisco, Baltimore entertains Atlanta, St. Louis is at Pittsburgh and Chicago at New Orleans.

American Football League matchups are Miami at New York, Cincinnati at Boston and San Diego at Denver.

Grant was optimistic yesterday, although defensive ends Carl Eller and Jim Marshall, receiver Gene Washington, running back Jim Lindsay and return specialist Bobby Bryant sat out the Vikings' practice session with the flu.

"Right now, everybody should be able to play," the coach said. "Of course, there might be somebody else new with flu Sunday."

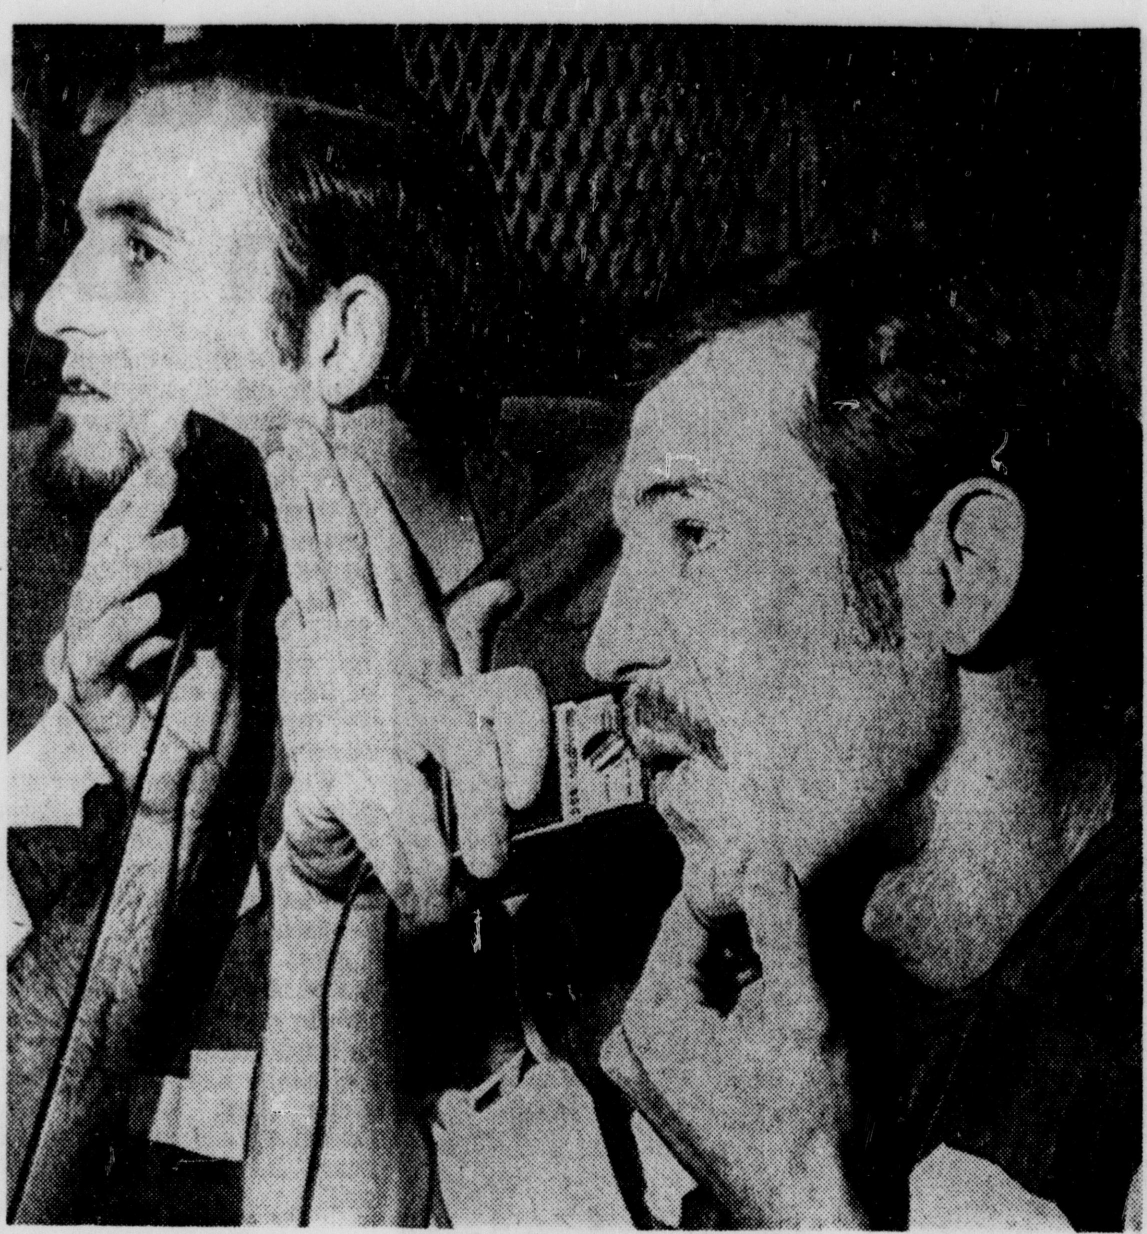
The Vikings' front four of Eller, Marshall, Gary Larsen and Alan Page has thrown opposing quarterbacks for losses 40 times to share the league lead with the Rams' defensive quarter. The Vikes have a 7-5-1 edge in the series and Los Angeles is winless in six previous trips to Minnesota.

Kicking specialists Fred Cox of Minnesota and Bruce Gossett of the Rams could be the key men if the clubs' powerful defensive units continue to click. Cox booted field goals of 43, 36 and 31 yards against the Colts last week while Gossett beat the Giants 24-21 with a 36-yarder in the closing seconds.

Knockout String Ends For Amaya

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Roberto Amaya, 148, had his string of 14 straight knockouts broken last night but ran his record to 15-1 with a unanimous 10-round decision over Manny Lugo, 144, of Los Angeles.

The Buenos Aires fighter scored the fight's only knockdown when he sent Lugo sprawling with a pair of hooks.



NO PENALTY FOR CLIPPING

A promise is a promise and these New York Jets players whisk away a six-week growth of beard in locker room at Shea Stadium, N.Y. The bearded jet setters vowed they would not touch a hair on their chinny-chin-chins until their team clinched the Eastern Division title of the American Football League. They did just that Thursday and the first shavers on the team were defensive back Bake Turner (left) and flanker back Jim Hudson. (UPI Telephoto)

Year's Best Crowd Sees Seals Triumph

OAKLAND (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens are thinking twice about forcing star goalie Gump Worsley to ride airplanes.

Worsley, who stayed home because he didn't want to make the flight west, was sorely missed last night as the Oakland Seals edged the first-place Canadiens of the National Hockey League East Division, 5-4.

The Seals moved into a second-place tie with Los Angeles in the West Division.

With Rogatien Vachon in the nets for Montreal, the Seals, cheered on by 8,501, their largest home crowd of the season, took a 2-1 lead on goals by Mike Laughton and Ted Hampson, while Jean Beliveau scored for Montreal.

Jacque Lemarie tied it at 11:43 but three minutes later a shot by Oakland's George Swarbrick hit Vachon under the left eye, putting him out of the game.

Tony Esposito, recently called up from the minors, took over, and the Seals fired six shots at him. Two, by Hampson and Bill Hicke, went in to give the Seals a 4-2 advantage.

Hicke opened the third period scoring to make it 5-2 for Oakland before Montreal rallied with Beliveau scoring again and Gilles Tremblay tallying at 18:23 of the third period.

The Seals opened a five-game home stand and play Pittsburgh tomorrow night.

Montreal plays Chicago tomorrow night.

Andretti's Record Wins '300' Pole

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Mario Andretti, the veteran race driver from Nazareth, Pa., still has 300 miles to drive but already he can see the pot of gold waiting for him.

Andretti qualified in record time for the pole position yesterday as drivers earned berths for the Rex Mays 300, final race on the U.S. Auto Club tour. Mario, favored to win the race, also owns a 308-point lead in the standings for top driver in the country.

Even a fifth-place in the Rex Mays would give Andretti the title. The race has a total prize of $85,000, second richest on the USAC circuit.

Mario's speed in earning the pole position yesterday was 118.331 miles an hour, topping the course record of 117.735 set last year by Costa Mesa driver Dan Gurney.

NEAR RECORD

Gurney also broke his old record with a speed of 118.286 and was second yesterday. A. J. Foyt of Houston was third in 116.781.

Bobby Unser, second to Andretti in national driver standings, was fourth in qualifying at a speed of 115.157. His brother Al was next at 114.649. Both Unsers are from Albuquerque, N.M.

It's the last go-round for the turbine cars since rule changes have made running them almost impractical. But Art Pollard, in an Andy Granatelli Special, was next in qualifying at 114.565. Jerry Titus was next at 114.523 and Joe Leonard, in the only other turbine entered, followed at 114.313.

The European style of qualifying was used in which a driver can make as many circuits of the 2.6-mile road course as he likes and his best single lap is counted.

The race is scheduled to start at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

Novato Wrestlers Win 37th Straight

Novato High School's wrestling team won its 37th straight dual meet Thursday at Novato but it didn't come easy.

The Hornets defeated John F. Kennedy High School of Fremont, 27-26, coming from a 13-0 deficit to win, with Tom Zechlin's pin at 191 pounds clinching the victory.

Redwood, San Rafael Grab Wins

Redwood of Larkspur and San Rafael chalked up non-league basketball victories last night, both of them winning impressively.

The Giants ran their record to 2-0 in getting help from unexpected quarters in a 58-49 win over Lincoln of San Francisco at Redwood. San Rafael bounced back from an opening-game loss to whip Napa, 61-38, at Napa.

The Giants got only 14 points out of the duo of Jerry Piro and Roger Smith, who had combined for 42 points against Santa Rosa, but Jim Peters and Skip Corsini picked up the slack with Peters getting 16 points and Corsini 14.

Redwood trailed after a quarter, 17-11 but, with Peters and Corsini getting six points each, they bombed Lincoln, 21-6, in the second period to coast on in.

Forrest Pedlar came off the bench to lead rebounders with 11 carroms.

San Rafael dominated the boards against Napa, outrebounding the losers, 64-37 and got great work out of Roger Thomas (15 points and 17 rebounds) and Ray Taylor (12 points, 14 rebounds).

Bill Sleezer had 11 rebounds and guard Rich Nave contributed nine assists as the Bulldogs broke away from a fairly close 30-21 halftime edge.

Hockey Fans Can Easily Point Out Bad Players

OAKLAND—There's no other sport in which a performer's glaring errors are most consistently noticed than hockey.

In football there's too much bunching to spot boo-boos. Basketball, too, is getting to be an overcrowded game with all those big fellows toiling on such a little piece of wood. True, you can see a baseball player commit a boot afield or strike out on a bad pitch. But the baseballer is not as consistently active as the hockey player.

This is part of hockey's charm, for the few who have shown any interest in discovering it over here. The fan automatically knows — even if his knowledge of the game is limited — who's performing well and who's lousy.

TAKE THE Billy Harris case. He used to play for the Oakland Seals. He won't anymore — ever, or at least as long as Frank Selke is general manager.

Harris is 33, not altogether old for pro hockey, and a handsome, quietly pleasant fellow. He had performed with some measure of capability for Toronto for nine seasons before joining the Seals in their first National Hockey League campaign a year ago.

But he never seemed to get started last season. Midway through the year, he walked away and was suspended. The surface story was that Harris didn't enjoy serving under general manager-coach Bert Olmstead. As who did?

BILLY RETURNED to the club and performed rather well during the stretch. He figured highly in the Seals' plans for this year. He had to — for Oakland traded away another center, Charlie Burns, who'd been loved by the Bay Area's tiny hockey legion for several minor league years.

New coach Fred Glover probably would better suit Harris. All might be well; Harris might score 20 or so goals. After all, he'd slapped in a dozen in the fragmented 1967-68 season.

IT DIDN'T work out. As a playmaker, Harris wasn't — even when moved to the same line with an ex-teammate, the very competent Gary Jarrett.

The fans, and the Seal management, didn't resent Harris' lack of scoring punch, however, as much as his inability to mix it up. Harris appeared to deign any physical contact. If Harris had the puck and an opponent neared, Harris soon didn't have the puck.

WHICH WAS strange, for Billy had served the Maple Leafs on a checking line — the threesome that's sent on the ice for defensive purposes.

Call it shell shock or what you will, Billy Harris simply had no desire to check. He was no longer a hockey player (and he'd scored zero goals this year).

IT'S MUCH like a baserunner showing no willingness to take out the pivotman on a double play — or a defensive end not rushing the passer for fear he'll get bumped en route to the backfield.

But Harris' fault was more exposed. During his turn on the ice — every four or five minutes — he would be witnessed falling back. Fans had little patience, and in their catcalls were quite cruel.

SO SELKE cut Billy Harris — a fellow who'd played in more than 650 big league hockey games.

Oakland needs hitters. As long as they're losing, they must at least lose aggressively. That's all Selke or anyone else can ask. And Billy Harris wasn't answering.

BOWLING NOTES

Triplicate Time On Marin's Lanes

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It was triplicate time this past week in Marin County bowling. Joyce Larson rolled three identical 148s in the Ladies' 622 Classic at Greenbrae Lanes, Lila Giambra had a triplicate 145 series in the Sleepers League at San Rafael's Country Club Bowl, and Nancy Cramer bowled three 104s in the Thursday Late Mixed at Nave Lanes in North Marin.

Trying to make it a team affair, Gotelli's Equipment Rental came a pin shy of a triplicate in the Gutter Belles League at Greenbrae Lanes, 555-555-556.

DOWN THE LANES — Bert Tynes wasn't overjoyed with that strike she got in the eighth frame the other night in the Hi-Lo's League at Country Club Bowl — it spoiled her all-spare game. . . Bus Cramer had his high game when he racked up a 234 in the Ball and Chain League at Nave Lanes, best of the night. . . At Country Club Bowl's San Quentin Mixed League, Georgia Tsigelatos rolled her first 200 and it was right on the nose, and Carl Adams had a 246. . . It was first time over the mark for Marilyn Adams, also, in the Gutter Belles League at Greenbrae, 214, some 79 pins better than her average.

STRIKES TO SPARE —Dick White's 671 series in Country Club Bowl's 905 Classic was topped by a 279 game (seven strikes, a spare, then four more strikes). . . Charlie Bogni had a 261 game and 645 series to top the action in Country Club Bowl's 670 Scratch. . . Bill Rhodes is getting back to form, as evidenced by those 235 and 244 games in the 905 Classic. . . In the Friday Nite Leftovers League at Nave Lanes, Reba Wallace and Dick Anthony each spared 6-7 splits and Marian Calbreth (123 avg.) bowled her first 200, a 210 and wound up with a 503 series.

THIS AND THAT — Cy Davey, 158 average, rolled a 595 series and 210 game to steal some honors in the Marin County Mixed Travel League at Nave Lanes. . . Marie Hensler converted the 4-7-10 split in the Ladies 622 Classic. . . Ruth Soldavini knocked down the 6-7 split in the Early Lutheran League and Pat Costello banged out a 242 game and 630 series. . . In the Northern California Merchants League at Greenbrae Lanes, Arne Dryer rolled a 254 line, league secretary Gordon Jennings converted the 6-7-10, and John Thomas showed his fighting spirit when he converted three of the eight splits he had during the night's bowling.

Oaks Snare 10th Win In A Row

OAKLAND (AP)—There are the National Basketball Association, the American Basketball Association and the Oakland Oaks, who are in a league of their own.

The Oaks won their 10th straight ABA game last night to go 6½ games ahead of Los Angeles in the Western Division by beating Kentucky 133-109.

The victory gave the Oaks a 16-2 record, best in pro basketball.

Rick Barry scored almost at will, pumping in 45 points. The Oaks erupted for 46 points in the second period and never were in serious trouble after that.

The Oaks, ending a road trip in which they won four games in five nights, get a rest until Monday night when they entertain Dallas in the Oakland Auditorium.

Otto In Line For Discipline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle said yesterday he is considering disciplinary action against Otto Graham because the Washington coach criticized officiating during the Redskins' game with the Dallas Cowboys Thursday.

Graham, after his Redskins lost to the Cowboys 29-20, angrily denounced the officiating and said Washington was robbed by calls during the contest.

Rozelle said the fine, which could be levied against Graham for public criticism of officials, has no fixed limits.

TENNIS

Pancho Vs. Australian In Finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Pancho Gonzales could be in trouble today in his championship match against Australia's Tony Roche for the $5,000 first prize in the Madison Square Garden Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Gonzales, the Los Angeles veteran, took just 33 minutes to beat Spain's Andres Gimeno 6-1, 6-2 last night and join Roche in the finals. Roche beat countryman Rod Laver 6-4, 6-3 in the other semifinal.

Roche's victory over Laver reversed the result of their only previous meeting when Laver won the Wimbledon Open title in straight sets. Roche also lost in straight sets to Gonzales at Forest Hills in their only previous meeting, so Pancho had better watch out.

LAVER VS. GIMENO

Laver and Gimeno meet for third place before Roche and Gonzales battle for the title. First place is worth $5,000, second place $3,000, third $1,800 and fourth $1,400.

In doubles, Gonzales and Ken Rosewall of Australia will face Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis for the title.

Gonzales and Rosewall beat Roche and John Newcombe of Australia 9-7, 6-1 and Ralston and Buchholz beat Laver and Gimeno 11-9, 6-3.

All Eyes On UCLA, Purdue In College Cage Opener

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most of the West Coast's major college schools begin their 1968-69 basketball seasons tonight but the eyes of the college hoop world will be on UCLA's Bruins, out to win a third successive national crown.

The Bruins beat Purdue 73-71 when the teams opened last season at Lafayette, Ind.

Oregon is at Utah, Oregon State meets the University of San Francisco, Southern California is at Brigham Young, Washington State plays host to Idaho and Stanford entertains Northwestern to round out the nonconference games of Pacific-8 teams.

West Coast Athletic Conference teams in action are Pacific, which plays host to Hayward State; St. Mary's, which entertains Fresno State; Pepperdine, which is at Lamar Tech; Loyola's Lions, who host Occidental; UC Santa Barbara's Gauchos, who play host to Cal Poly San Luis Obispo; and Santa Clara, which is home to Nevada.

Other coast teams opening their season include Portland, at home to San Francisco State, and Sacramento State, which plays at Seattle.

Pacific-8 member California plays a game with its alumni and Washington opens its schedule Dec. 6 at Utah. San Jose State hosts Fresno State on Monday night.

Rams Battle Minnesota In Big Game

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Minnesota Vikings, staggered by Baltimore and floored by the flu in the past week, hope to make a full recovery in the National Football League championship scramble tomorrow.

But they're liable to find Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen and the rest of the Los Angeles Rams' medicine men a bit too much to swallow.

Of 20 Minnesota players stricken with the flu before and after last Sunday's 21-9 loss to Baltimore, five regulars were reported still ailing yesterday as Coach Bud Grant prepped the Vikings for their date with the rugged Rams.

But Grant expected all hands to be available when the two clubs put their division title hopes on the line at Minneapolis-St. Paul. And, if the Vikings' boss has his way, neither the Rams nor the virus will bug his team.

"It's not going to help afterward to say, 'Next time if everyone is in top shape things will be different,'" he said. "We think we can do certain things to beat this team, just as we feel we can beat every team we play."

The Vikings, 6-5, lead fast-closing Green Bay by one-half game in the Central Division struggle. The Rams, 9-1-1, trail the Colts by one-half length in the Coastal derby.

FAINT HOPES

The New York Giants try to keep their faint pennant hopes alive against Cleveland's streaking Century leaders. The Giants are 2½ games behind Capitol front-runner Dallas with three to play. Green Bay visits San Francisco, Baltimore entertains Atlanta, St. Louis is at Pittsburgh and Chicago at New Orleans.

American Football League matchups are Miami at New York, Cincinnati at Boston and San Diego at Denver.

Grant was optimistic yesterday, although defensive ends Carl Eller and Jim Marshall, receiver Gene Washington, running back Jim Lindsay and return specialist Bobby Bryant sat out the Vikings' practice session with the flu.

"Right now, everybody should be able to play," the coach said. "Of course, there might be somebody else new with flu Sunday."

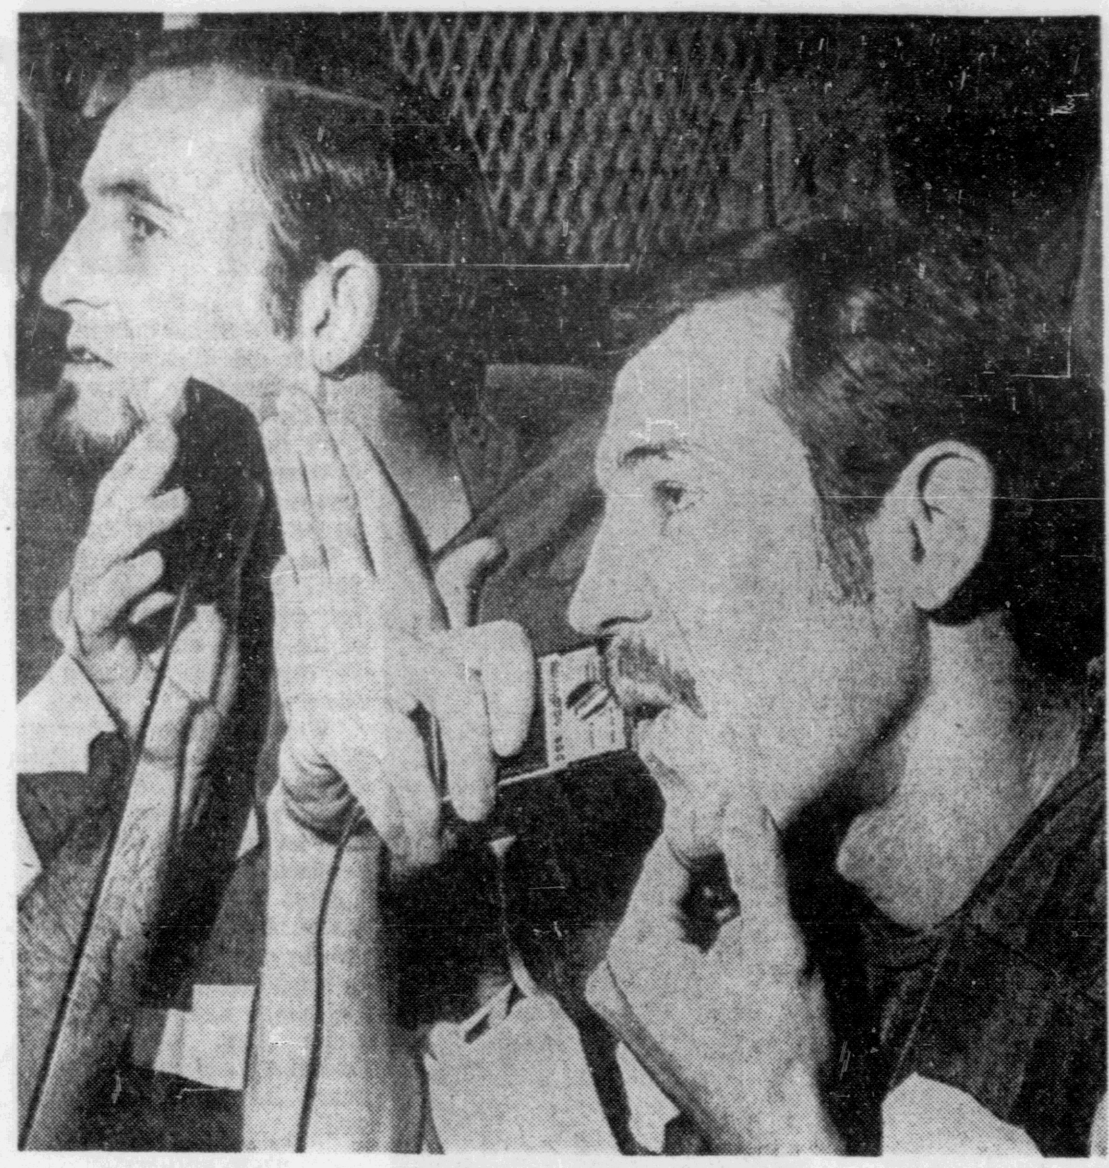
The Vikings' front four of Eller, Marshall, Gary Larsen and Alan Page has thrown opposing quarterbacks for losses 40 times to share the league lead with the Rams' defensive quarter. The Vikes have a 7-5-1 edge in the series and Los Angeles is winless in six previous trips to Minnesota.

Kicking specialists Fred Cox of Minnesota and Bruce Gossett of the Rams could be the key men if the clubs' powerful defensive units continue to click. Cox booted field goals of 43, 36 and 31 yards against the Colts last week while Gossett beat the Giants 24-21 with a 36-yarder in the closing seconds.

Knockout String Ends For Amaya

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Roberto Amaya, 148, had his string of 14 straight knockouts broken last night but ran his record to 15-1 with a unanimous 10-round decision over Manny Lugo, 144, of Los Angeles.

The Buenos Aires fighter scored the fight's only knockdown when he sent Lugo sprawling with a pair of hooks.



NO PENALTY FOR CLIPPING

A promise is a promise and these New York Jets players whisk away a six-week growth of beard in locker room at Shea Stadium, N.Y. The bearded jet setters vowed they would not touch a hair on their chinny-chin-chins until their team clinched the Eastern Division title of the American Football League. They did just that Thursday and the first shavers on the team were defensive back Bake Turner (left) and flanker back Jim Hudson. (UPI Telephoto)

Year's Best Crowd Sees Seals Triumph

OAKLAND (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens are thinking twice about forcing star goalie Gump Worsley to ride airplanes.

Worsley, who stayed home because he didn't want to make the flight west, was sorely missed last night as the Oakland Seals edged the first-place Canadiens of the National Hockey League East Division, 5-4.

The Seals moved into a second-place tie with Los Angeles in the West Division.

With Rogatien Vachon in the nets for Montreal, the Seals, cheered on by 8,501, their largest home crowd of the season, took a 2-1 lead on goals by Mike Laughton and Ted Hampson, while Jean Beliveau scored for Montreal.

Jacque Lemarie tied it at 11:43 but three minutes later a shot by Oakland's George Swarbrick hit Vachon under the left eye, putting him out of the game.

Tony Esposito, recently called up from the minors, took over, and the Seals fired six shots at him. Two, by Hampson and Bill Hicke, went in to give the Seals a 4-2 advantage.

Hicke opened the third period scoring to make it 5-2 for Oakland before Montreal rallied with Beliveau scoring again and Gilles Tremblay tallying at 18:23 of the third period.

The Seals opened a five-game home stand and play Pittsburgh tomorrow night.

Montreal plays Chicago tomorrow night.

Andretti's Record Wins '300' Pole

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Mario Andretti, the veteran race driver from Nazareth, Pa., still has 300 miles to drive but already he can see the pot of gold waiting for him.

Andretti qualified in record time for the pole position yesterday as drivers earned berths for the Rex Mays 300, final race on the U.S. Auto Club tour. Mario, favored to win the race, also owns a 308-point lead in the standings for top driver in the country.

Even a fifth-place in the Rex Mays would give Andretti the title. The race has a total prize of $85,000, second richest on the USAC circuit.

Mario's speed in earning the pole position yesterday was 118.331 miles an hour, topping the course record of 117.735 set last year by Costa Mesa driver Dan Gurney.

NEAR RECORD

Gurney also broke his old record with a speed of 118.286 and was second yesterday. A. J. Foyt of Houston was third in 116.781.

Bobby Unser, second to Andretti in national driver standings, was fourth in qualifying at a speed of 115.157. His brother Al was next at 114.649. Both Unsers are from Albuquerque, N.M.

It's the last go-round for the turbine cars since rule changes have made running them almost impractical. But Art Pollard, in an Andy Granatelli Special, was next in qualifying at 114.565. Jerry Titus was next at 114.523 and Joe Leonard, in the only other turbine entered, followed at 114.313.

The European style of qualifying was used in which a driver can make as many circuits of the 2.6-mile road course as he likes and his best single lap is counted.

The race is scheduled to start at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

Novato Wrestlers Win 37th Straight

Novato High School's wrestling team won its 37th straight dual meet Thursday at Novato but it didn't come easy.

The Hornets defeated John F. Kennedy High School of Fremont, 27-26, coming from a 13-0 deficit to win, with Tom Zechlin's pin at 191 pounds clinching the victory.

Redwood, San Rafael Grab Wins

Redwood of Larkspur and San Rafael chalked up non-league basketball victories last night, both of them winning impressively.

The Giants ran their record to 2-0 in getting help from unexpected quarters in a 58-49 win over Lincoln of San Francisco at Redwood. San Rafael bounced back from an opening-game loss to whip Napa, 61-38, at Napa.

The Giants got only 14 points out of the duo of Jerry Piro and Roger Smith, who had combined for 42 points against Santa Rosa, but Jim Peters and Skip Corsini picked up the slack with Peters getting 16 points and Corsini 14.

Redwood trailed after a quarter, 17-11 but, with Peters and Corsini getting six points each, they bombed Lincoln, 21-6, in the second period to coast on in.

Forrest Pedlar came off the bench to lead rebounders with 11 carroms.

San Rafael dominated the boards against Napa, outrebounding the losers, 64-37 and got great work out of Roger Thomas (15 points and 17 rebounds) and Ray Taylor (12 points, 14 rebounds).

Bill Sleezer had 11 rebounds and guard Rich Nave contributed nine assists as the Bulldogs broke away from a fairly close 30-21 halftime edge.

Hockey Fans Can Easily Point Out Bad Players

OAKLAND—There's no other sport in which a performer's glaring errors are most consistently noticed than hockey.

In football there's too much bunching to spot booboos. Basketball, too, is getting to be an overcrowded game with all those big fellows toiling on such a little piece of wood. True, you can see a baseball player commit a boot afield or strike out on a bad pitch. But the baseballer is not as consistently active as the hockey player.

This is part of hockey's charm, for the few who have shown any interest in discovering it over here. The fan automatically knows — even if his knowledge of the game is limited — who's performing well and who's lousy.

TAKE THE Billy Harris case. He used to play for the Oakland Seals. He won't anymore — ever, or at least as long as Frank Selke is general manager.

Harris is 33, not altogether old for pro hockey, and a handsome, quietly pleasant fellow. He had performed with some measure of capability for Toronto for nine seasons before joining the Seals in their first National Hockey League campaign a year ago.

But he never seemed to get started last season. Midway through the year, he walked away and was suspended. The surface story was that Harris didn't enjoy serving under general manager-coach Bert Olmstead. As who did?

BILLY RETURNED to the club and performed rather well during the stretch. He figured highly in the Seals' plans for this year. He had to — for Oakland traded away another center, Charlie Burns, who'd been loved by the Bay Area's tiny hockey legion for several minor league years.

New coach Fred Glover probably would better suit Harris. All might be well; Harris might score 20 or so goals. After all, he'd slapped in a dozen in the fragmented 1967-68 season.

IT DIDN'T work out. As a playmaker, Harris wasn't — even when moved to the same line with an ex-teammate, the very competent Gary Jarrett.

The fans, and the Seal management, didn't resent Harris' lack of scoring punch, however, as much as his inability to mix it up. Harris appeared to deign any physical contact. If Harris had the puck and an opponent neared, Harris soon didn't have the puck.

WHICH WAS strange, for Billy had served the Maple Leafs on a checking line — the threesome that's sent on the ice for defensive purposes.

Call it shell shock or what you will, Billy Harris simply had no desire to check. He was no longer a hockey player (and he'd scored zero goals this year).

IT'S MUCH like a baserunner showing no willingness to take out the pivotman on a double play — or a defensive end not rushing the passer for fear he'll get bumped en route to the backfield.

But Harris' fault was more exposed. During his turn on the ice — every four or five minutes — he would be witnessed falling back. Fans had little patience, and in their catcalls were quite cruel.

SO SELKE cut Billy Harris — a fellow who'd played in more than 650 big league hockey games.

Oakland needs hitters. As long as they're losing, they must at least lose aggressively. That's all Selke or anyone else can ask. And Billy Harris wasn't answering.

Wall Street Again Nears The Legendary 'Dow 1,000'

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market the past week surged close to the legendary goal of "Dow 1,000."

As stocks staged their fourth straight weekly gain, the closely watched Dow Jones industrial average advanced 18.02 to 985.08, a new high for the year.

The mood in Wall Street was similar to that which prevailed Feb. 9, 1966, when the Dow closed at its historic peak of 995.15, and virtually everyone took it as a foregone conclusion that the average would reach 1,000—but it never did.

A gain such as the past week's would, of course, put the Dow industrials up to and beyond the 1,000 mark. Some analysts believed the momentum of the market was such that this would be attained the coming week.

Others, recalling past occasions with both the Dow and individual stocks when they raced toward a specific goal, believed that profit taking would take over just before the average actually touched the 1,000 mark. Even these, however, thought that the 1,000 level would be reached in a reasonable time.

The stock market advanced on every one of the past week's four trading days, with the market closed for Thanksgiving.

Factors in the rise included renewed confidence in the market because of its ability to withstand the tremors of the European monetary crisis; an influx of European funds into American securities because of the uncertainty surrounding investments tied in with European currencies; and the October rise in the consumer price index, which was the biggest in six years and therefore a further argument for investing in stocks as a hedge against inflation.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market the past week surged close to the legendary goal of "Dow 1,000."

As stocks staged their fourth straight weekly gain, the closely watched Dow Jones industrial average advanced 18.02 to 985.08, a new high for the year.

The mood in Wall Street was similar to that which prevailed Feb. 9, 1966, when the Dow closed at its historic peak of 995.15, and virtually everyone took it as a foregone conclusion that the average would reach 1,000—but it never did.

A gain such as the past week's would, of course, put the Dow industrials up to and beyond the 1,000 mark. Some analysts believed the momentum of the market was such that this would be attained the coming week.

Others, recalling past occasions with both the Dow and individual stocks when they raced toward a specific goal, believed that profit taking would take over just before the average actually touched the 1,000 mark. Even these, however, thought that the 1,000 level would be reached in a reasonable time.

The stock market advanced on every one of the past week's four trading days, with the market closed for Thanksgiving.

Factors in the rise included renewed confidence in the market because of its ability to withstand the tremors of the European monetary crisis; an influx of European funds into American securities because of the uncertainty surrounding investments tied in with European currencies; and the October rise in the consumer price index, which was the biggest in six years and therefore a further argument for investing in stocks as a hedge against inflation.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Wise Use Of 'Redheads' Gives The Opposition A Major Upset

From early boyhood the male of the species is warned about redheads. The warning is not specific: you're just told to watch out for them. We don't have enough space to clear up the whole situation, but today's hand will give the anxious male some idea of how dangerous redheads can be.

IN DUMMY

Declarer won the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts and wondered how he would eventually play the clubs. Would he lead low to the dummy's king, or would he let the jack of clubs ride for a finesse?

Hoping to get some information before committing himself, South led dummy's king of diamonds at the second trick. East and West both played low.

Declarer next led the jack of diamonds, and East again played low. South did likewise, and dummy's jack won the trick.

Abandoning the diamonds, South led a spade to the king and led the jack of clubs for a finesse. It was a good guess, but South had overlooked the redheads.

BRILLIANT RETURN

East won with the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of diamonds and called on his redhead for help by returning the queen of hearts. Declarer had to win in dummy and couldn't get back to his hand to repeat the club finesse. Down one.

South lost his game because of the ferocious attack by the queen of hearts, but he could have saved himself by using his own redhead more wisely. When he led the jack of diamonds from dummy declarer should have played the queen from his own hand.

DIAMOND ENTRY

This would give him a diamond entry to his hand so that he could lead the jack of clubs for a finesse. Later, he could return to his hand with a spade to repeat the trump finesse.

Now that you know how dangerous redheads can be, watch out for them.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠—Q 10 5 3
♥—Q 7 5 3 2
♦—A 6 3
♣—A. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three hearts.

Even though you have five trumps and a singleton you should not jump to four hearts. The hand is much too strong for this kind of shutout bid. If partner wants to make a slam try of any kind you will co-operate with great enthusiasm.

Hoping to get some information before committing himself, South led dummy's king of diamonds at the second trick. East and West both played low.

Abandoning the diamonds, South led a spade to the king and led the jack of clubs for a finesse. It was a good guess, but South had overlooked the redheads.

BRILLIANT RETURN

East won with the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of diamonds and called on his redhead for help by returning the queen of hearts. Declarer had to win in dummy and couldn't get back to his hand to repeat the club finesse. Down one.

South lost his game because of the ferocious attack by the queen of hearts, but he could have saved himself by using his own redhead more wisely. When he led the jack of diamonds from dummy declarer should have played the queen from his own hand.

DIAMOND ENTRY

This would give him a diamond entry to his hand so that he could lead the jack of clubs for a finesse. Later, he could return to his hand with a spade to repeat the trump finesse.

Now that you know how dangerous redheads can be, watch out for them.

U.S. Auditors Hit Medi-Cal Fee Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government auditors say almost $900,000 was paid in California for Medi-Cal claims not eligible under a federal-state medical program for the needy.

In the report, made public yesterday, auditors for the Health, Education and Welfare Department said the money was paid by California Physicians Service, one of three groups judging validity of claims under the California Medical Assistance Program.

The auditors said CPS paid claims totaling $879,000 for crippled children's diagnostic services which HEW rules do not authorize.

They recommend the State of California refund the federal share of the funds—$448,500.

The auditors had other criticisms of operations of CPS, which between March 1, 1966, and Dec. 31, 1967, handled about $323 million in claims to beneficiaries which the state declared eligible for the program.

CPS took too long to pay claims of doctors and dentists, poorly coordinated functions with county medical foundations and failed to set up effective controls to prevent duplicate payments, the auditors said.

They said CPS also needed new precautions against Medi-Cal recipients overusing dangerous drugs or narcotics.

HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen discussed the audit report last Tuesday with Spencer Williams, administrator of the California Health and Welfare Agency, and urged him to eliminate the deficiencies in the program quickly.

Cohen also announced fact-finding teams will be sent into other states to see if more safeguards are needed to prevent overextensions of medical services and payments.

Hurt In Crash

David Boese, 20, of 388 Riviera Circle, Larkspur, was treated for a cut forehead at 5:39 a.m. today at Marin General Hospital following a car accident in Larkspur. Police said the accident was still under investigation and would give no details this morning.

Egypt Getting Soviet Latest Model MIGs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Soviet Union has already started delivering to Egypt 200 MIG jet fighter planes capable of carrying nuclear weapons, a Moroccan newspaper said today.

A Rabat Radio broadcast said the planes were MIG23s which not only could carry nuclear devices but were more maneuverable than the 50 F4 Phantom jets the United States is selling to Israel.

The Moroccan Istiqlal Party newspaper Opinion quoted "authorized sources" from Cairo in saying the decision to furnish Egypt with the MIGs was reached after the United States decided to sell the Phantoms to the Israelis.

Opinion said Egyptian pilots will soon leave for training in the new jets in the Soviet Union.

The reports quoted sources close to the Egyptian government as saying acquisition of the MIGs was "only a security measure and a deterrent to Israeli use of atomic weapons in an eventual attack."

The governor of the Egyptian port of Alexandria today ordered schools kept closed to forestall student demonstrations which have disrupted the nation for a week.

The government issued no figures but some reports said as many as 16 persons were killed and hundreds arrested in the Alexandria rioting Monday.

Egypt's five universities in Cairo, Alexandria and Assiut also were closed.

One newspaper blamed the student demonstrations directly on Israel.

Israel has failed in it "war of diplomacy" and in battles across the Suez Canal and so "it resorted to hitting the home fronts of Arab nations," the newspaper said.

In Amman a Jordanian communique said Jordanian and Israeli troops battled for 20 minutes with machine guns near the Sea of Galilee yesterday. No casualties were reported.

In Tel Aviv Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol accused Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser yesterday of "heading for war on a one-way road."

But Eshkol said Israel's interest is "coexistence with the Arabs."

Court Invades Bedroom Of Reputed Crime King

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Stafano Magaddino, 77, reputed head of syndicate crime in the Buffalo-Niagara Falls-Toronto areas, has been arraigned on charges of international racketeering and conspiracy.

Magaddino was arraigned in his home yesterday, four days after FBI agents stopped his automobile here and told him of an arrest warrant pending against him.

Magaddino's arraignment was put off on a day-to-day basis because testimony of doctors recently in a civil action indicated he suffered serious heart disease.

U.S. Commissioner Edmund F. Maxwell went to the Magaddino home in nearby Lewiston and held the arraignment in a bedroom.

A doctor stood by Magaddino's side and a cylinder of oxygen was next to the bed, but it was not used.

Magaddino was not required to plead. He confined his comments during the eight-minute proceeding to, "Tell my lawyer," as Maxwell explained his rights and the charges.

Earlier, the Internal Revenue Service announced $3.6 million in income tax liens had been placed against Magaddino, some of his kin and an aide.

Some Tips On Buying Your Tree

When you are selecting your Christmas tree, check first for freshness.

Run your hands through the needles or shake the tree. If the needles drop off easily, your dry tree will be a fire hazard even before you get it home.

Part of the holiday fun can be selecting a tree.

Both short-needled junipers, spruces and firs and long-needled pines are common and satisfactory. A good tree will hold its needles, have an attractive color, bushy appearance, conical symmetrical shape, pleasing fragrance and strong branches to support ornaments and gifts. Make sure it was cut recently.

Avoid hemlock because the needles won't stay long.

Your tree will be more fire resistant if you keep it moist. Stand it in a bucket of water outdoors or in a cool place inside, protected from the sun and drying winds and heat. Then you bring it indoors, make a fresh slanting cut across the trunk at least an inch above the old cut. This will permit the tree to absorb more water.

Place the tree in a container of water or in a tree stand that has a water reservoir. A tree in a warm room will absorb up to a quart of water a day.

Keep the tree away from the fireplace, radiators, air ducts or TV sets that would dry the needles.

There's Wealth Of Gadgets For Science-Minded

For those on a budget, there is a wealth of scientific toys, gadgets and even valuable laboratory accessories available for $5 or under.

One firm has 24 scale models of "terrible lizards and monstrous mammals" plus many other items of interest, including a chemical predictor guide to over 30,000 chemical reactions. Another firm has a sliding device giving 900 facts concerning the chemical elements, including symbols, weight, density, number, valences, color and melting and boiling points, in Centigrade.

There is a stopwatch and a pocket alarm timer, both of interest to experimenters when time is a factor. There is a solid fuel blowtorch and a small, powerful electric motor. There is a booklet and kit for a model WAC Corporal rocket or for something that cannot be thrown away, a plastic boomerang.

Budding astronomers might start with a lunar map or a star atlas, or an interesting viewer showing star and planet locations, to be compared with the real thing.

Some Tips On Buying Your Tree

When you are selecting your Christmas tree, check first for freshness.

Run your hands through the needles or shake the tree. If the needles drop off easily, your dry tree will be a fire hazard even before you get it home.

Part of the holiday fun can be selecting a tree.

Both short-needled junipers, spruces and firs and long-needled pines are common and satisfactory. A good tree will hold its needles, have an attractive color, bushy appearance, conical symmetrical shape, pleasing fragrance and strong branches to support ornaments and gifts. Make sure it was cut recently.

Avoid hemlock because the needles won't stay long.

Your tree will be more fire resistant if you keep it moist. Stand it in a bucket of water outdoors or in a cool place inside, protected from the sun and drying winds and heat. Then you bring it indoors, make a fresh slanting cut across the trunk at least an inch above the old cut. This will permit the tree to absorb more water.

Place the tree in a container of water or in a tree stand that has a water reservoir. A tree in a warm room will absorb up to a quart of water a day.

Keep the tree away from the fireplace, radiators, air ducts or TV sets that would dry the needles.

There's Wealth Of Gadgets For Science-Minded

For those on a budget, there is a wealth of scientific toys, gadgets and even valuable laboratory accessories available for $5 or under.

One firm has 24 scale models of "terrible lizards and monstrous mammals" plus many other items of interest, including a chemical predictor guide to over 30,000 chemical reactions. Another firm has a sliding device giving 900 facts concerning the chemical elements, including symbols, weight, density, number, valences, color and melting and boiling points, in Centigrade.

There is a stopwatch and a pocket alarm timer, both of interest to experimenters when time is a factor. There is a solid fuel blowtorch and a small, powerful electric motor. There is a booklet and kit for a model WAC Corporal rocket or for something that cannot be thrown away, a plastic boomerang.

Budding astronomers might start with a lunar map or a star atlas, or an interesting viewer showing star and planet locations, to be compared with the real thing.

Tales From Marin's Past

Writer-Artist Glen Dines Fills A Void In History

By DON KEOWN

Glen Dines moved to Marin 15 years ago, and immediately became involved in a fascination with the county's history.

But, he discovered, pursuing that interest and satisfying his thirst for historical information was no easy matter.

There was a sparsity of printed data on the county's past.

"IN FACT," he says, "there has been no real collective history of Marin County published since 1880. And even that volume, while an excellent reference source, was more a collection of autobiographies with a historical preface."

As a successful writer and illustrator of books, although largely for juniors, it was natural that Dines should take it upon himself to help fill the void.

The culmination of that project was long in coming. But come it has, with the publication of his "Kit Carson's Black Deed and Other True Stories from Marin's Lively Past."

APPROPRIATELY, the softcover book, priced at $2.95, was printed in Marin County, by the Academy Press of Nicasio.

"It's the first time I've been author, illustrator, editor, designer and publisher, all at the same time," Dines says.

He might have added: "And researcher as well."

Gathering material for the book took the author-artist to many places, from empty grasslands where he hunted the foundations of old buildings long since vanished, to the polished tables of the Bancroft Library with its treasury of records of the past.

HE SPENT hours pouring over yellowed records in the Marin County recorder's office, and more hours examining old editions of the Independent-Journal's predecessor newspapers.

He scanned maps, and more maps, from the earliest sketch of the yet-to-be-named San Francisco Bay to the most recent U.S. Geological Survey quadrangles.

The Marin Historical Society Museum and its staff proved helpful, as did the staffs of the San Rafael Public Library and the Marin County Library. Of special interest was the latter's California Collection, begun years ago by Librarian Virginia Keating.

BUT DINES admits that he has barely scratched the surface. What he hopes is that his small book will generate sufficient interest to perhaps inspire a truly definitive and scholarly history of Marin County.

"There is a real need for this," he says. "Historically speaking, we Marinites need not take a backseat to anyone."

He points out that the first European, the Portuguese navigator Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, to cast eyes on Marin shores 436 years ago pre-dated such better-known events as the settlement of Jamestown and the voyage of the Mayflower.

AND TAKING note of children "who each morning, on the Olema Road just a few steps from where I work, await their school bus," he asks:

"Wouldn't they be interested to learn that stagecoaches once rattled past that very spot where they are standing? That huge ox-pulled wagons once lumbered by, loaded heavily with newly-cut redwood logs, to help build the mushrooming gold rush town called San Francisco?"

"KIT CARSON'S Black Deed and Other True Stories from Marin's Lively Past" contains, in addition to the title tale, such other chapters from the county's past as Sir Francis Drake's landing, the Showalter - Piercy duel, the prison break of 1862, etc. It is intended as a sampling of Marin's colorful past, not as a comprehensive history, to whet more than to satisfy the appetite.

It is Dines' third published book this fall. Appearing a few weeks ago were "Gilly and the Whicharoo," a fantasy picture book for small children, and "Golden Cities, Golden Ships," about the Spanish explorers of California, and intended for older youngsters.

Currently he is researching the mystery surrounding the discovery of Sir Francis Drake's famous Plate of Brass in Marin, with a future book in mind.

HE LIVES in Fairfax with his wife, Rickie, and two children, Lisa, 13, and Woody, 10, and works there in his home.

"Writing and illustrating Marin history has been fun," Dines says, "because much of the reference material is literally underfoot."

Then he smiles: "But I'm sure my children are glad it's over. Now, at least, their ride to school doesn't mean a lengthy lecture from dad on early transportation in Marin County."

THREE BOOKS in one season is the enviable record established by Fairfax author-illustrator Glen Dines, his latest fall, 1968, book being "Kit Carson's Black Deed and Other True Stories from Marin's Lively Past."

A College And Its Library Services

"I was a student here 20 years ago and the library was inadequate then."

Thus did a former Marin Junior College District trustee spotlight a problem that has long plagued the College of Marin.

The remark came during an open meeting at which students of the college had urged an earlier construction date for a proposed new library center on the Kentfield campus.

The new center, whose preliminary concept plan has received the approval of the district's trustees, is on the construction schedule for a 1972 completion.

MEANWHILE, the college will be struggling along in its present Fusselman Library Building.

Just how inadequate are those facilities?

Calvin Kurzman, library director, answered bluntly in a recent report to the office of the college president, that the present building is "grossly inadequate in terms of design, as well as space, to meet the needs of today's enrollment."

BUT KURZMAN also adds that a college library service has more aspects than just a building. Of even greater importance, he says, is the quality of the collection and the efficiency of the staff that serves the students.

"Imaginative librarians can accomplish a great deal, even in a poor facility," Kurzman declares.

Kurzman, who became director in July of 1967, claims that substantial improvements in library service have been made in recent years, although he also admits that "much remains to be done."

"OUR GOALS are clearly stated," he says. "We are now developing the framework for what we feel will eventually be one of California's outstanding community college libraries."

Four full-time librarians and one half-time librarian now serve the 147 full-time and 128 part-time instructors and the student body of 5,422 credit and 3,399 non-credit students. In ad-

THE LIBRARY BUILDING on the College of Marin campus in Kentfield, named for Ada Fusselman, for 33 years a district trustee, is located in the central mall area. Because the site frequently floods, the audio-visual department in the library basement is being moved to remodeled quarters in the fine arts complex. But the main floors will still bulge with books and offices.

"IN FACT," he says, "there has been no real collective history of Marin County published since 1880. And even that volume, while an excellent reference source, was more a collection of autobiographies with a historical preface."

As a successful writer and illustrator of books, although largely for juniors, it was natural that Dines should take it upon himself to help fill the void.

The culmination of that project was long in coming. But come it has, with the publication of his "Kit Carson's Black Deed and Other True Stories from Marin's Lively Past."

APPROPRIATELY, the softcover book, priced at $2.95, was printed in Marin County, by the Academy Press of Nicasio.

"It's the first time I've been author, illustrator, editor, designer and publisher, all at the same time," Dines says.

He might have added: "And researcher as well."

Gathering material for the book took the author-artist to many places, from empty grasslands where he hunted the foundations of old buildings long since vanished, to the polished tables of the Bancroft Library with its treasury of records of the past.

HE SPENT hours pouring over yellowed records in the Marin County recorder's office, and more hours examining old editions of the Independent-Journal's predecessor newspapers.

He scanned maps, and more maps, from the earliest sketch of the yet-to-be-named San Francisco Bay to the most recent U.S. Geological Survey quadrangles.

The Marin Historical Society Museum and its staff proved helpful, as did the staffs of the San Rafael Public Library and the Marin County Library. Of special interest was the latter's California Collection, begun years ago by Librarian Virginia Keating.

BUT DINES admits that he has barely scratched the surface. What he hopes is that his small book will generate sufficient interest to perhaps inspire a truly definitive and scholarly history of Marin County.

"There is a real need for this," he says. "Historically speaking, we Marinites need not take a backseat to anyone."

He points out that the first European, the Portuguese navigator Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, to cast eyes on Marin shores 436 years ago pre-dated such better-known events as the settlement of Jamestown and the voyage of the Mayflower.

AND TAKING note of children "who each morning, on the Olema Road just a few steps from where I work, await their school bus," he asks:

"Wouldn't they be interested to learn that stagecoaches once rattled past that very spot where they are standing? That huge ox-pulled wagons once lumbered by, loaded heavily with newly-cut redwood logs, to help build the mushrooming gold rush town called San Francisco?"

"KIT CARSON'S Black Deed and Other True Stories from Marin's Lively Past" contains, in addition to the title tale, such other chapters from the county's past as Sir Francis Drake's landing, the Showalter - Piercy duel, the prison break of 1862, etc. It is intended as a sampling of Marin's colorful past, not as a comprehensive history, to whet more than to satisfy the appetite.

It is Dines' third published book this fall. Appearing a few weeks ago were "Gilly and the Whicharoo," a fantasy picture book for small children, and "Golden Cities, Golden Ships," about the Spanish explorers of California, and intended for older youngsters.

Currently he is researching the mystery surrounding the discovery of Sir Francis Drake's famous Plate of Brass in Marin, with a future book in mind.

HE LIVES in Fairfax with his wife, Rickie, and two children, Lisa, 13, and Woody, 10, and works there in his home.

"Writing and illustrating Marin history has been fun," Dines says, "because much of the reference material is literally underfoot."

Then he smiles: "But I'm sure my children are glad it's over. Now, at least, their ride to school doesn't mean a lengthy lecture from dad on early transportation in Marin County."

Bulging Library Shelves

dition, there are eight clerks.

In the face of the sharp enrollment growth, the staff has almost doubled in the last six years.

WITH KURZMAN'S arrival, an internal reorganization program was launched. He set up distinct departments for circulation, book processing, acquisitions and periodicals, naming department heads for each and giving them clearly defined lines of authority and responsibility. The librarians are part of the faculty, and meet regularly with the director to discuss and formulate policy.

For years the library struggled along with a meager $5,000 annual book budget which was spent before the semester had hardly begun. This year the library requested $40,000. It was pared to $30,000 by the budget and finance committee of the college.

A windfall in the form of a $5,000 federal grant under the Higher Education Act of 1965 boosted the budget and is enabling the library to acquire many long needed reference works.

The college's library collection count as of July 1, 1968, was less then 36,000 volumes. Of these, 4,500 were bound volumes of periodicals.

Many obsolete books and periodicals remain on the shelves, but Kurzman estimates that as many as 2,000 will be discarded this academic year.

Following an Association of College and Research Libraries yardstick, the College of Marin Library should have a minimum of 48,000 volumes exclusive of duplicates, Kurzman says. Acquisitions Librarian Charles Mastin predicts this minimum figure can be reached within the next three years.

HE ESTIMATES that some 4,300 books will be added to the collection this year, and he is hoping for enough money next year to acquire 6,000 volumes.

Mastin says the added budgetary support the library had received the last two or three years has helped a good deal to improve the collection.

Some 500 periodicals are now received in the library. Students can read regular issues of the Wall Street Journal, Paris Match, Africa Report, American Cities, as well as Newsweek, Time, Good Housekeeping or The Saturday Review. As recent as 1963, only 285 journals were received.

BACK NUMBERS of most periodicals are retained either in bound volumes or on microfilm.

The library subscribes to 12 newspapers and has past years of the New York Times on microfilm. Tapes of lectures, public events, dramatic performances and poetry readings are available for listening.

A librarian is available at the reference desk 65 hours each week to instruct students in the use of the library and to aid them in their search for information.

According to Gwen Schultz, reference librarian, there has been a substantial increase in the quality, as well as the quantity, of questions.

"REFERENCE librarians are essentially teachers," she says. "Some students need only basic instruction in the use of the card catalog. Others have complex research problems involving hours of work.

"Librarianship is helping the student learn to use the library on his own."

Last year the library began converting the book collection from the Dewey Decimal to the Library of Congress system of call numbers. Catalog Librarian John Eschelbach directed a similar conversion at the University of California at Santa Barbara and enthusistically endorses it as being more suitable for a college library. He says it will prove to be more efficient and economical. By October 10,000 volumes had the new call numbers.

"WE'RE DISCARDING many older volumes and correcting errors in the card catalog as we go along," Eschelbach says. "We hope to move into the new library with an up-to-date collection and an accurate catalog."

What else can be done to improve the library?

"Books are our most important product, and we will keep plugging for the budget needed to develop our collection," Kurzman says.

However, he adds, the building has only about one-third the seats needed for student use at peak traffic periods. "If we continue to serve the maximum number of students on the campus, a larger, more modern facility is essential," Kruzman feels.

THAT NEW building is still more than three years in the offing, but with trustee approval of the preliminary concept, it has become something more concrete than a dream.

As proposed the new center would accommodate eventually some 75,000 volumes in its racks and on its shelves. It would provide space for a data processing center, for instructional services such as the audio-visual programs, for the college bookstore now housed separately from the library, for a warehouse storage area, for a possible television center with control rooms, as well as for increased reading room, stock room and office space.

The proposed center would provide some 51,200 square feet of usable floor space.

But until 1972 rolls around, he and his staff will be hard at work trying to prove his maxim that a library system is something more than just a building, and that superior service can to a great extent offset the handicap of inferior facilities.

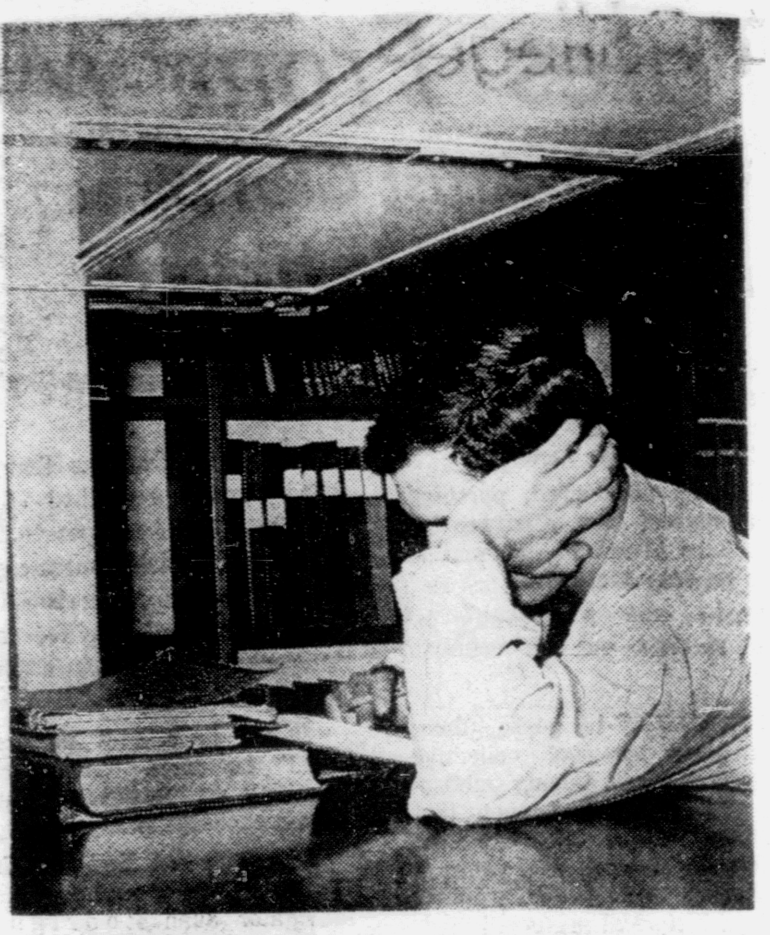
A PROGRAM OF changing the College of Marin book classifications from the Dewey Decimal to the Library of Congress system is in progress at the library, with clerks including Pamela Meek doing the work.



JOHN EASTMAN of Inverness, who must await his ride home after classes, puts that late-afternoon time to good use in the library when the reading room is less crowded.

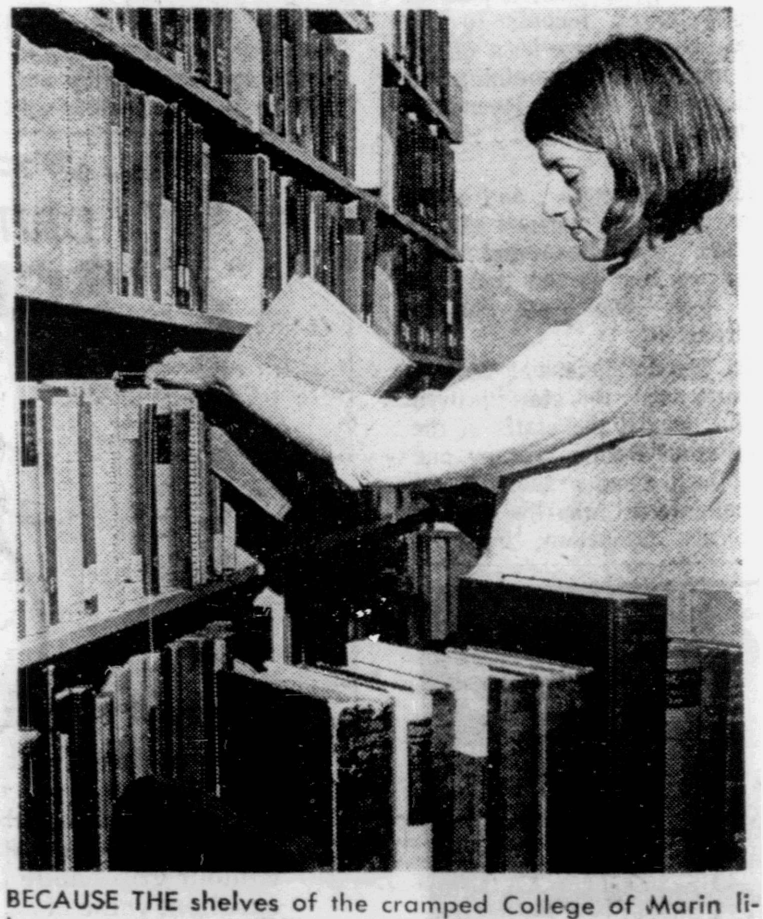
BOOKS FROM the processing department in the basement move to the first and second floors by a lift that is inadequate for the demand upon its services. Clerk Bernice Ayres is receiving the books to cart them to the shelves.



BECAUSE THE shelves of the cramped College of Marin library can accommodate only so many volumes, other books must be stored. Terry Angelides of Larkspur is one of 10 students employed in the library under a federal work-study plan.

NURSERY SCHOOL

A Playground That The Fathers Built

COVER PHOTO

THE OUTDOOR play equipment at the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School has special joy and meaning for the small boys and girls because it has been built through the years by their own daddies. Here Susan Mahl enjoys a slide down the fireman's pole from the climbing tower built by Del Smith, while Dino Colombo prepares to scale the ladder for his turn. The boat beneath the tower was constructed by Lew Levinson, and was decorated with animals designed and painted by Dottie Thurman. (Independent-Journal photos by Roger Bockrath)

And, indeed, the fathers of tots attending the school have produced almost all of the imaginative and durable playground equipment pieces that make the area a favorite fun spot with the pre-school boys and girls.

It all began 14 years ago when the dense blackberry bushes and other shrubbery were cleared away from behind the school. What emerged was an area ideal for playyard purposes, with only equipment needed to complete the picture.

AS WITH most cooperative nursery school programs, funds were limited and needed elsewhere.

So the solution reached was that handyman fathers would build the needed equipment, gradually, over a period of years filling the area with the swings, slides and climbing apparatus that so appeal to energetic youngsters.

Now, 14 years later, the fathers are still building.

LATEST ADDITION and a source of special pride and joy to the school is the treehouse built by Ragnvald Bernt, complete to a fireman's pole and slide, patterned after a piece of playground equipment he saw at the University of California Child Study Center in Berkeley.

To make the deck completely safe, Bernt fenced it with a wire mesh.

Some of the outdoor equipment installed in earlier years includes the climbing box built by San Anselmo Fire Chief Frank Sousa, and an airplane contributed by Noel Rosen.

A College And Its Library Services

"I was a student here 20 years ago and the library was inadequate then."

Thus did a former Marin Junior College District trustee spotlight a problem that has long plagued the College of Marin.

The remark came during an open meeting at which students of the college had urged an earlier construction date for a proposed new library center on the Kentfield campus.

The new center, whose preliminary concept plan has received the approval of the district's trustees, is on the construction schedule for a 1972 completion.

MEANWHILE, the college will be struggling along in its present Fusselman Library Building.

Just how inadequate are those facilities?

Calvin Kurzman, library director, answered bluntly in a recent report to the office of the college president, that the present building is "grossly inadequate in terms of design, as well as space, to meet the needs of today's enrollment."

BUT KURZMAN also adds that a college library service has more aspects than just a building. Of even greater importance, he says, is the quality of the collection and the efficiency of the staff that serves the students.

"Imaginative librarians can accomplish a great deal, even in a poor facility," Kurzman declares.

Kurzman, who became director in July of 1967, claims that substantial improvements in library service have been made in recent years, although he also admits that "much remains to be done."

"OUR GOALS are clearly stated," he says. "We are now developing the framework for what we feel will eventually be one of California's outstanding community college libraries."

Four full-time librarians and one half-time librarian now serve the 147 full-time and 128 part-time instructors and the student body of 5,422 credit and 3,399 non-credit students. In ad-

THE LIBRARY BUILDING on the College of Marin campus in Kentfield, named for Ada Fusselman, for 33 years a district trustee, is located in the central mall area. Because the site frequently floods, the audio-visual department in the library basement is being moved to remodeled quarters in the fine arts complex. But the main floors will still bulge with books and offices.

CLIMBING IS an excellent way for pre-school boys and girls to work off their excess energies and to build their young muscles. the lively nursery school set was a cable car built by Elmer Jones. It remains a popular attraction today.

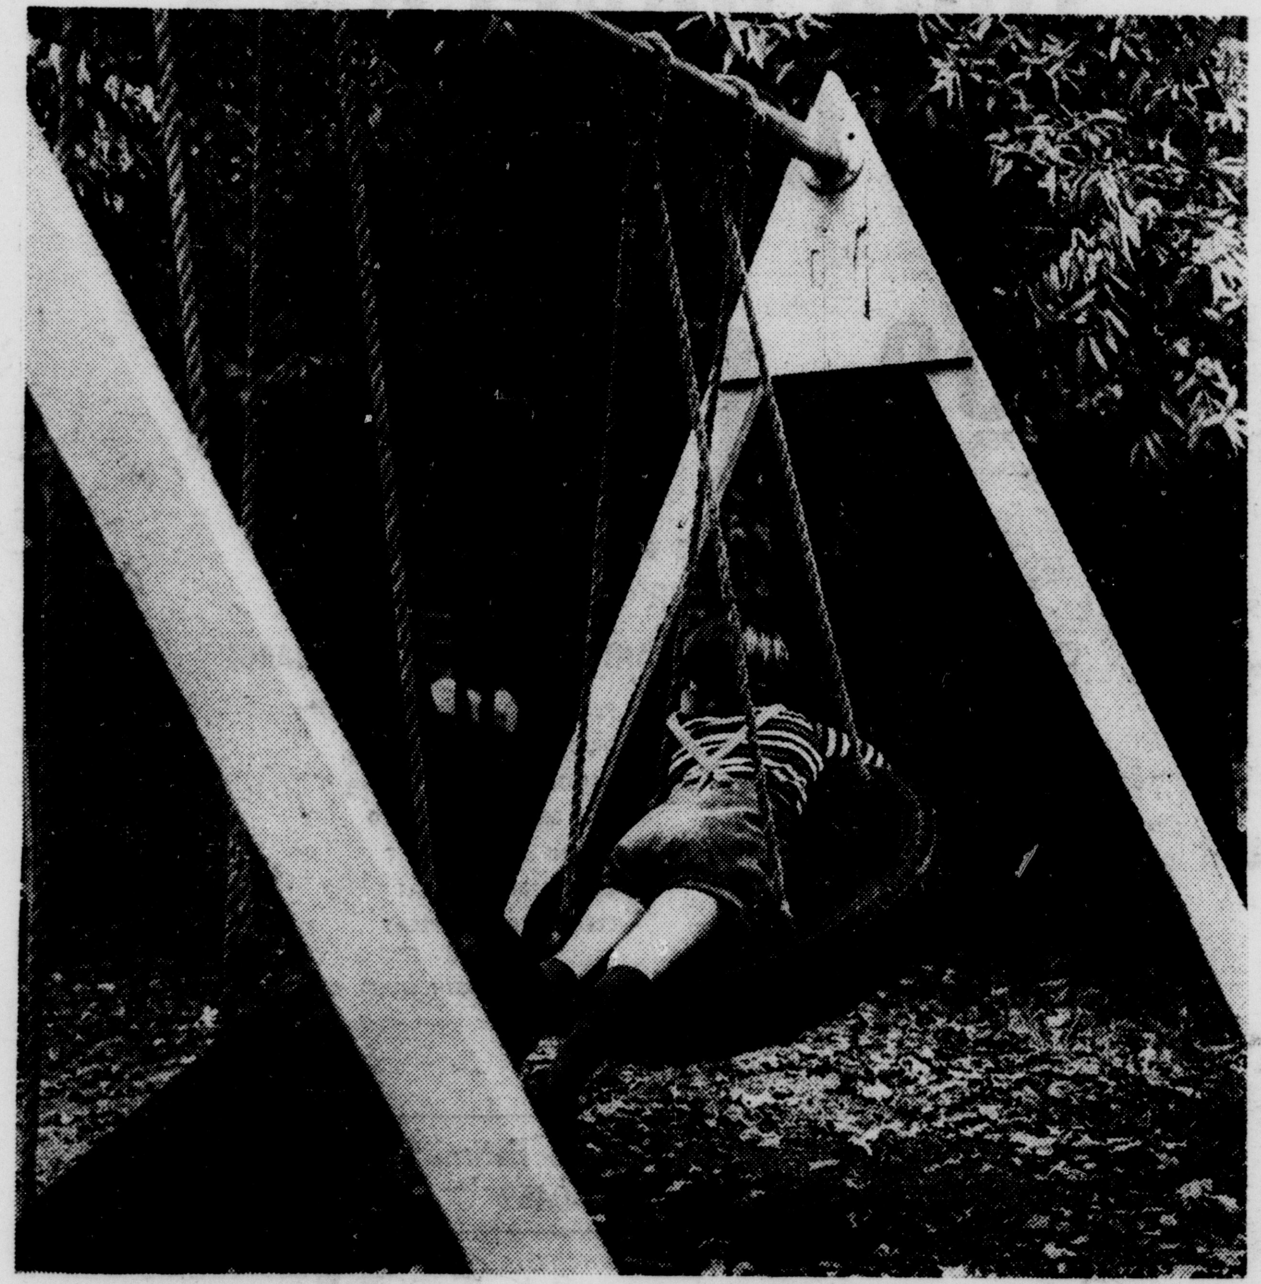
A brace from which was originally suspended a marine cargo net for the children to toss around in today holds two rubber tires for swinging.

A metal swing set crafted in a father's shop often has a waiting line of boys and girls eager for their turn.

PIECE BY piece, the San Anselmo school has assembled an assortment of imaginative play equipment that would be the envy of many a school or park that has made expensive outlays of public or private funds to assemble its fun devices.

And, says Elizabeth Rall, former director of the school who has watched the playground grow through the years, the fact that the swings and climbers were built by the daddies seems to give them a special meaning and attraction for the little nursery schoolers.



ARBIE BERNT relaxes on one of the two rubber tire swings that now hang from a brace that once held a marine cargo net in which the nursery school children frolicked.

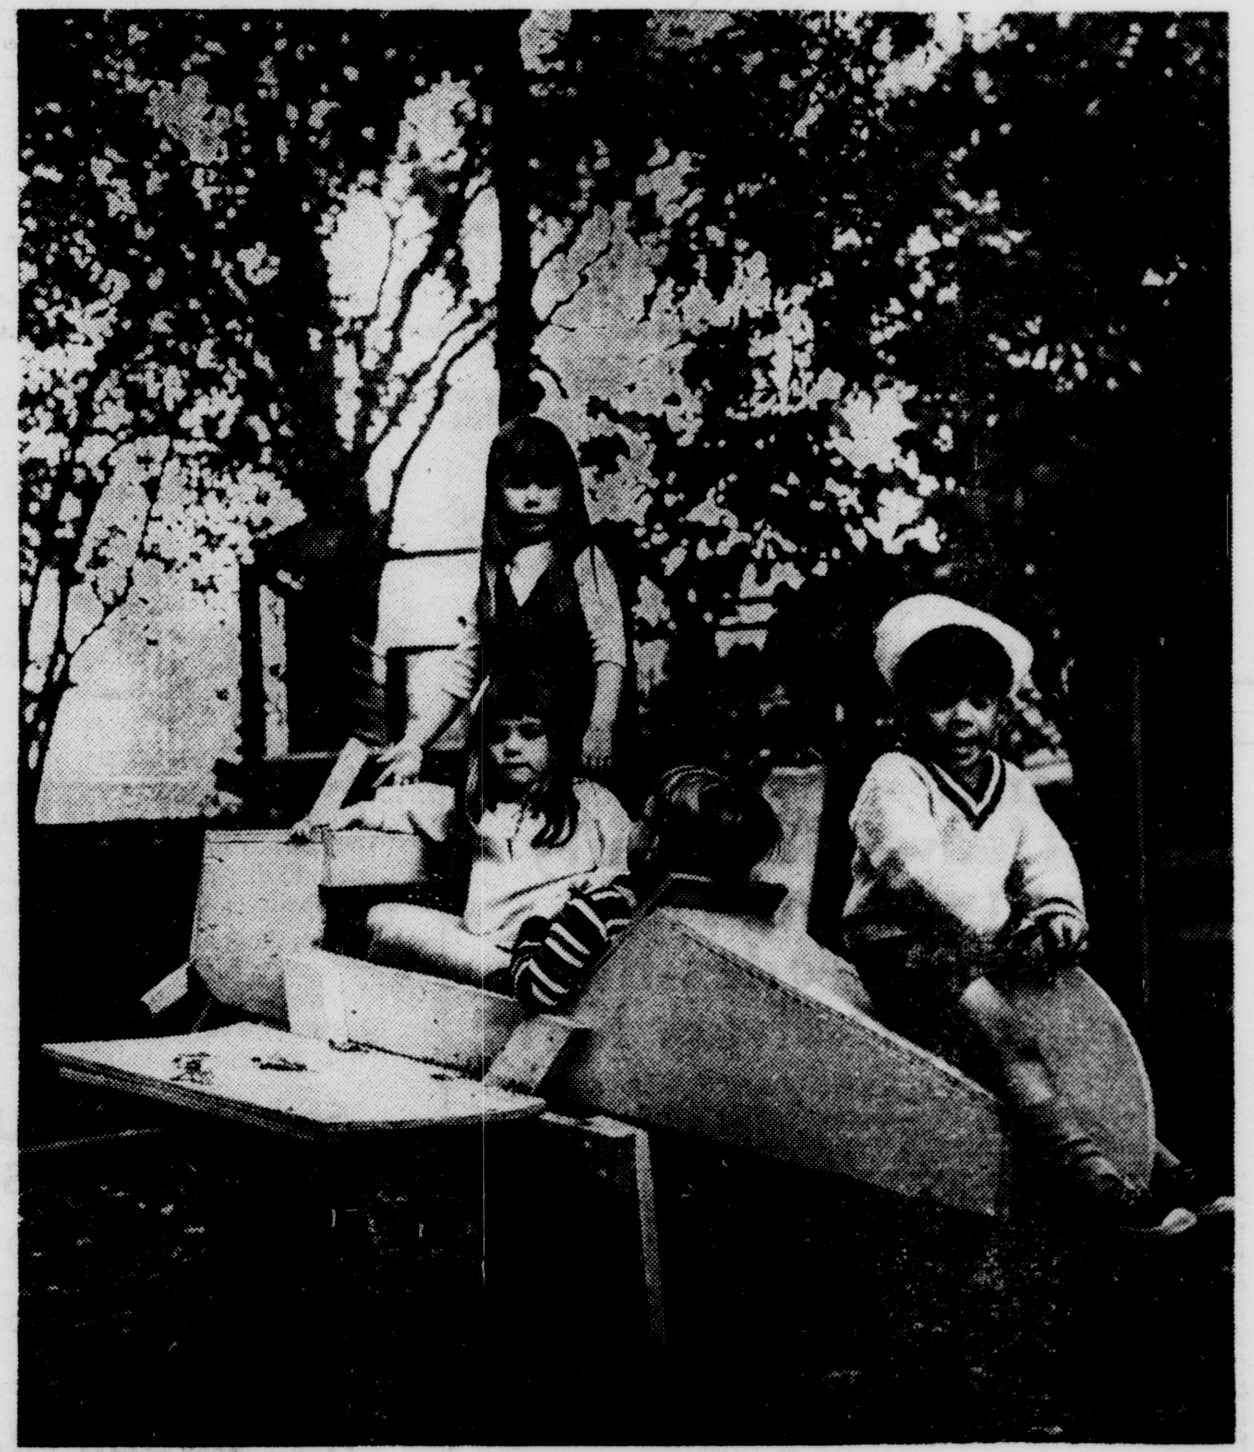
ON A SATURDAY, little Susan Mahl has the entire San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School playyard with its fascinating equipment all to herself. But during the week, it will be filled with running, shouting, active boys and girls.



IT MAY LOOK to you like these young aviators aren't far off the ground. But don't you believe it. Their young imaginations have taken Susan Mahl, Gina Delpino, Arbie Bernt and Dino Colombo high into the skies in the aircraft built by Noel Rosen.

WINTER IN JAPAN is for seeing as well as skiing, and one of the unforgettable sights occurs in February when Sapporo on the island of Hokkaido stages its annual Snow Festival featuring spectacular snow sculptures such as this statue of Aisenmyo-o, the God of Love.

Japan Draws Winter Trade

Sportsmen And Sightseers Alike Enjoy Its Attractions

You don't have to be a skier or a winter sports buff to enjoy a winter trip to Japan. But if you are, you will find plenty of superb resorts and slopes with all the amenities.

It wasn't by chance that Hokkaido, the northernmost principal island of Japan, was selected as the site of the 1972 Winter Olympics. Its extremely mountainous terrain, abundant snowfall, modern facilities and easy accessibility — only an hour by air from Tokyo — have turned the island's capital city, Sapporo, into the newest international mecca for winter sports.

THE BIG EVENT of the year that is attracting more and more North American visitors along with a million and a quarter Japanese is the Sapporo Snow Festival, Feb. 1 to 4.

This gala event centers around massive sculptures artistically carved from snow piled high along Sapporo's broad central boulevard. The effect is an Oriental Disneyland of immense castles and storybook characters competing for honors with giant Buddhas and images from Shinto mythology. The highlight of the festival is the awarding of prizes for the most imaginative and artistic creations.

Anyone planning a visit to Sapporo Snow Festival should arrive a day or two early to watch the sculptors who sometimes dangle from the top of a fire engine ladder to put finishing touches to their towering masterpieces.

SERIOUS SKIERS will find plenty of action on the slopes around Sapporo such as Teine Olympia, Tokachidake and Otaru Tenguyama. All are no more than an hour's bus ride from the center of the city.

But don't expect to see pagoda-shaped chalets.

Japanese ski resorts closely resemble those in good ski country anywhere. There are hotels of the most modern design with sundecks, intricate networks of chair-lifts and shops that both sell and rent a complete line of ski equipment.

It may seem strange at first to hear Japanese spoken on the slopes, but listen carefully and you will recognize "schuss" (shusu); "gelande" (gerende); "track" (torakku); "bogen" (bogen), and "mugel" (moguru).

THE LAST RUN of the day is followed by a bracing cup of hot sake and that splendid Japanese ritual, a natural hot spring bath. And for those aching muscles, a massage par excellence.

Now you're ready for the world of "apure ski" (apres ski) where you will no doubt find yourself dancing the frug or monkey until the wee hours.

But Japan in the winter appeals to more than just the sporting set. To the inveterate sightseer, the "off season" devoid of crowds greatly enhances visits to the popular tourist spots — the temples, shrines, castles and museums that proliferate throughout the land.

Winter in Japan also abounds with festivals.

FEUDAL DAYS are recreated when the streets of Nara are filled by elaborately costumed celebrants of "On Matsuri." The celebration takes place Dec. 16 and 17.

At the same ancient capital there is a dramatic hill-burning ceremony Jan. 15 to commemorate the settlement of an age-old dispute over a boundary line between two major temples.

New Year all over Japan is a three-day gala with all the girls in their classic finery. Jan. 6 honors Tokyo's colorful firemen who perform acrobatic stunts at the top of bamboo ladders.

Early in February is Setsubun when everyone, according to custom, drives out the devils and assures good fortune by throwing about beans.

IF WARMER CLIMES are a preference, a trip to the southern-most island of Kyushu offers a variety of spas and resorts. You can stay at one of the many Japanese-style inns or "ryokans" and let yourself be shamelessly pampered by traditional Japanese service.

Not the least of Japan's new winter attractions is the cost. Round trip air fares were reduced as of Nov. 1, and many hotels and restaurants in Japan lower prices after the peak summer travel season.

NURSERY SCHOOL

A Playground That The Fathers Built

Marin

COVER PHOTO

THE OUTDOOR play equipment at the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School has special joy and meaning for the small boys and girls because it has been built through the years by their own daddies. Here Susan Mahl enjoys a slide down the fireman's pole from the climbing tower built by Del Smith, while Dino Colombo prepares to scale the ladder for his turn. The boat beneath the tower was constructed by Lew Levinson, and was decorated with animals designed and painted by Dottie Thurman. (Independent-Journal photos by Roger Bockrath)

And, indeed, the fathers of tots attending the school have produced almost all of the imaginative and durable playground equipment pieces that make the area a favorite fun spot with the pre-school boys and girls.

It all began 14 years ago when the dense blackberry bushes and other shrubbery were cleared away from behind the school. What emerged was an area ideal for playyard purposes, with only equipment needed to complete the picture.

AS WITH most cooperative nursery school programs, funds were limited and needed elsewhere.

So the solution reached was that handyman fathers would build the needed equipment, gradually, over a period of years filling the area with the swings, slides and climbing apparatus that so appeal to energetic youngsters.

Now, 14 years later, the fathers are still building.

LATEST ADDITION and a source of special pride and joy to the school is the treehouse built by Ragnvald Bernt, complete to a fireman's pole and slide, patterned after a piece of playground equipment he saw at the University of California Child Study Center in Berkeley.

To make the deck completely safe, Bernt fenced it with a wire mesh.

Some of the outdoor equipment installed in earlier years includes the climbing box built by San Anselmo Fire Chief Frank Sousa, and an airplane contributed by Noel Rosen.

To Tip Or Not To Tip?

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

To tip or not to tip? And if you should, how much?

These are questions which often confuse Americans traveling at home and abroad.

Actually there are no hard and fast rules. There are some countries where tipping is officially frowned upon, such as Iceland, Tahiti and Soviet Russia. And there are others where "service charges" must be added to hotel and other bills.

TIPPING PRACTICES not only differ between nations but often between city and country too. For instance, tips or service charges usually run higher at resort hotels than those in the city.

And, even where service charges have been included, hotel, restaurant and other service personnel still expect to have their palms crossed with a little extra silver.

A good rule of thumb overseas is to tip as you do at home. Find out what the local customs are and make sure to use the local currency. Overtipping can be as embarrassing as undertipping.

IF YOU WOULD usually tip 25 cents at home, make it a shilling (12 cents) in Britain, one franc (20 cents) in France, one Deutschemark (25 cents) in West Germany, and 100 lire (16 cents) in Italy.

When in doubt, be a sport and overtip. Many of the people who serve you in the United States and elsewhere depend on gratuities for the major share of their income.

Some resorts in the United States and most hotels overseas add a service charge to your bill, ranging from 10 to 25 per cent, for the staff. But doormen, porters and bellboys still expect a tip when services are performed. And then it is customary abroad to leave a little additional for the concierge if he has been extra helpful.

NEVER TIP desk clerks or other front office personnel.

Restaurants also may add the service charge, but even when they do waiters and other help expect you to leave extra silver on the table. If no service charge is included—take time to check the bill—tip at least 15 per cent, not including taxes. Don't forget to tip the table captain and the wine steward a dollar or so in the better restaurants and night clubs if they have been of service.

The maitre d' doesn't have to be tipped unless he has provided you with one of the better tables or some other extra service.

IN TOKYO, AT last reports, you do not have to tip taxicab drivers, believe it or not. But it is a "must" most everywhere else, including the United States.

Drivers expect at least 20 cents for short hauls and between 10 and 20 per cent of the fare on long jaunts. When there is a meter, make sure he throws the flag. If there is no meter or fixed rate, set the fare before you get into the cab.

Never tip airline employes, such as stewardesses, flight crews or tickets and sales personnel. If no fixed charge is levied, tip airport skycaps and railroad red caps at least 50 cents per bag. Don't tip conductors but you should give a couple of dollars to the pullman porter on long train trips.

THE HOLLAND-America Line recently abolished all tipping on its passenger ships. But otherwise, figure on at least $1 per day per person for the room steward and a similar sum for your waiter on cruises. Tip bartenders, deck stewards, bellhops, and others when services are rendered.

It is customary to wait until the eve of the last day of the cruise to tip the room steward and dining room waiter. Ship officers are never tipped. But even when the signs say "no tipping allowed," tip no less than 50 cents per bag to the dockworker who loads or unloads your luggage.

Ashore, barbers and hairdressers generally are tipped no less than 10 per cent—more in the fancier establishments — and washroom attendants and the girl who watches your hat and coat expect at least 25 cents to $1.

IN PUBLIC washrooms in Europe, give a few small coins to the old man or woman who cleans up and does other chores.

Theater ushers in the United States generally don't accept tips—but in most of Europe they do. A few small coins also will be enough.

NEW ENGLAND enjoys a well - deserved reputation as a vacation mecca for tourists during the autumn season, what with its brisk weather and its brilliant show of fall foliage. But after the fall months have flown and winter has begun to make itself felt, the region still has many attractions for the traveler. The sightseeing takes on a special freshness with much of the countryside blanketed in white snow. The scene above shows the covered bridge at Jackson, N.H., so covered. And the region offers a wealth of winter sports activity at some of America's finest resorts. At left, some enthusiasts enjoy a break to soak up the sunshine at Vermont's Mount Snow while they assume temporarily the roles of spectators. And always, 12 months of the year, New England rewards its visitors with the rich pageantry of historical landmarks and ceremony.

A Merry Christmas In Ireland

For an average all-inclusive cost of from $10 to $14 per day guests, can make merry from lunchtime Dec. 24 to noon on Dec. 27, and it is still not too late to make the arrangements for this year's holidays.

All the hotels schedule a "get together" cocktail reception on Christmas Eve. After the guests have changed their status and become friends, the programmed fun begins with candlelight dinners, dances, caroling and treasure hunts.

Among the special events that tourists favor are "Pipe In The Pudding," which takes place on Christmas Day at about 9:15 p.m. Like a culinary master piece, savory plum pudding blazing with burning brandy is brought into the dining room with a musical fanfare.

The Christmas Follies have a daring charm while "high teas" are social occasions sweetened by extra cakes and goodies.

If you like your songs tuneful and brief there are mini-ballad recitals and if you can't resist the races your hotel will prepare a basket lunch for you to take to the Leopardstown track on St. Stephen's Day, Dec. 26.

With this steady pace of activities continuing throughout the three day holiday, one hotel thoughtfully serves breakfast in bed with Alka-Seltzers.

A free booklet listing hotel programs is available by writing to the Irish Tourist Board, 590 Fifth Avenue, New York City, 10036.

the lively nursery school set was a cable car built by Elmer Jones. It remains a popular attraction today.

A metal swing set crafted in a father's shop often has a waiting line of boys and girls eager for their turn.

PIECE BY piece, the San Anselmo school has assembled an assortment of imaginative play equipment that would be the envy of many a school or park that has made expensive outlays of public or private funds to assemble its fun devices.

And, says Elizabeth Rall, former director of the school who has watched the playground grow through the years, the fact that the swings and climbers were built by the daddies seems to give them a special meaning and attraction for the little nursery schoolers.

An Ideal Workshop For Social Study

MAN'S RISE TO CIVILIZATION AS SHOWN BY THE INDIANS OF NORTH AMERICA FROM PRIMEVAL TIMES TO THE COMING OF THE INDUSTRIAL STATE by Peter Farb; Dutton, 332 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This work unquestionably must boast the year's longest title.

It is November's Book of the Month Club selection, and has been hailed in some quarters as "the answer" to Desmond Morris' "The Naked Ape" which I reviewed early this year.

Author Farb is curator of American Indian cultures in the Riverside Museum of New York City. He has written several popular books on North American natural regions and history.

In "Man's Rise, etc., etc.," he contends that the history of the Amerindian is an ideal workshop for the study of Western society as it is today. Its complexities and stresses may be traced to the primitive days, he holds, and what's happening is all explainable — even unto the hippies and the conspicious consumption of USA '68.

Farb's book is tri-sectional; it opens with a review of present-day anthropological knowledge of the evolution of society from simple bands through the dazzling total state of the Aztecs. The second section deals more with the archaeological history of man in the Western Hemisphere — how he arrived from Asia, and what he did once here.

The final section deals with "Societies under Stress," detailing the impact of the invasion by so-called civilized peoples into the Amerindian's territory.

A major premise of Farb's work is that man's societies do evolve through time, environmental pressures and mixtures with other societies; he explains that this is disputed by some other anthropology and social science thinkers.

"Most social scientists do not believe that cultures are haphazard. But they disagree considerably about the patterns they detect. One commonly heard explanation is based on the biology of man. It seeks to interpret human culture on the basis of man's brain, adrenal glands, muscular responses and nervous system. But the fallacy in logic here is that behavior common to all people cannot explain why particular kinds of behavior exist among some groups . . . but not among others," Farb writes.

He cites as examples that a devout Jew will retain his hat and shoes in his temple, a Christian will wear shoes but not hat in church and a Moslem will wear headgear but not shoes.

Another explanation of culture patterns Farb rejects is the psychological one advocated by Ruth Benedict — for instance that Pueblo Indians have a placid culture because they are non-aggressive people.

"No one denies that human personality is shaped by the culture into which it is born. But no one has ever demonstrated the reverse . . ." according to Farb.

And, too:

"Darwin was assuredly in error when he declared flatly that 'there is no fundamental difference between man and the higher animals in their mental facilities.' The truth is that man is different from the apes; he belongs to a separate category of being altogether. The social life of a non-human is governed by its anatomy and physiology, whereas society is ruled by culture," Farb declares.

". . . Economic teamwork is non-existent among the non-human primates . . . apes and monkeys are utterly incapable of having any such conceptions" as soul, death, or myth or religion, Farb flatly asserts.

My reaction on reading these and many of Farb's other passages is to wonder how on the one hand he can base the whole concept of cultural development on evolution — and reject Darwin — how he can apparently contradict "The Naked Ape" almost as if reciting other readers' reactions to it without going directly to the source — and to wonder if some of the passages on the derivation of Marxism don't hint at an arch-conservative political outlook rare among scientists.

On the other hand, his descriptions of Amerindian cultures are fascinating; his comparisons of the death throes of some tribes in the face of onrushing "civilization" and today's protest movements reach home beautifully.

His final complaint is that modern man has spent millions digging up relics of the Amerindian past, yet but a pittance to preserve what cultures do survive. Here, I wish he had been more constructive, perhaps rising above a mere "do something" plea.

In summing up: "Man's Rise, etc." is an exciting review of what Amerindian culture was and has become. As an answer to "The Naked Ape," Wooldridge's "Mechanical Man" and other recent concepts of man's derivation, I found it of less value.

Those Who Stayed Operational

BLACK PROFILES by George R. Metcalf; McGraw-Hill, 341 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Joanne Pratt.

"Maybe I get low sometimes but then I tell myself, 'You got to stay operational'." So James Meredith talked himself into finishing his bleak year at the University of Mississippi.

One way or another, Meredith — and the other exceptional black men and women George Metcalf tells about — have managed to stay operational in 20th Century white America. (At first glance, fantastic old Harriet Tubman, Underground Railroad agent and Civil War scout, seems out of place in a 20th Century list. But, though born back about 1820, she lived on until 1913.

Only one of the group gave over to final despair. Scholarly Dr. William E. B. Du Bois, when he was in his 90s and living in Africa, said, "In my own country, for nearly half a century, I have been nothing but a 'nigger'."

Du Bois, however, along with Martin Luther King Jr., Roy Wilkins, Thurgood Marshall, Jackie Robinson, Harriet Tubman, Medgar Wiley Evers, James H. Meredith, Rosa Parks, Edward W. Brooke and Whitney Moore Young Jr., offered most of his life effort to our century's struggle against inequality and white intransigence.

Mostly, each has moved along with terribly slow, patient steps, within the framework of an NAACP or SCLC or National Urban League plan. Sometimes, as Rosa Parks did, one leaped ahead with an intuitively simple, right act: "My shoulder ached, I had had a bad day at work. I was tired from sewing all day, and all of a sudden everything was just too much. It didn't seem logical . . . I had paid the same fare. I stayed where I was."

During the time that other black passengers, too, refused to ride, ever again, in segregated bus seats, the Montgomery, Ala., bus company lost $750,000. It cost the United States more than five million dollars to make sure that James Meredith stayed alive long enough to enter and graduate from "Ole Miss." Three years ago, after Watts, Whitney Young estimated that riots had already cost us 175 million dollars in property damages.

George Metcalf, the white authoh of "Black Profiles," served for 14 years as a state senator in New York. In 1965 he decided not to run for re-election so he could spend more time writing and working for racial justice. He is president of the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing.

His research is thorough, his biographies fresh and perceptive, and his book well worth reading.

Again Short, a theology scholar, analyzes the basic Christian lessons to be learned from the antics and observations of Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Lucy, Linus and company. Lessons From The Election That Shirley Lost

Shirley Temple Black got most of the publicity in last year's special congressional election in San Mateo County, but it was Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey Jr. who got the most of what really counted — votes.

This fascinating account of their battle, by one of McCloskey's campaign aides, would make a fine election handbook anywhere in California—especially in suburban counties such as Marin. To win, campaign as McCloskey did. To lose, follow Mrs. Black's example.

"In the past," Minott says, "middle-class suburbia has been able to buy time and space and flee the problems of urban America," but suburbanites now have "discovered that there is no place to which they may run. The war, smog, water pollution, overcrowded schools, racial problems, inadequate transportation, archaic forms of local government, excessive taxation, all the problems confronting an affluent America have pursued them to their semi-rural doorsteps."

McCloskey won, he finds, because more than 3,000 "citizens concerned about such problems drifted together into an 'apartisan' coalition" in the best maverick Progressive tradition

McCloskey, says his admiring supporter, "was the first of the new 'political heroes,' predating even Eugene McCarthy's lonely fight."

"What the public remembered from the 30s was a person of sweetness and light," writes Minott of her, but "what was presented during the campaign was an austere matron given to moralistic homilies of the 'mother knows best' variety."

Most of all, he says, "it was her obvious upper middle-class isolation from the realities of life that was irritating . . . Condescensian and patronization dripped from her as she stated that his (black man) plight and problems were analogous to the upbringing of unruly children."

"Now I know how the game is played," Minott quotes Mrs. Black when she conceded defeat. Her concession telegram to McCloskey was equally gracious. In its entirety, it read: "Congratulations on your victory."

Minott also details how the candidate counts more with the California voter than his party. McCloskey, responding to Gov. Ronald Reagan's criticism of his refusal to endorse Max Rafferty, said "I put several things ahead of party loyalty — one is honesty and one is forthrightness. You can be an honorable Republican, yet not a slave to the party."

McCloskey's political philosophy sounds like a sure formula for success in California. However, it also sounds a bit like Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel's approach to partisan politics.

Prejudice And Nostalgia In The Fanciful World Of Sports

By DON KEOWN

Most white Americans were shocked and a good many infuriated when two young Negro winners of medals at the recent Olympic Games in Mexico City chose the awards presentation ceremony for a demonstration of protest of the mistreatment of their race in their home country.

"Why athletes?" the question ran. Surely they, of all black people, were being accorded a fair deal in the USA.

Jack Olsen gives them some blunt answers in his book, "The Black Athlete: A Shameful Story," which he subtitles tellingly "The Myth of Integration in American Sport."

This is not a harangue by some black militant seeking to agitate. Olsen, a white with a solid background as a newspaper and magazine writer of politics, crime and sports, is now senior editor of Sports Illustrated magazine, part of the Time-Life empire that is anything but unfriendly toward the establishment.

Olsen is, therefore, all the more impressive as he writes with real anger and scorn of the hypocrisy rampant in American athletics, and he absolutely devastates the pose sports has struck as a leader in the struggle for equality.

No, Olsen tells us, the black athlete has not received a fair deal, either in our colleges or on our professional teams. To prove the point, he names names and cites examples — many, many of them — in which sports have adhered to the long cherished belief of white society that somehow the Negro is inferior and should be relegated to secondary status.

The Negro athlete recruited by a college is likely to arrive woefully unprepared and severely handicapped, the product of a third-rate southern segregated or northern ghetto high school, with a family background that is impoverished and unstable.

Once on campus, he discovers the college is not at all interested in educating him. He is there as a performer, not as a scholar. Off the athletic field, he is given little guidance. His closest contacts are the coaches, usually incapable of providing the kind of help and advice he needs. Socially, he leads a lonely, ostracized life. Once his eligibility expires, he is callously discarded. Many, many never graduate.

THE BLACK ATHLETE: A SHAMEFUL STORY by Jack Olsen; Time-Life, 221 pages, $4.95.

YESTERDAY IN SPORT by Sports Illustrated editors; Time-Life, 192 pages, $5.95.

Only the comparative handful who make the grade in professional athletics have any real future.

And Olsen shows clearly that the Negro, to earn a place on a professional team, must be not simply the equal of his white rival in ability, but superior to him — often far superior. Even then, he'll labor at a lower pay scale and often under humiliating conditions, bullied by coaches and racist fans and teammates and restricted from choice positions. Olsen uses the St. Louis Cardinal football team, notorious for its racism, as his horrible example, but not as his only one.

Once the Negro is through as a professional athlete, he discovers the game has no further use for him. Front office and coaching jobs are the province of the whites. There is nothing sadder, Olsen says, than the used-up Negro athlete who must return to the cold and bigoted world outside of sports, totally untrained to cope with it.

As an athlete he has known at least some acclaim, even perhaps idolatry, on the playing field to partially offset the poisonous prejudice that confronts him after the game. Now he must adjust to being just another black face in the crowd.

Olsen's indictment is a stinging one. The sports establishment, no doubt, will answer as best it can with the old cliches by pointing to the Willie Mays who have made it big and the Rafer Johnsons who have been educated in college. But Olsen is writing, not about the handful, but about the mass of black athletes, and the picture he paints is an unpretty but convincing one.

It should be kept in mind, however, that bigotry in sports is not a single, disfiguring blemish upon the social face of America. Rather it is but one sore from the disease, white racism, that infects all America, as diagnosed by the Kerner Commission.

The reader will complete Jack Olsen's book with a better understanding of why Tommie Smith and John Carlos were motivated to act as they did in Mexico City. Their protest may have been ill-timed. But who are we whites to talk about the time factor more than a century after the Civil War and nearly 200 years after the ringing equality promises of the Declaration of Independence and our Constitution?

A DRAMATIC MOMENT in sports history spotlighted two of baseball's all-time greats as Babe Ruth, right, tried to cheer up his longtime New York Yankee teammate Lou Gehrig on July 4, 1949, when thousands jammed Yankee Stadium to pay tribute to the "Iron Horse" whose career was coming to an end. Gehrig was soon to die of a rare form of infantile paralysis.

MORE IN TUNE with the fanciful world in which the more fanatical followers of sport exist is another Time-Life product, "Yesterday in Sport."

Produced by the Sports Illustrated staff, it is a nostalgic trip into the past recreating some of the most exciting moments in athletics — the kinds of events that have remained alive in the memories and the arguments of the old-timers, with perhaps the facts embellished just a bit in the process and the passing of time.

In its pages the sports buff can relive such experiences as Lou Gehrig's last day in baseball, the Roger Bannister-John Landry mile duel that cracked the four-minute barrier, Joe DiMaggio's record breaking consecutive game hitting streak, Red Grange on the rampage on the gridiron.

Or he can go still farther back to James Naismith inventing the game of basketball, the 1908 New York to Paris automobile race across three continents, Georgia Tech's 222 to 0 football slaughter of Cumberland, John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain squaring off in the boxing ring, baseball's Black Sox scandal.

The book takes note, too, of the less publicized sports with stories on such activities as big game hunting, bicycling, the marathon events, mountain climbing, sailing, rodeo and even bridge.

The writers include sports columnists and reporters from several decades plus notables such as George Bernard Shaw and William Faulkner, and personal reminiscenses by the likes of Black Sox first baseman Chick Gandil and the daughter-in-law of James Naismith.

If one of the males on your Christmas gift list is a sports buff, this book, very reasonably priced, is the answer to your problem. Particularly so if he is a member of that generation that stoutly ignores the amazing new records being compiled by today's athletes and insists that these upstarts can't hold a candle to the heroes of the good old days.

GAVIN LAMBERT'S "The Slide Area," described by Christopher Isherwood as "the most truthful stories about the film world and its suburbia I have ever read" and widely acclaimed by others, has been reprinted by Dial Press.

First published in 1959, this collection of seven short stories or "scenes of Hollywood life" has been out of print for a number of years. Yet, as Lambert's own reputation has grown, so has that of "The Slide Area," so that many rate it along side F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Last Tycoon" and Nathaniel West's "The Day of the Locust" as the best fiction ever written about Hollywood.

Priced at $4.50, it is not to be missed by serious fans of the Hollywood scene or admirers of superior writing.

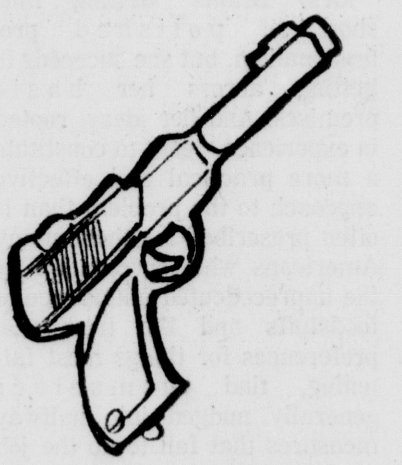
MURDER ON A BAD TRIP by June Drummond; Holt; Rinehart and Winston, 188 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.



Besides being a top-rated mystery with lots of suspense this novel contains a plea and a warning about the drug-oriented world we live in.

In Gantry, a mythical city in a mythical country, some one puts LSD in the city reservoir. The result is death for a few, evacuation for many, and chaos for everyone. There also is a tug-of-war between police, armed forces and politicians for control.

Author Drummond's warning seems to be that it could happen and that governments might be poorly equipped to deal with such a situation. But this is fiction and not a sermon, and it takes policeman David Cope to sniff out the criminal in a rough and chilling story.

Sportsmen And Sightseers Alike Enjoy Its Attractions

You don't have to be a skier or a winter sports buff to enjoy a winter trip to Japan. But if you are, you will find plenty of superb resorts and slopes with all the amenities.

It wasn't by chance that Hokkaido, the northernmost principal island of Japan, was selected as the site of the 1972 Winter Olympics. Its extremely mountainous terrain, abundant snowfall, modern facilities and easy accessibility — only an hour by air from Tokyo — have turned the island's capital city, Sapporo, into the newest international mecca for winter sports.

THE BIG EVENT of the year that is attracting more and more North American visitors along with a million and a quarter Japanese is the Sapporo Snow Festival, Feb. 1 to 4.

This gala event centers around massive sculptures artistically carved from snow piled high along Sapporo's broad central boulevard. The effect is an Oriental Disneyland of immense castles and storybook characters competing for honors with giant Buddhas and images from Shinto mythology. The highlight of the festival is the awarding of prizes for the most imaginative and artistic creations.

Anyone planning a visit to Sapporo Snow Festival should arrive a day or two early to watch the sculptors who sometimes dangle from the top of a fire engine ladder to put finishing touches to their towering masterpieces.

SERIOUS SKIERS will find plenty of action on the slopes around Sapporo such as Teine Olympia, Tokachidake and Otaru Tenguyama. All are no more than an hour's bus ride from the center of the city.

But don't expect to see pagoda-shaped chalets.

Japanese ski resorts closely resemble those in good ski country anywhere. There are hotels of the most modern design with sundecks, intricate networks of chair-lifts and shops that both sell and rent a complete line of ski equipment.

It may seem strange at first to hear Japanese spoken on the slopes, but listen carefully and you will recognize "schuss" (shusu); "gelande" (gerende); "track" (torakku); "bogen" (bogen), and "mugel" (moguru).

THE LAST RUN of the day is followed by a bracing cup of hot sake and that splendid Japanese ritual, a natural hot spring bath. And for those aching muscles, a massage par excellence.

Now you're ready for the world of "apure ski" (apres ski) where you will no doubt find yourself dancing the frug or monkey until the wee hours.

But Japan in the winter appeals to more than just the sporting set. To the inveterate sightseer, the "off season" devoid of crowds greatly enhances visits to the popular tourist spots — the temples, shrines, castles and museums that proliferate throughout the land.

Winter in Japan also abounds with festivals.

FEUDAL DAYS are recreated when the streets of Nara are filled by elaborately costumed celebrants of "On Matsuri." The celebration takes place Dec. 16 and 17.

At the same ancient capital there is a dramatic hill-burning ceremony Jan. 15 to commemorate the settlement of an age-old dispute over a boundary line between two major temples.

New Year all over Japan is a three-day gala with all the girls in their classic finery. Jan. 6 honors Tokyo's colorful firemen who perform acrobatic stunts at the top of bamboo ladders.

Early in February is Setsubun when everyone, according to custom, drives out the devils and assures good fortune by throwing about beans.

IF WARMER CLIMES are a preference, a trip to the southern-most island of Kyushu offers a variety of spas and resorts. You can stay at one of the many Japanese-style inns or "ryokans" and let yourself be shamelessly pampered by traditional Japanese service.

Not the least of Japan's new winter attractions is the cost. Round trip air fares were reduced as of Nov. 1, and many hotels and restaurants in Japan lower prices after the peak summer travel season.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

The Holiday Season is here. The music of Christmas will be everywhere. Maybe this holiday will bring you and your family a stereo music system that will provide beautiful music throughout the entire year. A Component music system will provide the full range and clarity of a live performance.

What are the basic parts of a component group? How does one go about the task of choosing the right units? The basic components are a stereo tuner/amplifier (receiver), two matched speaker systems, and a record changer with cartridge. If desired, a tape recorder and player deck may be added.

The stereo tuner/amplifier is a combined FM stereo tuning section, a preamplifier control section, and a power amplifier section. Some units also incorporate the AM tuning section. This electronic component is of all solid state design; that is, it uses transistors instead of tubes. Since transistors are quite small and take very little space, and since they do not create very much heat, the modern all-in-one units perform with as much quality as did the separate tuner preamp and amp commonly used in the past. Each loudspeaker system may consist of a single full range speaker mounted in an appropriate cabinet, or each system may have two or three units mounted in the cabinet. A larger speaker is used for bass and a smaller speaker or horn is used for the high tones in a two-way system. The two units are called the woofer and tweeter. In a three-way system a mid range speaker or horn is added. The record changer is the turntable with tone arm and cartridge used for playing the stereo LP records.

To choose a system one should visit a reliable dealer that specializes in components. While there, a sound specialist will demonstrate speaker systems by playing stereo pairs and switching to different pairs for comparison. After deciding which speakers will fit your taste, budget, and decor a receiver can be selected which will have enough power to operate the speakers. The audio specialist will guide you in this selection. Lastly, the record changer can be chosen that will blend in with the components already selected. It is really very simple and fun if you visit the right store. Why not visit our Hi-Fi show rooms and let our sound specialists guide you. Make this a musical holiday.

SOME NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS

The book "The Adventures of Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" has now gone full circle.

It was first published posthumously as the only children's story written by the late Ian Fleming, creator of James Bond. Subsequently it was turned into a screenplay and movie, starring Dick Van Dyke and tailored to the family audience at which the Walt Disney pictures generally are aimed.

Now Chitty Chitty Bang Bang is back in book format again, this time in a special motion picture edition done by Albert G. Miller with color photograph illustrations taken from the movie. Random House is the publisher and the price is $2.75.

The story of the Potts family and the old car that brought such a change into their lives retains its charm, and the pictures are filled with color, action and humor.

The production of picture books based upon movies with special allure for youngsters is becoming an increasing popular technique with publishers, and in this case proves quite successful. One has only to note the long lines of kids in front of the theater boxoffice when a Disney or Disney-like matinee bill is playing to know that the appeal is there.

Some other books for the juniors:

Elephants are well-established as storybook favorites of the very young. "Elmer: The Story of a Patchwork Elephant" (McGraw-Hill, $4.50) by David McKee should be all the more irresistible for the just-starting-to-school set, since he has an unusual coloration — a plaid that includes orange, purple and other bright hues. It causes Elmer problems. And it also creates a funny yet meaningful story that the artist-author has illustrated brightly and humorously.

David McKee, says the jacket blurb for "Mr. Benn-Red Knight" (McGraw-Hill, $4.50), is one of England's most original artist-authors of children's literature. And the book bears out the claim. It is a fantasy tale of a bank clerk whose invitation to a fancy dress ball draws him into some strange adventures involving, among other things, a dragon. There's a great variety in the artwork, no two pages being of quite the same style. It is one of those books best described as "different," that may either hold very great appeal or no interest at all for the child.

The title "Plants That Eat Animals" (McGraw-Hill, $3.50), has a gruesome, science fiction sound, but this reversal of the more general order of nature does occur and is part of the planet's scheme of life. University of London botanist Linna Bentley tells about it — how some specialized plants trap and devour insects, or even small animals. Colin Threadgall provides the entomologically accurate illustrations. It's a subject that may cause shudders in some more sensitive children, but one that will fascinate the scientifically mature and curious.

Twelve espionage agents, from the American Revolutionary War hero Nathan Hale to Russia's Rudolf Abel and Richard Sorge, are the subjects of "The Master Spy" (McGraw-Hill, $2.95) by Dan Halacy. Mata Hari, Cicero, Mary Louvestre, William Sebold and Stig Wennerstrom are some of the other featured names. Although writing for young readers, Halacy goes beyond the intrigue and excitement to study in considerable depth just why these people became agents, and the effects upon history of their spying. It's a better book than a somewhat gaudy cover would indicate.

As a child in Russia, the late Valery Carrick was fascinated by the folk tales he heard. As a young man he began drawing the characters of the stories. Then, in his 40s, he started writing the tales and fitting them to the earlier artwork. His "picture tales" appeared in six volumes and won great popularity with children. Now Dover Publications has reprinted the best known, "Picture Folk-Tales," as a $1.25 paperback, complete with Carrick's classic drawings and the simple narration so easily followed by children.

Also reprinted by Dover: "Puck of Pook's Hill" ($2) by Rudyard Kipling. It is the Kipling blending of mythology and history of ancient England in which Puck out of Midsummer Night's Dream and his friends relate to two children 10 adventure stories. Each story is followed by Kipling's poetry.

Parents, and even a good many grandparents, are too young today to have known or to remember the America of the 1920s. Youngsters, of course, know nothing about it at all. Because it was a period without wars and without any great crises until the stock market crash of 1929, it is accorded relatively little space in the history books. But Fon W. Boardman Jr. in his "America and the Jazz Age" (Walck, $4.50), makes it clear that the era between the end of World War I and the crash was a colorful and eventful if somewhat frivolous time. The book is easy reading, but it is also good sound history.

"Proud to be Amish" (Crown, $3.50), by Mildred Jordan is about a Pennsylvania Dutch child torn between her Old Order upbringing and her desire for worldly things. The author resides in the heart of the Amish country in Pennsylvania, and has a deep understanding of them. Her book tells young readers, 9 to 12, much about these admirable people, and speaks also with honesty about the kind of temptations that confront the new generation, non-Amish as well as Amish.

A new reference book for juniors is "The Look-It-Up Book of Presidents" (Random House, $3.95) by Wyatt Blassingame. It consists of thumbnail biographies of each of our Presidents, varying in length with their importance and accompanied by artwork by Ted Lewin including portraits. A final chart summarizes the principal in-office achievements of each.

Also for young history buffs is "Great American Battles" (Random House, $3.95), a Landmark Giant Series book by Robert Leckie. Leckie highlights 11 major conflicts involving Americans, from the French and Indian War to the Korean strife. Reproductions of old paintings, photographs and drawings are all included in the illustrations. Leckie, a prolific writer for both adults and juniors, makes his accounts dramatic, and emphasizes the military commanders credited with the victories. Those who decry the glorification of war may balk at putting this book in the hands of their youngsters.

Sure enough! Right on the edge of the garden was a hole!
And sticking out of it
was a wiggly thing,
wiggling all over!
Early Bird pecked at it with his beak.
"Hello, worm," he said.

THE APPEALING illustration is from the book "The Early Bird," with Richard Scarry as author and illustrator. Random House is the publisher.

Help For Those Fighting The War Against Calories

COMPULSIVE OVEREATERS' GUIDE by Pearl Brians; Brians Publishing Co., 182 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Mrs. Brians, active for a number of years with self-improvement groups formed primarily to combat overweight, published this book privately in Penngrove, Sonoma County, where she resides.

She approaches the problem of gluttony from both its physical and its psychological aspects.

The dietary practices she recommends are principally a strict abstinence from starches and sweets, and a rigid restriction of the feeding pattern to three meals a day with no in-between snacks. Health, not taste, must be the new determining factor, she declares.

But, she adds, compulsive overeating is basically a psychological "disease attributable to personal insecurities and anxieties. If a permanent cure is to be affected, these conditions must be corrected. The program she outlines for doing this includes group therapy of a manner similar to that practiced by Alcoholics Anonymous, and a strong reliance upon religious faith and inspiration. Prayers and meditations are suggested.

Mrs. Brians' writing falls short of polished professionalism, but she succeeds in getting across her basic premises. And her ideas, rooted in experience, seem to constitute a more practical and effective approach to the problem than is often prescribed for those many Americans who, surrounded by the unprecedented abundance of foodstuffs and the traditional preferences for things most fattening, find themselves generally nudged into halfway measures that fail to do the job or procedures too drastic to be maintained for the required period of time.

To Tip Or Not To Tip?

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

To tip or not to tip? And if you should, how much?

These are questions which often confuse Americans traveling at home and abroad.

Actually there are no hard and fast rules. There are some countries where tipping is officially frowned upon, such as Iceland, Tahiti and Soviet Russia. And there are others where "service charges" must be added to hotel and other bills.

TIPPING PRACTICES not only differ between nations but often between city and country too. For instance, tips or service charges usually run higher at resort hotels than those in the city.

And, even where service charges have been included, hotel, restaurant and other service personnel still expect to have their palms crossed with a little extra silver.

A good rule of thumb overseas is to tip as you do at home. Find out what the local customs are and make sure to use the local currency. Overtipping can be as embarrassing as undertipping.

IF YOU WOULD usually tip 25 cents at home, make it a shilling (12 cents) in Britain, one franc (20 cents) in France, one Deutschemark (25 cents) in West Germany, and 100 lire (16 cents) in Italy.

When in doubt, be a sport and overtip. Many of the people who serve you in the United States and elsewhere depend on gratuities for the major share of their income.

Some resorts in the United States and most hotels overseas add a service charge to your bill, ranging from 10 to 25 per cent, for the staff. But doormen, porters and bellboys still expect a tip when services are performed. And then it is customary abroad to leave a little additional for the concierge if he has been extra helpful.

NEVER TIP desk clerks or other front office personnel.

Restaurants also may add the service charge, but even when they do waiters and other help expect you to leave extra silver on the table. If no service charge is included—take time to check the bill—tip at least 15 per cent, not including taxes. Don't forget to tip the table captain and the wine steward a dollar or so in the better restaurants and night clubs if they have been of service.

The maitre d' doesn't have to be tipped unless he has provided you with one of the better tables or some other extra service.

IN TOKYO, AT last reports, you do not have to tip taxicab drivers, believe it or not. But it is a "must" most everywhere else, including the United States.

Drivers expect at least 20 cents for short hauls and between 10 and 20 per cent of the fare on long jaunts. When there is a meter, make sure he throws the flag. If there is no meter or fixed rate, set the fare before you get into the cab.

Never tip airline employes, such as stewardesses, flight crews or tickets and sales personnel. If no fixed charge is levied, tip airport skycaps and railroad red caps at least 50 cents per bag. Don't tip conductors but you should give a couple of dollars to the pullman porter on long train trips.

THE HOLLAND-America Line recently abolished all tipping on its passenger ships. But otherwise, figure on at least $1 per day per person for the room steward and a similar sum for your waiter on cruises. Tip bartenders, deck stewards, bellhops, and others when services are rendered.

It is customary to wait until the eve of the last day of the cruise to tip the room steward and dining room waiter. Ship officers are never tipped. But even when the signs say "no tipping allowed," tip no less than 50 cents per bag to the dockworker who loads or unloads your luggage.

Ashore, barbers and hairdressers generally are tipped no less than 10 per cent—more in the fancier establishments — and washroom attendants and the girl who watches your hat and coat expect at least 25 cents to $1.

IN PUBLIC washrooms in Europe, give a few small coins to the old man or woman who cleans up and does other chores.

Theater ushers in the United States generally don't accept tips—but in most of Europe they do. A few small coins also will be enough.

JACKSON, N.H.

NEW ENGLAND enjoys a well-deserved reputation as a vacation mecca for tourists during the autumn season, what with its brisk weather and its brilliant show of fall foliage. But after the fall months have flown and winter has begun to make itself felt, the region still has many attractions for the traveler. The sightseeing takes on a special freshness with much of the countryside blanketed in white snow. The scene above shows the covered bridge at Jackson, N.H., so covered. And the region offers a wealth of winter sports activity at some of America's finest resorts. At left, some enthusiasts enjoy a break to soak up the sunshine at Vermont's Mount Snow while they assume temporarily the roles of spectators. And always, 12 months of the year, New England rewards its visitors with the rich pageantry of historical landmarks and ceremony.

A Merry Christmas In Ireland

For an average all-inclusive cost of from $10 to $14 per day guests, can make merry from lunchtime Dec. 24 to noon on Dec. 27, and it is still not too late to make the arrangements for this year's holidays.

All the hotels schedule a "get together" cocktail reception on Christmas Eve. After the guests have changed their status and become friends, the programmed fun begins with candlelight dinners, dances, caroling and treasure hunts.

Among the special events that tourists favor are "Pipe In The Pudding," which takes place on Christmas Day at about 9:15 p.m. Like a culinary master piece, savory plum pudding blazing with burning brandy is brought into the dining room with a musical fanfare.

The Christmas Follies have a daring charm while "high teas" are social occasions sweetened by extra cakes and goodies.

If you like your songs tuneful and brief there are mini-ballad recitals and if you can't resist the races your hotel will prepare a basket lunch for you to take to the Leopardstown track on St. Stephen's Day, Dec. 26.

With this steady pace of activities continuing throughout the three day holiday, one hotel thoughtfully serves breakfast in bed with Alka-Seltzers.

A free booklet listing hotel programs is available by writing to the Irish Tourist Board, 590 Fifth Avenue, New York City, 10036.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Recent releases from World-Pacific, Pacific Jazz and the Blue Note subsidiary of Liberty Records are highlighted by five discs of Asian music:

"PAUL HORN IN KASHMIR" — "Cosmic Consciousness" — World Pacific WPS-21445:

Flutist and reed man Horn is a convert of the famous Maharishi and therefore the album sports a striking photo of the white-garbed guru surrounded by the performing musicians with the white-capped Himalayas in the background.

Five short selections — one of them a tabla solo—are followed by a 19-minute-long raga played by the sitar alone. The tracks featuring Horn's flute are to my mind more successful than the Menuhin-Shankar attempts which have received such high sales.

"PAUL HORN IN INDIA" — World Pacific WPS-21447:

The short ragas (longest: eight minutes) feature Horn's flute with veena, violin and the usual drone instrument and drums. It should be understood that these are not dilettantish tries at affecting an exotic flavor to Western jazz, but carefully studied and authentic improvisations according to rules of Hindu classical music, performed by a jazz flutist from the culture of the West. They can be studied, the various beats and accents kept track of, etc., or they can be used as a background for meditation or just relaxation.

A beautiful album in every way.

The authentic Japanese sounds of the koto, shamisen, flute and shakuhachi are heard on this disc — one of the most listenable to Western ears of any devoted to Japanese classic music.

Nakanoshima's major piece is the "Suite for Koto and Shamisen," which takes up the first side of the LP. Nakanoshima uses some effects not heard in traditional music of this type, and they add excitement. His "Fantasia of Veena," also on the disc, shows his interest in Indian music. He uses shamisen and oboe to express the flavor of the Indian instruments, veena and kumari.

"TWO RAGA MOODS ON GUITAR" — Played by Brij Bhushan Kabra — World Pacific WPS-21452:

By sheer chance this young Indian came upon an old guitar and took to it right away. There was no one to show him how to handle the instrument, so he invented his own arrangement of strings, adding a drone string.

He plays the instrument with an Hawaiian-style steel bar to get the sliding sounds so much a part of Indian music. The result is very much like the sitar, but somewhat more thin-sounding.

A very unusual offering, in a lovely packaging.

The son of Ustad Ali Akbar Khan, this sarodist is already a top performer of Indian music.

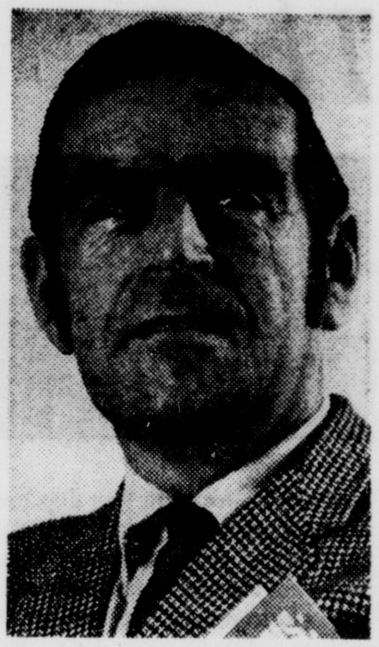
There is a long raga on each side of the disc, the first a graceful early morning raga and the second an evening melody of great importance in the repertory of Indian musicians.

"THE EMPTY FOXHOLE" — Ornette Coleman — Blue Note BST 84246:

This release has been around for some time and was chosen the best jazz album of 1967 by one group.

The title tune has one of Ornette's fascinating tonal melodies, standouts because of their infrequency. The other five tracks are in the vein of the "new thing," their communicative qualities assisted by a poem by Coleman for each of them.

In addition to alto sax, Ornette blows trumpet and violin. Charlie Haden is the expert bassist and the little trio is completed by Ornette's — believe it or not — 10-year-old son on drums. And he's great!



RICHARD DILLON, Mill Valley author, will speak on "Total Biography: A Case Study," Tuesday at 11 a.m. in Guzman Hall at Dominican College in San Rafael. He will discuss the writing of biography, using his recent book on John Sutter, "Fool's Gold," as an illustration.

"SERENADE TO A SOUL SISTER" — The Horace Silver Quintet, featuring Stanley Turrentine — Blue Note BST-84277:

The title tune is a funky, soulful one, and another dilly is "Psychedelic Sally." In addition to Turrentine's tenor sax, Charles Tolliver's trumpet work shines on the disc.

Silver's musical credo includes stress on melodic and harmonic beauty and meaningful simplicity. This is clearly shown, and much to be enjoyed in the LP.

"LIVE IN 3⅔/4 TIME"—The Don Ellis Orchestra — Pacific Jazz ST-20123:

Another great album by the only really avant-garde big band in existence.

Although Ellis' new LPs on the Columbia label seem to be getting the majority of the attention recently, he started on Pacific Jazz and still records for them. Interest in off-beat time signatures is the band's most noticeable characteristic.

The tune "Upstart," is in 3¾-over-4 time, or to be more logical, 11/8 time. Clear? Anyway, it swings like mad, and that's the pudding's proof. Another spree with this virtuoso young orchestra is "Barnum's Revenge," in which Ellis had redone "Won't You Come Home Bill Bailey" with wild abandon.

This band is about the most important thing happening in modern jazz today.

"EVERYWHERE" — The Gerald Wilson Orchestra — Pacific Jazz ST-20132:

While much more conservative than the Ellis orchestra, Gerald Wilson's group of talented Southern California studio men puts out a cool, relaxed, and readily identifiable sound that makes for lovely listening. Their list of albums is huge by now, and this one is good as the best.

Marin Poets' Corner

AFTER THANKSGIVING

Turkey, dressing, yams and wine
Combined for dinners really fine,
Wonderful friendship shared by all
'Round glowing hearths, no chilly fall
Could dampen for a single moment—
And now the day is done and spent
As coin, saved for a spending spree,
Yet it has left this thought with me:
"Happy spirit why not stay
And live within our hearts each day,
Why not our companion be
And Look with love on all we see,
Why not let our voices raise
In happiness and thankful praise?
Happy spirit please enter in
And let our 'peace on earth' begin."

An Ideal Workshop For Social Study

MAN'S RISE TO CIVILIZATION AS SHOWN BY THE INDIANS OF NORTH AMERICA FROM PRIMEVAL TIMES TO THE COMING OF THE INDUSTRIAL STATE by Peter Farb; Dutton, 332 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This work unquestionably must boast the year's longest title.

It is November's Book of the Month Club selection, and has been hailed in some quarters as "the answer" to Desmond Morris' "The Naked Ape" which I reviewed early this year.

Author Farb is curator of American Indian cultures in the Riverside Museum of New York City. He has written several popular books on North American natural regions and history.

In "Man's Rise, etc., etc.," he contends that the history of the Amerindian is an ideal workshop for the study of Western society as it is today. Its complexities and stresses may be traced to the primitive days, he holds, and what's happening is all explainable — even unto the hippies and the conspicious consumption of USA '68.

Farb's book is tri-sectional; it opens with a review of present-day anthropological knowledge of the evolution of society from simple bands through the dazzling total state of the Aztecs. The second section deals more with the archaeological history of man in the Western Hemisphere — how he arrived from Asia, and what he did once here.

The final section deals with "Societies under Stress," detailing the impact of the invasion by so-called civilized peoples into the Amerindian's territory.

A major premise of Farb's work is that man's societies do evolve through time, environmental pressures and mixtures with other societies; he explains that this is disputed by some other anthropology and social science thinkers.

"Most social scientists do not believe that cultures are haphazard. But they disagree considerably about the patterns they detect. One commonly heard explanation is based on the biology of man. It seeks to interpret human culture on the basis of man's brain, adrenal glands, muscular responses and nervous system. But the fallacy in logic here is that behavior common to all people cannot explain why particular kinds of behavior exist among some groups . . . but not among others," Farb writes.

He cites as examples that a devout Jew will retain his hat and shoes in his temple, a Christian will wear shoes but not hat in church and a Moslem will wear headgear but not shoes.

Another explanation of culture patterns Farb rejects is the psychological one advocated by Ruth Benedict — for instance that Pueblo Indians have a placid culture because they are non-aggressive people.

"No one denies that human personality is shaped by the culture into which it is born. But no one has ever demonstrated the reverse . . ." according to Farb.

And, too:

"Darwin was assuredly in error when he declared flatly that 'there is no fundamental difference between man and the higher animals in their mental facilities.' The truth is that man is different from the apes; he belongs to a separate category of being altogether. The social life of a non-human is governed by its anatomy and physiology, whereas society is ruled by culture," Farb declares.

". . . Economic teamwork is non-existent among the non-human primates . . . apes and monkeys are utterly incapable of having any such conceptions" as soul, death, or myth or religion, Farb flatly asserts.

My reaction on reading these and many of Farb's other passages is to wonder how on the one hand he can base the whole concept of cultural development on evolution — and reject Darwin — how he can apparently contradict "The Naked Ape" almost as if reciting other readers' reactions to it without going directly to the source — and to wonder if some of the passages on the derivation of Marxism don't hint at an arch-conservative political outlook rare among scientists.

On the other hand, his descriptions of Amerindian cultures are fascinating; his comparisons of the death throes of some tribes in the face of onrushing "civilization" and today's protest movements reach home beautifully.

His final complaint is that modern man has spent millions digging up relics of the Amerindian past, yet but a pittance to preserve what cultures do survive. Here, I wish he had been more constructive, perhaps rising above a mere "do something" plea.

In summing up: "Man's Rise, etc." is an exciting review of what Amerindian culture was and has become. As an answer to "The Naked Ape," Wooldridge's "Mechanical Man" and other recent concepts of man's derivation, I found it of less value.

Those Who Stayed Operational

BLACK PROFILES by George R. Metcalf; McGraw-Hill, 341 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Joanne Pratt.

"Maybe I get low sometimes but then I tell myself, 'You got to stay operational'." So James Meredith talked himself into finishing his bleak year at the University of Mississippi.

One way or another, Meredith — and the other exceptional black men and women George Metcalf tells about — have managed to stay operational in 20th Century white America. (At first glance, fantastic old Harriet Tubman, Underground Railroad agent and Civil War scout, seems out of place in a 20th Century list. But, though born back about 1820, she lived on until 1913.

Only one of the group gave over to final despair. Scholarly Dr. William E. B. Du Bois, when he was in his 90s and living in Africa, said, "In my own country, for nearly half a century, I have been nothing but a 'nigger'."

Du Bois, however, along with Martin Luther King Jr., Roy Wilkins, Thurgood Marshall, Jackie Robinson, Harriet Tubman, Medgar Wiley Evers, James H. Meredith, Rosa Parks, Edward W. Brooke and Whitney Moore Young Jr., offered most of his life effort to our century's struggle against inequality and white intransigence.

Mostly, each has moved along with terribly slow, patient steps, within the framework of an NAACP or SCLC or National Urban League plan. Sometimes, as Rosa Parks did, one leaped ahead with an intuitively simple, right act: "My shoulder ached, I had had a bad day at work. I was tired from sewing all day, and all of a sudden everything was just too much. It didn't seem logical . . . I had paid the same fare. I stayed where I was."

During the time that other black passengers, too, refused to ride, ever again, in segregated bus seats, the Montgomery, Ala., bus company lost $750,000. It cost the United States more than five million dollars to make sure that James Meredith stayed alive long enough to enter and graduate from "Ole Miss." Three years ago, after Watts, Whitney Young estimated that riots had already cost us 175 million dollars in property damages.

George Metcalf, the white authoh of "Black Profiles," served for 14 years as a state senator in New York. In 1965 he decided not to run for re-election so he could spend more time writing and working for racial justice. He is president of the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing.

His research is thorough, his biographies fresh and perceptive, and his book well worth reading.

"PEANUTS" books continue to pour onto the market, their popularity unabated, one of the latest being "The Parable of Peanuts" (Harper & Row, $4.95 clothbound, $1.95 paperback) by Robert L. Again Short, a theology scholar, analyzes the basic Christian lessons to be learned from the antics and observations of Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Lucy, Linus and company. Even if you prefer to read the strip for fun only, there are still some 250 choice Charles Schulz cartoons to entertain you.

New On Gardening

HOW TO GROW HOUSE PLANTS by Sunset editors; Lane, 96 pages, softcover, $1.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

This newest Sunset gardening book takes up a timely topic for this season and provides practical guidelines on indoor plant culture, along with generous illustrations that make clear the techniques. The book also provides helpful ideas on the use of plants in home decor. As always, the Sunset editors get down to the basics and waste no time on frills and fads.

Along with this excellent new guide, Sunset's Lane Magazine and Book Co. has updated its time-proven "How to Grow Bulbs," concentrating upon the 10 most popular flower bulbs of the West, but also providing some information upon the less familiar ones.

Lessons From The Election That Shirley Lost

Shirley Temple Black got most of the publicity in last year's special congressional election in San Mateo County, but it was Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey Jr. who got the most of what really counted — votes.

This fascinating account of their battle, by one of McCloskey's campaign aides, would make a fine election handbook anywhere in California—especially in suburban counties such as Marin. To win, campaign as McCloskey did. To lose, follow Mrs. Black's example.

"In the past," Minott says, "middle-class suburbia has been able to buy time and space and flee the problems of urban America," but suburbanites now have "discovered that there is no place to which they may run. The war, smog, water pollution, overcrowded schools, racial problems, inadequate transportation, archaic forms of local government, excessive taxation, all the problems confronting an affluent America have pursued them to their semi-rural doorsteps."

McCloskey won, he finds, because more than 3,000 "citizens concerned about such problems drifted together into an 'apartisan' coalition" in the best maverick Progressive tradition

"What the public remembered from the 30s was a person of sweetness and light," writes Minott of her, but "what was presented during the campaign was an austere matron given to moralistic homilies of the 'mother knows best' variety."

Most of all, he says, "it was her obvious upper middle-class isolation from the realities of life that was irritating . . . Condescensian and patronization dripped from her as she stated that his (black man) plight and problems were analogous to the upbringing of unruly children."

"Now I know how the game is played," Minott quotes Mrs. Black when she conceded defeat. Her concession telegram to McCloskey was equally gracious. In its entirety, it read: "Congratulations on your victory."

Minott also details how the candidate counts more with the California voter than his party. McCloskey, responding to Gov. Ronald Reagan's criticism of his refusal to endorse Max Rafferty, said "I put several things ahead of party loyalty — one is honesty and one is forthrightness. You can be an honorable Republican, yet not a slave to the party."

McCloskey's political philosophy sounds like a sure formula for success in California. However, it also sounds a bit like Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel's approach to partisan politics,

Get Ready For The New Roses

With many roses in Marin County still showing bloom, it is somewhat startling to realize that another bareroot planting season is almost upon us.

But Marin nurseries generally begin receiving their bareroot roses just prior to Christmas.

And expectations are that the arrival date this year will be normal.

This means, incidentally, that at least some bareroot rose shrubs will be available for purchase as Christmas gifts for gardeners.

THERE ARE, however, many longer lasting reasons for purchasing your new roses bareroot.

By so doing you'll get a better rose from a larger selection, and you'll get it cheaper. If you delay until after the bareroot season, you'll be selecting from stock that has already been picked over. And you'll have to pay for the extra care the nurseryman has gone to in planting the bushes into containers and in caring for them.

This, of course, explains why most roses purchased and planted in Marin are bareroot season projects.

WHILE THE opening of the bareroot rose season is still some three weeks in the offing, there are certain preliminary steps you can take now.

These involve the digging out of old roses that have served their purpose and lost their glory, preparatory to their replacement with new shrubs.

And the working of the soil. Peat moss and leaf mold or special planter mix in liberal amounts, worked in to a depth of at least two feet while the soil isn't soggy from a recent rain, will provide the rose bush with the environment in which it thrives.

DO THIS, whether replacing an old bush or starting a brand new planting site.

Later on, of course, you will be faced with the problem of selecting the kind of rose that best suits your needs and tastes. There is always a demand for the new All-America roses, although these are generally in short supply. Plenty of other fine roses, new and old, will be available, however, including new color hues and combinations, improved fragrance and flower forms, and plants that are hardier than most or less susceptible to mildew.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓Almost all shrubs and trees may be planted in early December. Camellias and azaleas are especially good bets because they bloom in winter and spring to give you quick rewards.

✓Separate begonia tubers from their stems as the latter dry off. Wash the soil from the tubers and store them in a dry place until next year.

✓Remember, too, in shopping for Christmas gifts that the "green thumber" always appreciates garden tools or plants.

✓It's too early to prune roses in California: Wait until January or February.

✓In selecting a tree for the lawn, keep the size factor in mind and pick a small or medium-size tree such as the liquidambar, the European white birch or the St. Mary's magnolia.

THE NEW yellow hybrid tea rose, the Chateau La Salle, is a northern California product, developed by hybridizer Dr. Dennison Morey and introduced by General Bionomics of Santa Rosa. Its rich fragrance recalls the bouquet of the wine Chateau La Salle, made from Muscat de Frontignan grapes, for which it was named. The rose has a long blooming season, boasts a dark and lustrous foliage, and is almost immune to mildew and rust, as well as being highly resistant to other foliage ills.

Setting The Stage For Spring

The Marin gardener who will have color to spare next spring is the one who is busy setting the stage for that garden spectacular right now.

For instance, spring-blooming bulbs that have not already gone into the ground should do so very soon.

If you have not already purchased your bulbs, then you are probably out of luck. Most nurseries are sold out. However, two of the more popular bulbs in Marin, the anemone and the ranunculus, can be found in some nurseries in flats. Grab them while you have the chance.

NOW IS THE time, too, for planting a number of perennials including delphiniums, canterbury bells, sweet williams, columbines and gerberas or Transvaal daisies. For the last-named, good drainage is a must. Plant them with the crowns above the soil, and keep an eye out for water standing about them after rains.

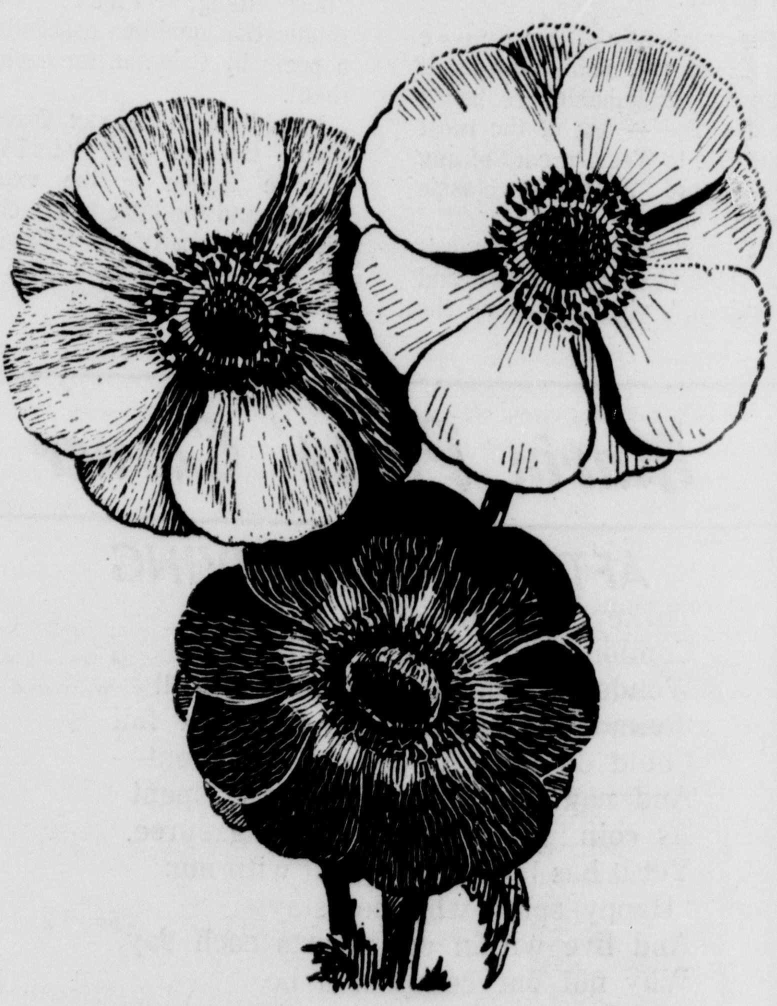
Flowering shrubs that can go in now include such deciduous favorites as weigela, flowering quince, forsythia, dogwood and magnolia, and evergreens like daphne, raphilepsis and native lilacs.

Camellias and azaleas belong at the top of the current planting list.

IT'S ALSO A good time for planting the flowering-type trees, such as flowering peaches, flowering cherries, crabapples and plums.

Some of these, however, will be available in a few weeks in bareroot form, and you may prefer to wait until then.

Whether you plant these now or later, there are still plenty of other planting possibilities to keep you busy when the fickle December weather permits you in the garden.



IT'S TOO late to find most spring-blooming bulbs in the nurseries now for fall planting, but the anemone or wind-flower can sometimes be discovered growing in flats and available for easy planting. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

Prejudice And Nostalgia In The Fanciful World Of Sports

By DON KEOWN

THE BLACK ATHLETE: A SHAMEFUL STORY by Jack Olsen; Time-Life, 221 pages, $4.95.

YESTERDAY IN SPORT by Sports Illustrated editors; Time-Life, 192 pages, $5.95.

Most white Americans were shocked and a good many infuriated when two young Negro winners of medals at the recent Olympic Games in Mexico City chose the awards presentation ceremony for a demonstration of protest of the mistreatment of their race in their home country.

"Why athletes?" the question ran. Surely they, of all black people, were being accorded a fair deal in the USA.

Jack Olsen gives them some blunt answers in his book, "The Black Athlete: A Shameful Story," which he subtitles tellingly "The Myth of Integration in American Sport."

This is not a harangue by some black militant seeking to agitate. Olsen, a white with a solid background as a newspaper and magazine writer of politics, crime and sports, is now senior editor of Sports Illustrated magazine, part of the Time-Life empire that is anything but unfriendly toward the establishment.

Olsen is, therefore, all the more impressive as he writes with real anger and scorn of the hypocrisy rampant in American athletics, and he absolutely devastates the pose sports has struck as a leader in the struggle for equality.

No, Olsen tells us, the black athlete has not received a fair deal, either in our colleges or on our professional teams. To prove the point, he names names and cites examples — many, many of them — in which sports have adhered to the long cherished belief of white society that somehow the Negro is inferior and should be relegated to secondary status.

The Negro athlete recruited by a college is likely to arrive woefully unprepared and severely handicapped, the product of a third-rate southern segregated or northern ghetto high school, with a family background that is impoverished and unstable.

Once on campus, he discovers the college is not at all interested in educating him. He is there as a performer, not as a scholar. Off the athletic field, he is given little guidance. His closest contacts are the coaches, usually incapable of providing the kind of help and advice he needs. Socially, he leads a lonely, ostracized life. Once his eligibility expires, he is callously discarded. Many, many never graduate.

Only the comparative handful who make the grade in professional athletics have any real future.

And Olsen shows clearly that the Negro, to earn a place on a professional team, must be not simply the equal of his white rival in ability, but superior to him — often far superior. Even then, he'll labor at a lower pay scale and often under humiliating conditions, bullied by coaches and racist fans and teammates and restricted from choice positions. Olsen uses the St. Louis Cardinal football team, notorious for its racism, as his horrible example, but not as his only one.

Once the Negro is through as a professional athlete, he discovers the game has no further use for him. Front office and coaching jobs are the province of the whites. There is nothing sadder, Olsen says, than the used-up Negro athlete who must return to the cold and bigoted world outside of sports, totally untrained to cope with it.

As an athlete he has known at least some acclaim, even perhaps idolatry, on the playing field to partially offset the poisonous prejudice that confronts him after the game. Now he must adjust to being just another black face in the crowd.

Olsen's indictment is a stinging one. The sports establishment, no doubt, will answer as best it can with the old cliches by pointing to the Willie Mays who have made it big and the Rafer Johnsons who have been educated in college. But Olsen is writing, not about the handful, but about the mass of black athletes, and the picture he paints is an unpretty but convincing one.

It should be kept in mind, however, that bigotry in sports is not a single, disfiguring blemish upon the social face of America. Rather it is but one sore from the disease, white racism, that infects all America, as diagnosed by the Kerner Commission.

The reader will complete Jack Olsen's book with a better understanding of why Tommie Smith and John Carlos were motivated to act as they did in Mexico City. Their protest may have been ill-timed. But who are we whites to talk about the time factor more than a century after the Civil War and nearly 200 years after the ringing equality promises of the Declaration of Independence and our Constitution?

MORE IN TUNE with the fanciful world in which the more fanatical followers of sport exist is another Time-Life product, "Yesterday in Sport."

Produced by the Sports Illustrated staff, it is a nostalgic trip into the past recreating some of the most exciting moments in athletics — the kinds of events that have remained alive in the memories and the arguments of the oldtimers, with perhaps the facts embellished just a bit in the process and the passing of time.

A DRAMATIC MOMENT in sports history spotlighted two of baseball's all-time greats as Babe Ruth, right, tried to cheer up his longtime New York Yankee teammate Lou Gehrig on July 4, 1949, when thousands jammed Yankee Stadium to pay tribute to the "Iron Horse" whose career was coming to an end. Gehrig was soon to die of a rare form of infantile paralysis.

In its pages the sports buff can relive such experiences as Lou Gehrig's last day in baseball, the Roger Bannister-John Landry mile duel that cracked the four-minute barrier, Joe DiMaggio's record breaking consecutive game hitting streak, Red Grange on the rampage on the gridiron.

Or he can go still farther back to James Naismith inventing the game of basketball, the 1908 New York to Paris automobile race across three continents, Georgia Tech's 222 to 0 football slaughter of Cumberland, John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain squaring off in the boxing ring, baseball's Black Sox scandal.

The book takes note, too, of the less publicized sports with stories on such activities as big game hunting, bicycling, the marathon events, mountain climbing, sailing, rodeo and even bridge.

The writers include sports columnists and reporters from several decades plus notables such as George Bernard Shaw and William Faulkner, and personal reminiscenses by the likes of Black Sox first baseman Chick Gandil and the daughter-in-law of James Naismith.

If one of the males on your Christmas gift list is a sports buff, this book, very reasonably priced, is the answer to your problem. Particularly so if he is a member of that generation that stoutly ignores the amazing new records being compiled by today's athletes and insists that these upstarts can't hold a candle to the heroes of the good old days.

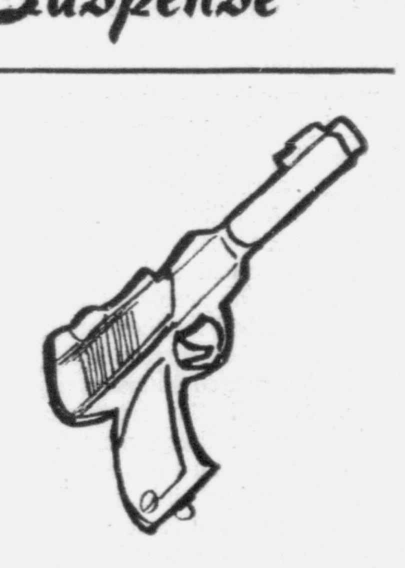
GAVIN LAMBERT'S "The Slide Area," described by Christopher Isherwood as "the most truthful stories about the film world and its suburbia I have ever read" and widely acclaimed by others, has been reprinted by Dial Press.

First published in 1959, this collection of seven short stories or "scenes of Hollywood life" has been out of print for a number of years. Yet, as Lambert's own reputation has grown, so has that of "The Slide Area," so that many rate it along side F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Last Tycoon" and Nathaniel West's "The Day of the Locust" as the best fiction ever written about Hollywood.

Priced at $4.50, it is not to be missed by serious fans of the Hollywood scene or admirers of superior writing.

Sleuths & Suspense

MURDER ON A BAD TRIP by June Drummond; Holt; Rinehart and Winston, 188 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.



Besides being a top-rated mystery with lots of suspense this novel contains a plea and a warning about the drug-oriented world we live in.

In Gantry, a mythical city in a mythical country, some one puts LSD in the city reservoir. The result is death for a few, evacuation for many, and chaos for everyone. There also is a tug-of-war between police, armed forces and politicians for control.

Author Drummond's warning seems to be that it could happen and that governments might be poorly equipped to deal with such a situation. But this is fiction and not a sermon, and it takes policeman David Cope to sniff out the criminal in a rough and chilling story.

Watch Your Step In Using The Ladder

Outside ladders get lots of attention at this time of the year.

In our part of the country where the weather remains mild throughout the winter, outside ladders are utilized for all the usual purposes — painting, staining, caulking, roof repairing, and such general maintenance chores as cleaning gutters and downspouts of accumulated leaves and debris.

WHATEVER ITS purpose, the outside ladder must be handled properly to prevent accidents.

This begins with placement of the ladder against the house at the proper angle. To get this balance, the bottom of the ladder should be a specific distance away from the house. That specific distance is one-fourth the length of the ladder. Thus, when placing a 12-foot ladder against the house, see that the bottom of it is three feet from the house.

Other things to insure safety in handling and working on an outside ladder are:

IF THE GROUND on which the ladder rests is soft, place a wide, solid board under the legs, then stand on the bottom rung and jump up and down on it a few times to be sure the board is firmly placed.

If the ground is hard, the feet of the ladder should be equipped with safety treads or one of the other devices designed to prevent slipping.

Where there is even the slightest doubt about the solidity of the setup, use roof ladder hooks, which fasten onto the high rungs of the ladder and hook over the roof ridge.

Forget about using the ladder when there is a strong wind.

BEFORE PUTTING up the ladder, examine it for structural defects. Such defects can be hidden by paint, so be sure that you use only a clear finish on the ladder.

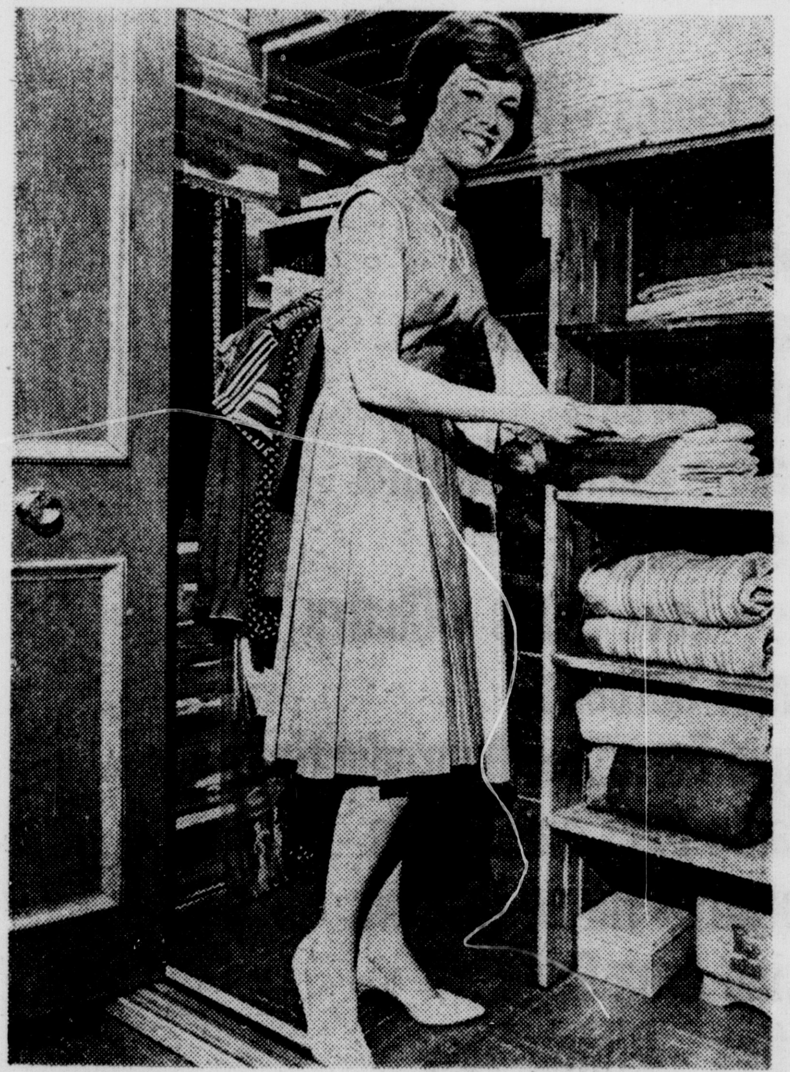
Never go higher than the second step from the top of the ladder; working from the third step from the top is even better.

Don't try to show how strong you are by shifting the position of long heavy ladders. Get someone to help you.

When working in front of a door, either keep it wide open or lock it.

DON'T WORK on the ladder when children are playing nearby. Statistics show that a considerable percentage of ladder accidents occur when children bump into ladder bases.

While on the ladder, don't reach out too far on either side; the shifting of weight may cause the ladder to slide.



WITH THE addition of some shelving and vertical dividers you can literally make your large closet do double duty by installing, in effect, a linen closet within a closet. Above, cedar lumber has been used for shelving and dividers, with the right side now accommodating bedding, the left side clothing. Hanger bar is but five feet off the floor for most efficient use of available space. While adding the shelving, it might be a good idea to mothproof your closet with a clear cedar lining that comes in easy-to-handle pieces that are nailed directly to closet walls.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

The Holiday Season is here. The music of Christmas will be everywhere. Maybe this holiday will bring you and your family a stereo music system that will provide beautiful music throughout the entire year. A Component music system will provide the full range and clarity of a live performance.

What are the basic parts of a component group? How does one go about the task of choosing the right units? The basic components are a stereo tuner/amplifier (receiver), two matched speaker systems, and a record changer with cartridge. If desired, a tape recorder and player deck may be added.

The stereo tuner/amplifier is a combined FM stereo tuning section, a preamplifier control section, and a power amplifier section. Some units also incorporate the AM tuning section. This electronic component is of all solid state design; that is, it uses transistors instead of tubes. Since transistors are quite small and take very little space, and since they do not create very much heat, the modern all-in-one units perform with as much quality as did the separate tuner preamp and amp commonly used in the past. Each loudspeaker system may consist of a single full range speaker mounted in an appropriate cabinet, or each system may have two or three units mounted in the cabinet. A larger speaker is used for bass and a smaller speaker or horn is used for the high tones in a two-way system. The two units are called the woofer and tweeter. In a three-way system a mid range speaker or horn is added. The record changer is the turntable with tone arm and cartridge used for playing the stereo LP records.

To choose a system one should visit a reliable dealer that specializes in components. While there, a sound specialist will demonstrate speaker systems by playing stereo pairs and switching to different pairs for comparison. After deciding which speakers will fit your taste, budget, and decor a receiver can be selected which will have enough power to operate the speakers. The audio specialist will guide you in this selection. Lastly, the record changer can be chosen that will blend in with the components already selected. It is really very simple and fun if you visit the right store. Why not visit our Hi-Fi show rooms and let our sound specialists guide you. Make this a musical holiday.

SOME NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS

The book "The Adventures of Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" has now gone full circle.

It was first published posthumously as the only children's story written by the late Ian Fleming, creator of James Bond. Subsequently it was turned into a screenplay and movie, starring Dick Van Dyke and tailored to the family audience at which the Walt Disney pictures generally are aimed.

Now Chitty Chitty Bang Bang is back in book format again. this time in a special motion picture edition done by Albert G. Miller with color photograph illustrations taken from the movie. Random House is the publisher and the price is $2.75.

The story of the Potts family and the old car that brought such a change into their lives retains its charm, and the pictures are filled with color, action and humor.

The production of picture books based upon movies with special allure for youngsters is becoming an increasing popular technique with publishers, and in this case proves quite successful. One has only to note the long lines of kids in front of the theater boxoffice when a Disney or Disney-like matinee bill is playing to know that the appeal is there.

Some other books for the juniors:

Elephants are well-established as storybook favorites of the very young. "Elmer: The Story of a Patchwork Elephant" (McGraw-Hill, $4.50) by David McKee should be all the more irresistible for the just-starting-to-school set, since he has an unusual coloration — a plaid that includes orange, purple and other bright hues. It causes Elmer problems. And it also creates a funny yet meaningful story that the artist-author has illustrated brightly and humorously.

David McKee, says the jacket blurb for "Mr. Benn-Red Knight" (McGraw-Hill, $4.50), is one of England's most original artist-authors of children's literature. And the book bears out the claim. It is a fantasy tale of a bank clerk whose invitation to a fancy dress ball draws him into some strange adventures involving, among other things, a dragon. There's a great variety in the artwork, no two pages being of quite the same style. It is one of those books best described as "different," that may either hold very great appeal or no interest at all for the child.

The title "Plants That Eat Animals" (McGraw-Hill, $3.50), has a gruesome, science fiction sound, but this reversal of the more general order of nature does occur and is part of the planet's scheme of life. University of London botanist Linna Bentley tells about it — how some specialized plants trap and devour insects, or even small animals. Colin Threadgall provides the entomologically accurate illustrations. It's a subject that may cause shudders in some more sensitive children, but one that will fascinate the scientifically mature and curious.

Twelve espionage agents, from the American Revolutionary War hero Nathan Hale to Russia's Rudolf Abel and Richard Sorge, are the subjects of "The Master Spy" (McGraw-Hill, $2.95) by Dan Halacy. Mata Hari, Cicero, Mary Louvestre, William Sebold and Stig Wennerstrom are some of the other featured names. Although writing for young readers, Halacy goes beyond the intrigue and excitement to study in considerable depth just why these people became agents, and the effects upon history of their spying. It's a better book than a somewhat gaudy cover would indicate.

As a child in Russia, the late Valery Carrick was fascinated by the folk tales he heard. As a young man he began drawing the characters of the stories. Then, in his 40s, he started writing the tales and fitting them to the earlier artwork. His "picture tales" appeared in six volumes and won great popularity with children. Now Dover Publications has reprinted the best known, "Picture Folk-Tales," as a $1.25 paperback, complete with Carrick's classic drawings and the simple narration so easily followed by children.

Also reprinted by Dover: "Puck of Pook's Hill" ($2) by Rudyard Kipling. It is the Kipling blending of mythology and history of ancient England in which Puck out of Midsummer Night's Dream and his friends relate to two children 10 adventure stories. Each story is followed by Kipling's poetry.

Sure enough! Right on the edge of the garden was a hole!
And sticking out of it
was a wiggly thing,
wiggling all over!
Early Bird pecked at it with his beak.
"Hello, worm," he said.

THE APPEALING illustration is from the book "The Early Bird," with Richard Scarry as author and illustrator. Random House is the publisher.

Parents, and even a good many grandparents, are too young today to have known or to remember the America of the 1920s. Youngsters, of course, know nothing about it at all. Because it was a period without wars and without any great crises until the stock market crash of 1929, it is accorded relatively little space in the history books. But Fon W. Boardman Jr. in his "America and the Jazz Age" (Walck, $4.50), makes it clear that the era between the end of World War I and the crash was a colorful and eventful if somewhat frivolous time. The book is easy reading, but it is also good sound history.

"Proud to be Amish" (Crown, $3.50), by Mildred Jordan is about a Pennsylvania Dutch child torn between her Old Order upbringing and her desire for worldly things. The author resides in the heart of the Amish country in Pennsylvania, and has a deep understanding of them. Her book tells young readers, 9 to 12, much about these admirable people, and speaks also with honesty about the kind of temptations that confront the new generation, non-Amish as well as Amish.

A new reference book for juniors is "The Look-It-Up Book of Presidents" (Random House, $3.95) by Wyatt Blassingame. It consists of thumbnail biographies of each of our Presidents, varying in length with their importance and accompanied by artwork by Ted Lewin including portraits. A final chart summarizes the principal in-office achievements of each.

Also for young history buffs is "Great American Battles" (Random House, $3.95), a Landmark Giant Series book by Robert Lecklie. Leckie highlights 11 major conflicts involving Americans, from the French and Indian War to the Korean strife. Reproductions of old paintings, photographs and drawings are all included in the illustrations. Lecklie, a prolific writer for both adults and juniors, makes his accounts dramatic, and emphasizes the military commanders credited with the victories. Those who decry the glorification of war may balk at putting this book in the hands of their youngsters.

Help For Those Fighting The War Against Calories

COMPULSIVE OVEREATERS' GUIDE by Pearl Brians; Brians Publishing Co., 182 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Mrs. Brians, active for a number of years with self-improvement groups formed primarily to combat overweight, published this book privately in Penngrove, Sonoma County, where she resides.

She approaches the problem of gluttony from both its physical and its psychological aspects.

The dietary practices she recommends are principally a strict abstinence from starches and sweets, and a rigid restriction of the feeding pattern to three meals a day with no in-between snacks. Health, not taste, must be the new determining factor, she declares.

But, she adds, compulsive overeating is basically a psychological "disease attributable to personal insecurities and anxieties. If a permanent cure is to be affected, these conditions must be corrected. The program she outlines for doing this includes group therapy of a manner similar to that practiced by Alcoholics Anonymous, and a strong reliance upon religious faith and inspiration. Prayers and meditations are suggested.

Mrs. Brians' writing falls short of polished professionalism, but she succeeds in getting across her basic premises. And her ideas, rooted in experience, seem to constitute a more practical and effective approach to the problem than is often prescribed for those many Americans who, surrounded by the unprecedented abundance of foodstuffs and the traditional preferences for things most fattening, find themselves generally nudged into halfway measures that fail to do the job or procedures too drastic to be maintained for the required period of time.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Recent releases from World-Pacific, Pacific Jazz and the Blue Note subsidiary of Liberty Records are highlighted by five discs of Asian music:

"PAUL HORN IN KASHMIR" — "Cosmic Consciousness" — World Pacific WPS-21445:

Flutist and reed man Horn is a convert of the famous Maharishi and therefore the album sports a striking photo of the white-garbed guru surrounded by the performing musicians with the white-capped Himalayas in the background.

Five short selections — one of them a tabla solo—are followed by a 19-minute-long raga played by the sitar alone. The tracks featuring Horn's flute are to my mind more successful than the Menuhin-Shankar attempts which have received such high sales.

"PAUL HORN IN INDIA" — World Pacific WPS-21447:

Horn recorded this album with a group of Indian musicians just after completing the Maharashi's course.

The short ragas (longest: eight minutes) feature Horn's flute with veena, violin and the usual drone instrument and drums. It should be understood that these are not dilettantish tries at affecting an exotic flavor to Western jazz, but carefully studied and authentic improvisations according to rules of Hindu classical music, performed by a jazz flutist from the culture of the West. They can be studied, the various beats and accents kept track of, etc., or they can be used as a background for meditation or just relaxation.

A beautiful album in every way.

The authentic Japanese sounds of the koto, shamisen, flute and shakuhachi are heard on this disc — one of the most listenable to Western ears of any devoted to Japanese classic music.

Nakanoshima's major piece is the "Suite for Koto and Shamisen," which takes up the first side of the LP. Nakanoshima uses some effects not heard in traditional music of this type, and they add excitement. His "Fantasia of Veena," also on the disc, shows his interest in Indian music. He uses shamisen and oboe to express the flavor of the Indian instruments, veena and kumari.

"TWO RAGA MOODS ON GUITAR" — Played by Brij Bhushan Kabra — World Pacific WPS-21452:

By sheer chance this young Indian came upon an old guitar and took to it right away. There was no one to show him how to handle the instrument, so he invented his own arrangement of strings, adding a drone string.

He plays the instrument with an Hawaiian-style steel bar to get the sliding sounds so much a part of Indian music. The result is very much like the sitar, but somewhat more thin-sounding.

A very unusual offering, in a lovely packaging.

The son of Ustad Ali Akbar Khan, this sarodist is already a top performer of Indian music.

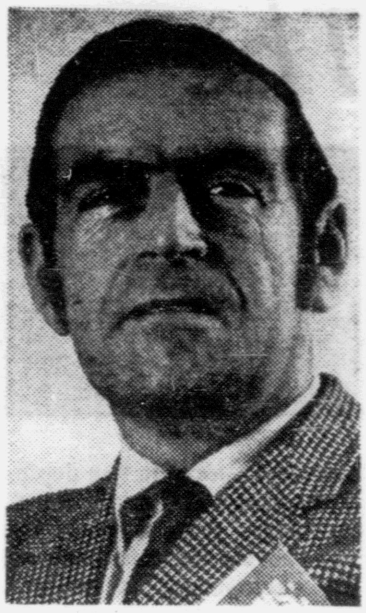
There is a long raga on each side of the disc, the first a graceful early morning raga and the second an evening melody of great importance in the repertory of Indian musicians.

"THE EMPTY FOXHOLE" — Ornette Coleman — Blue Note BST 84246:

This release has been around for some time and was chosen the best jazz album of 1967 by one group.

The title tune has one of Ornette's fascinating tonal melodies, standouts because of their infrequency. The other five tracks are in the vein of the "new thing," their communicative qualities assisted by a poem by Coleman for each of them.

In addition to alto sax, Ornette blows trumpet and violin. Charlie Haden is the expert bassist and the little trio is completed by Ornette's — believe it or not — 10-year-old son on drums. And he's great!



RICHARD DILLON, Mill Valley author, will speak on "Total Biography: A Case Study," Tuesday at 11 a.m. in Guzman Hall at Dominican College in San Rafael. He will discuss the writing of biography, using his recent book on John Sutter, "Fool's Gold," as an illustration.

"SERENADE TO A SOUL SISTER" — The Horace Silver Quintet, featuring Stanley Turrentine — Blue Note BST-84277:

The title tune is a funky, soulful one, and another dilly is "Psychedelic Sally." In addition to Turrentine's tenor sax, Charles Tolliver's trumpet work shines on the disc.

Silver's musical credo includes stress on melodic and harmonic beauty and meaningful simplicity. This is clearly shown, and much to be enjoyed in the LP.

"LIVE IN 3⅔/4 TIME"—The Don Ellis Orchestra — Pacific Jazz ST-20123:

Another great album by the only really avant-garde big band in existence.

Although Ellis' new LPs on the Columbia label seem to be getting the majority of the attention recently, he started on Pacific Jazz and still records for them. Interest in off-beat time signatures is the band's most noticeable characteristic.

The tune "Upstart," is in 3¾-over-4 time, or to be more logical, 11/8 time. Clear? Anyway, it swings like mad, and that's the pudding's proof. Another spree with this virtuoso young orchestra is "Barnum's Revenge," in which Ellis had redone "Won't You Come Home Bill Bailey" with wild abandon.

This band is about the most important thing happening in modern jazz today.

"EVERYWHERE" — The Gerald Wilson Orchestra — Pacific Jazz ST-20132:

While much more conservative than the Ellis orchestra, Gerald Wilson's group of talented Southern California studio men puts out a cool, relaxed, and readily identifiable sound that makes for lovely listening. Their list of albums is huge by now, and this one is good as the best.

AFTER THANKSGIVING

Turkey, dressing, yams and wine
Combined for dinners really fine,
Wonderful friendship shared by all
'Round glowing hearths, no chilly fall
Could dampen for a single moment—
And now the day is done and spent
As coin, saved for a spending spree,
Yet it has left this thought with me:
"Happy spirit why not stay
And live within our hearts each day,
Why not our companion be
And Look with love on all we see,
Why not let our voices raise
In happiness and thankful praise?
Happy spirit please enter in
And let our 'peace on earth' begin."

Hope Abandoned For Mine Crew; Portals Sealed

Gloom Settles Over Valley; Grim News Told In Church

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (UPI)—"Let us pray," the bishop intoned, and grieving women wailed.

"Our father, who art in heaven . . ." A hush fell over the packed, one-room church. A minute later, they left for home to be alone with their families and their sorrow.

The news they had tried so hard to forestall had come at last: 78 men were given up for dead.

The mine was to be sealed.

Even as families and friends were being told the wrenching decision, work crews went about the task of pouring hundreds of tons of steel and concrete into the five portals of the Mannington No. 9 mine, forever sealing the fate of the 78 miners trapped 700 feet underground by a series of explosions and fires that raged unchecked since the first blast Nov. 20.

The mine was sealed completely before dawn today. Because the danger of explosions was "still great," company officials said, no one was allowed in the vicinity of the five portals.

As word spread of the worst American mining accident in 17 years, gloom covered the valley. The little towns that dot the coal fields of northern West Virginia are numbered by the frequency with which they have been visited by disaster. Sixteen men died at the same mine in 1954. A month ago four persons died in a furniture store fire.

A sense of foreboding struck the 78 families yesterday afternoon when representatives of the Consolidation Coal Co. telephoned and asked them to come to the James Fork United Methodist Church near the mine.

The wooden pews in the tiny, red brick church can hold 100. About 200 showed up, lining the aisle, walls and choir loft.

John Corcoran, president of Consolidation Coal Co., walked slowly down the aisle, turned at the altar and spoke:

"When I first came here a few days ago I made a promise that when the time came I would be with you. That time

Battles Flare; Saigon Sets Ex-Cong Free

SAIGON (AP) — Quick-striking troopers of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division mauled a North Vietnamese battalion of about 400 men in a jungle battle near the Cambodian border, the U.S. Command said today.

Elsewhere 140 captured Viet Cong shouting anti-Communist slogans were turned loose on the streets of three South Vietnamese cities in a government effort to win over guerrilla troops and strengthen Saigon's position at the Paris peace talks. (See picture, page 2.)

Military spokesmen said. 78 North Vietnamese regulars were killed in the fighting near the frontier outpost of Loc Ninh three miles from Cambodia, northwest of Saigon.

GIs KILLED

Headquarters said seven Americans were killed and 16 were wounded in the latest of a series of border battles in which the air cavalrymen claim to have killed 525 enemy this week.

A handful of enemy rocket and mortar attacks were reported today outside the border area.

Spokesmen said Tay Ninh was lightly mortared last night, and a big Marine supply base just north of Da Nang received enemy rocket fire early today. Light casualties and damage were reported.

U.S. Air Force B52 bombers continued round-the-clock raids along the Cambodian border and on approach routes to Saigon. The eight jet aircraft rattled windows in the capital early today with a raid in the Marshay Rung Sat zone, a Viet Cong hideout southeast of Saigon.

CONG SET FREE

Despite a Viet Cong radio announcement of a new offensive to "utterly destroy" U.S. forces in South Vietnam, the Saigon government went through with their plans this morning to release 140 former Viet Cong from prisoner of war camps as part of a national reconciliation program.

Ninety prisoners were released in a street ceremony in Saigon; 36 were freed at Pleiku;

A young Tiburon widow died last night in a mysterious fire which ruined her home in the Hawthorne Terrace section of the city.

The victim was identified as Lorna Land, about 32, widow of Robert Land, a partner in Land Brothers sporting goods firm in San Francisco. He died about four years ago.

Tiburon Fire Capt. Edward J. Parnell said that neighbors reported that the house, at 695 Hawthorne Drive, was on fire at 7:55 p.m. By the time three fire trucks arrived, the bedroom wing was ablaze, he said, with flames pouring from the windows.

As a neighbor screamed, "There is a woman, a child and baby sitter in there," firemen rushed into the burning house. They found Mrs. Land's body in a bathroom of the three-bedroom, one-story house.

Mrs. Land's only child, Linda, 8, was spending the night at a neighbor's home.

There was no baby sitter at the Land home.

Although Parnell said the fire was controlled within about 15 minutes, the bedroom wing of the house was destroyed and much of the rest of the dwelling had smoke and water damage.

Firemen today said they suspected the fire started in the master bedroom but that further investigation will be made. The cause also was undetermined.

A neighbor said that Mrs. Land had been in bed all day yesterday with flu.

The only other injury in the fire was to Capt. Parnell, who chipped a tooth and cut his face when he ran into a wire clothesline on the patio.

The cause of Mrs. Land's death is not known pending an autopsy, according to the coroner's office.

Her body was taken to Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

Third Robbery In Eight Weeks Hits San Rafael Store For $100

A bandit, dressed in black and pointing an automatic pistol, robbed a clerk at the Tamalpais Market in San Rafael last night of about $100.

This was the third holdup at the market, at the corner of Second and D Streets, in eight weeks.

The robber forced clerk Larry S. Mason, son of owner Lester Mason, to turn over all currency from the cash register, then ordered him and a customer to the rear of the store before disappearing out the front door.

The customer, Denny E. Ferrari of San Rafael, told patrolman Joseph V. Leonard he noticed a slightly built man enter just before the 9 p.m. closing time. He wore a dark suit coat, dark trousers and a wide brimmed black hat.

He bought two six-packs of beer and a carton of cigarettes. As clerk Mason rang up the purchase, the bandit drew an automatic pistol from under his coat, calmly pulled the slide back and released it to put a shell in the chamber and ordered: "Fill the bag with everything you have in the register."

Mason took all the paper money and put it in the bag.

Ferrari, who was standing at the end of the counter, said he did not realize Mason was being held up because the paper bag was hiding the automatic.

The gunman ordered Mason and Ferrari to the rear of the store and walked out the front. Mason said he does not know whether the robber left on foot or used a getaway car.

The bandit was about 45 to 50 years old, five feet, six inches tall, 130 to 135 pounds, had gray hair, and was clean shaven. He wore a dark tie and a wide black belt with brass buckles, along with a wide-brimmed black hat pulled down in front.

Previous robberies occurred at the market on Oct. 8 and Nov. 19. A total of $300 was stolen on those occasions from Lester and Lloyd Mason, partners in the store.

Nixon Spends His Day Quietly

Nixon had lunch in his offices with his special emissary to the Johnson administration, Robert Murphy, and former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press spokesman, reported that no Cabinet appointments were likly to be announced until "several days" after Nixon returns from a California trip at the end of next week—making the first announcement due some time after Dec. 5.

Classes Due On Monday At S.F. State

Will It Be Scholarship Or Renewed Violence?

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, San Francisco State College's new acting president, today ordered the strife-torn college's campus reopened Monday.

The announcement at a press conference this afternoon at the San Francisco Press Club climaxed five days of speculation since the famed semanticist, a resident of Mill Valley, was appointed to succeed acting President Robert Smith Tuesday and mediately ordered the troubled campus closed.

Whether or not Monday's opening would find the stage set for orderly resumption of classes or for escalated violence remained to be seen.

The closing was viewed as an attempt to enlist faculty and student support for a return to normal on the 18,000-student campus.

Classes have been suspended since Nov. 22 while daily convocations were held to air campus problems. The sessions, in the main auditorium, were piped via closed circuit television throughout the campus.

Hayakawa faces an order from a Marin County Superior Court judge to reopen the campus Monday, or explain why he couldn't.

The court order was obtained by Frederick Craemer, 20, Greenbrae, a graphic arts student. He was joined in the Marin County Superior Court suit by his father, editor and co-publisher of the Independent-Journal. A student strike and sporadic violence — including beatings, fires and destruction of college property — have rocked the school.

The school has been heated by violence for three weeks, the spark coming from the suspension of George Murray, a Black Panther Party member and part-time English instructor.

Murray had urged minority students to carry guns to class.

The suspension was followed

Saigon May Stall Talks To January

PARIS (UPI)—Western diplomats today expressed fears that South Vietnam may try to stall the opening of the expanded Vietnam War talks until President-elect Richard M. Nixon sends a new delegation chief to Paris.

American officials said earlier it was "highly unlikely" that the new phase of the talks could get underway next week as had been hoped. It was still not known here when South Vietnam's delegation would arrive.

The diplomats said they believed the Saigon delegation would come here with instructions not to give ground to the Communists in the crucial procedural talks which will precede the beginning of substantive discussions aimed at bringing peace. One of the major issues will involve the seating of the delegations.

The diplomats said Saigon might balk at any compromise until the appointment of a new U.S. delegation chief will give it an opening to shift its position.

Saigon officials here have made it clear they would welcome Nixon's appointment of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to replace Ambassador W. Averell Harriman as chief delegate. Lodge, former ambassador to Saigon and currently

Cleaver Believed In Canada; State Seeks U.S. Warrant

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Federal officials considered today issuing a fugitive warrant for Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther leader believed to have fled the country rather than return to prison.

California officials said Friday they had received information that the 33-year-old Panther information minister, wanted for violating parole, had fled to Canada.

Deputy State Atty. Gen. Edward O'Brien, acting on the unconfirmed report, asked federal authorities yesterday for a warrant for Cleaver's arrest on charges of interstate flight to avoid imprisonment.

However, U. S. Atty. Cecil Poole declined to issue the fugitive warrant until he was supplied with more details by state officials.

Poole said the state had "not come up sufficient evidence to prove Cleaver has left the state and to justify issuance of the warrant."

Cleaver was to have surrendered Wednesday morning after his parole was revoked when he was charged with murderous assault in an April 6 shootout with Oakland police. Three officers were wounded and Black Panther treasurer Bobby Hutton, 17, was killed.

The California Corrections Department said it had received a tip that Cleaver was a passenger on a chartered plane from Los Angeles to Montreal Thursday.

Up to 1,500 delegates are in Montreal for the Hemispheric

Get Ready For The New Roses

With many roses in Marin County still showing bloom, it is somewhat startling to realize that another bareroot planting season is almost upon us.

But Marin nurseries generally begin receiving their bareroot roses just prior to Christmas.

And expectations are that the arrival date this year will be normal.

This means, incidentally, that at least some bareroot rose shrubs will be available for purchase as Christmas gifts for gardeners.

THERE ARE, however, many longer lasting reasons for purchasing your new roses bareroot.

By so doing you'll get a better rose from a larger selection, and you'll get it cheaper. If you delay until after the bareroot season, you'll be selecting from stock that has already been picked over. And you'll have to pay for the extra care the nurseryman has gone to in planting the bushes into containers and in caring for them.

This, of course, explains why most roses purchased and planted in Marin are bareroot season projects.

WHILE THE opening of the bareroot rose season is still some three weeks in the offing, there are certain preliminary steps you can take now.

These involve the digging out of old roses that have served their purpose and lost their glory, preparatory to their replacement with new shrubs.

And the working of the soil. Peat moss and leaf mold or special planter mix in liberal amounts, worked in to a depth of at least two feet while the soil isn't soggy from a recent rain, will provide the rose bush with the environment in which it thrives.

DO THIS, whether replacing an old bush or starting a brand new planting site.

Later on, of course, you will be faced with the problem of selecting the kind of rose that best suits your needs and tastes. There is always a demand for the new All-America roses, although these are generally in short supply. Plenty of other fine roses, new and old, will be available, however, including new color hues and combinations, improved fragrance and flower forms, and plants that are hardier than most or less susceptible to mildew.

THE NEW yellow hybrid tea rose, the Chateau La Salle, is a northern California product, developed by hybridizer Dr. Dennison Morey and introduced by General Bionomics of Santa Rosa. Its rich fragrance recalls the bouquet of the wine Chateau La Salle, made from Muscat de Frontignan grapes, for which it was named. The rose has a long blooming season, boasts a dark and lustrous foliage, and is almost immune to mildew and rust, as well as being highly resistant to other foliage ills.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓Almost all shrubs and trees may be planted in early December. Camellias and azaleas are especially good bets because they bloom in winter and spring to give you quick rewards.

✓Separate begonia tubers from their stems as the latter dry off. Wash the soil from the tubers and store them in a dry place until next year.

✓Remember, too, in shopping for Christmas gifts that the "green thumber" always appreciates garden tools or plants.

✓It's too early to prune roses in California: Wait until January or February.

✓In selecting a tree for the lawn, keep the size factor in mind and pick a small or medium-size tree such as the liquidambar, the European white birch or the St. Mary's magnolia.

Setting The Stage For Spring

The Marin gardener who will have color to spare next spring is the one who is busy setting the stage for that garden spectacular right now.

For instance, spring-blooming bulbs that have not already gone into the ground should do so very soon.

If you have not already purchased your bulbs, then you are probably out of luck. Most nurseries are sold out. However, two of the more popular bulbs in Marin, the anemone and the ranunculus, can be found in some nurseries in flats. Grab them while you have the chance.

NOW IS THE time, too, for planting a number of perennials including delphiniums, canterbury bells, sweet williams, columbines and gerberas or Transvaal daisies. For the last-named, good drainage is a must. Plant them with the crowns above the soil, and keep an eye out for water standing about them after rains.

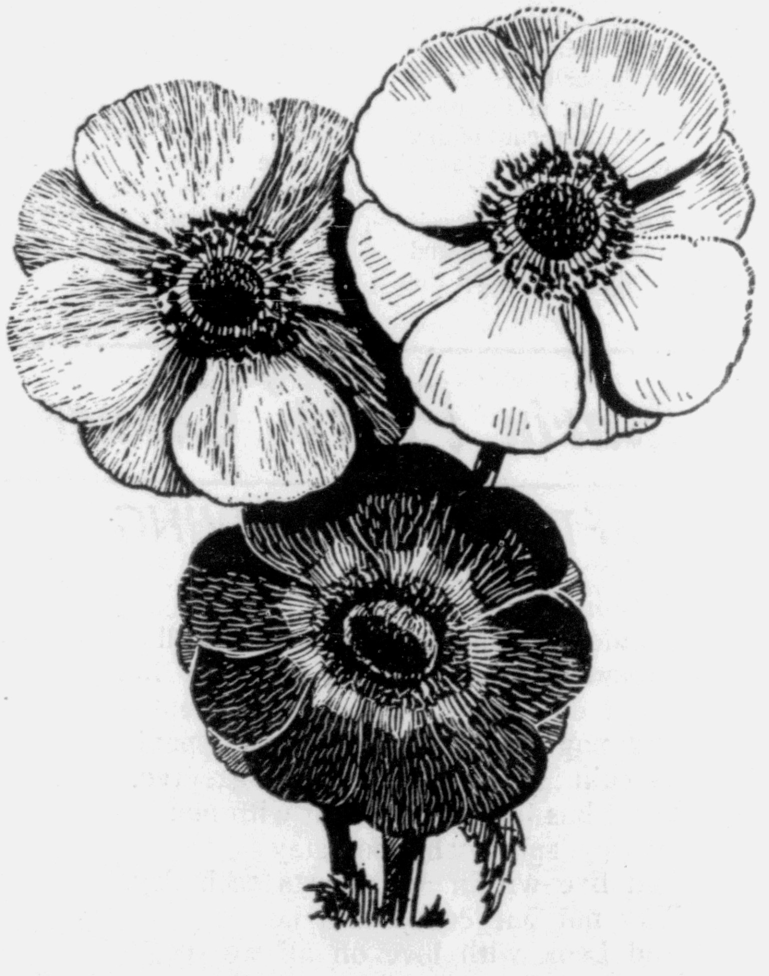
Flowering shrubs that can go in now include such deciduous favorites as weigela, flowering quince, forsythia, dogwood and magnolia, and evergreens like daphne, raphilepsis and native lilacs.

Camellias and azaleas belong at the top of the current planting list.

IT'S ALSO A good time for planting the flowering-type trees, such as flowering peaches, flowering cherries, crabapples and plums.

Some of these, however, will be available in a few weeks in bareroot form, and you may prefer to wait until then.

Whether you plant these now or later, there are still plenty of other planting possibilities to keep you busy when the fickle December weather permits you in the garden.



IT'S TOO late to find most spring-blooming bulbs in the nurseries now for fall planting, but the anemone or wind-flower can sometimes be discovered growing in flats and available for easy planting. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

HONG KONG FLU FLARES IN U.S.

Sporadic Outbreaks Reported In East, Rocky Mountain Areas And California

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Hong Kong flu has flared in Colorado, southern Arizona, North Carolina, Philadelphia, Pa., and Puerto Rico as well as California, the National Communicable Disease Center reports.

The center said yesterday that tourists just back from Hawaii, including a group of 155 Shriners, are believed to have imported the germs into North Carolina.

Dr. J. N. MacCormack, North Carolina's assistant health director, said about 85 of the Shriners who visited Honolulu in October were stricken and blood tests showed they had Hong Kong flu.

The mining town of Bisbee, Ariz., reported an outbreak of the virus, and officials said school absenteeism was running at 60 per cent. However, the center said this outbreak was mild.

Flu has hit the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, sending nearly 2,000 of the 3,400 cadets to the infirmary for treatment. However, less than 1 per cent of the stricken required hospitalization and officials said the outbreak is "definitely on the wane."

An Air Force base in Colorado Springs and Army officials at Fort Carson, Colo., also reported illnesses from the virus. The number of flu cases at Fort Carson has dropped, with about 30 of every 1,000 soldiers reported ill now. Earlier, the rate was double that among the post's 12,000 personnel.

Nine persons died of the flu at Riverview, Philadelphia's home for the needy. But officials said the outbreak is slowing and no deaths have been reported at Riverview since Wednesday.

Vaccine for the new strain of flu is becoming available and the center has urged doctors to give priority to vaccinating the elderly and chronically ill.

U.S., Peking Carefully Spar In Warsaw

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is preparing a "favorable reply" to Communist China's proposal for an ambassadorial meeting in Warsaw Feb. 20, officials reported today.

Highly placed informants also said the Johnson administration is studying a Nov. 26 statement in Peking calling on the United States to join in a peaceful coexistence agreement.

The fact, however, that Peking's call is conditional on a United States withdrawal of assistance to Nationalist China, makes the invitation to peaceful coexistence a theoretical issue, officials said.

It is a question of semantics, sources said, whether the February meeting was proposed by the United States and accepted by Red China or vice versa.

They said the United States proposed two dates in February for holding the 135th meeting between representatives of the two countries in Warsaw and Peking accepted a third date in the same month.

The State Department declined to disclose what dates the United States proposed but a Peking announcement of Nov. 26 said Washington suggested either next Feb. 5 or Feb. 11.

The Chinese message instead suggested Feb. 20 and this is acceptable to the United States, officials said. A response agreeing to the Chinese suggestion will be dispatched soon.

The Red Chinese request as phrased in the Peking announcement, that the United States: "immediately withdraw all its armed forces from China's Taiwan Province and the Taiwan Straits and dismantle all its military installations in Taiwan Province," is the standard Chinese demand put forward at virtually every ambassadorial meeting in the Polish capital.

Because of U.S. reluctance to discuss such a request "there is virtually nothing to talk about" at the Warsaw meeting, some officials acknowledged.

The Peking message suggested that the United States conclude an agreement "on the five principles of peaceful coexistence." These "principles" were endorsed at a conference of Afro-Asian nations in 1955. They included such generalities as mutual respect for each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty, mutual nonaggression, mutual noninterference in internal affairs, equality, and peaceful coexistence.

Police, Fire Crisis Eases For Newark

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Police and firemen returned to work under court order today after a day-long "sick strike" that forced officials to impose a curfew and halt liquor sales in this city of 400,000.

"Everything is back to normal," a spokesman for Mayor Hugh Addonizio said. "The ban will be lifted on bars and liquor stores as soon as the mayor begins business this morning."

COURT ORDER

Firemen began reporting for regular duty last night ofter an injunction against the slowdown was served on union leaders. Policemen resumed their duties today.

Yesterday 1,000 of the city's 1,300 patrolmen and 300 of its 1,000 firemen called in sick with such illnesses as "Hong Kong flu" or "Russian diarrhea." They had voted to stage the "sick strike" to press demands for raises bringing maximum pay to $10,500 a year.

MAYOR ACTS

Addonizio declared a state of emergency in Newark, which has one of the highest crime rates in the country. He imposed a midnight-to-6 a.m. curfew and closed taverns and liquor stores at noon yesterday.

Police Director Dominick Spina advised that the restrictions remain in effect through last night and early today despite the start of a back-to-work movement.

The Fire Department reported a full shift of 180 men reported for duty at 8 p.m. yesterday but only 90 of the 800 policemen who had called in sick for their overnight shift reported for duty.

Hallinan Sets Appeal On Mutiny

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An attorney defending a group of soldiers who face possible mutiny charges plans to go before the U.S. Court of Appeals with the case.

Terence Hallinan announced the move yesterday after U.S. District Judge Albert C. Wollenberg turned down a petition for a show cause hearing on behalf of 17 of 27 prisoners who took part in a sit-down strike at the San Francisco Presidio Stockade Oct. 14.

The judge said that other avenues, including the Court of Military Appeals, were open to the prisoners, who had alleged unsanitary conditions and violation of the constitutional rights of due process and prohibition of cruel or unusual punishments.

The sit-in was in protest for the fatal shooting on Oct. 11 of Pvt. Richard Bunch, 19, of Detroit, who was killed by a guard as he attempted to flee from a work detail.

Czech Workmen Defy Dues Rules

PRAGUE (UPI)—Workers at an Ostrava steel plant have decided to pay only part of their Communist party dues as a protest against features of the new party line approved earlier this month, the official party newspaper Rude Pravo reported today.

The newspaper said the action of the workers unit, part of the giant Klement Gottwald works, was disapproved by the ruling works committee in the plant.

Nevertheless, the newspaper said, the workers were carrying out their protest.

"The group criticized some parts of the Central Committee resolution—mainly the setting up of the party bureau for Czech lands—and decided to collect normal party dues, but to pay to higher party bodies only a symbolic amount of one crown until their views are taken into consideration," Rude Pravo said.

NORMAL DUES

Most ordinary workers pay between 10 and 20 crowns per month in party dues.

The resolution approved by the Central Committee set up a ruling bureau for the still-to-be-created Communist party of the Czech provinces of Bohemia and Moravia. The Soviets have prevented calling of a Czechoslovak Communist party congress for the purpose of establishing the necessary party machinery. A Slovak Communist party has been in existence since before World War II and the new Czech branch would match it under the new federalization system approved last month.

Meanwhile, the magazine Reporter was back on the news stands today with more of the same type of politically troublesome cartoons that brought about its suspension three weeks ago.

The lively magazine of the Union of Czech Journalists published a half-dozen political jibes in its first edition after the end of the suspension, ordered by the government under the terms of a Soviet-imposed censorship law.

The issue, a yearbook edition on the newsstands yesterday, included one cartoon with an indirect reference to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia Aug. 21. It showed a man with a Santa Claus beard but a military uniform and a bagful of machine guns.

The bearded man stood in front of a house where a puzzled citizen looked out from a door.

"What's the matter? Haven't you ever seen St. Nicholas before?" Santa asked.

RISKY ITEM

The publication of such material was a risk for Reporter, which ran into trouble for printing an apparently innocent piece of humor that appeared in the Soviet humor magazine Krokodil in the late 1950s. That cartoon showed a diplomat leaving the White House and reclaiming his coat at a check counter.

One onlooker was telling another that the guest could reclaim his coat, but not his sovereignty. The parallel with post-invasion Czechoslovakia was too much and resulted in a one-month suspension order against Reporter.

Rock Stars' Home Gutted By Flames

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A three alarm fire today partially gutted a Presidio Heights home owned by two members of the Jefferson Airplane singing group.

Battalion Fire Chief Gene Murphy estimated damage at about $25,000 to the three story Victorian which had been concerted into flats.

The building is owned by drummer Spencer Dryden, 30, and guitarist Jorma Kaukonen, 26, although neither was home at the time.

Murphy said the blaze broke out in an unoccupied bedroom on the ground floor. For a short time, firemen were afraid the flames would spread to other homes in the area.

Kaukonen's wife, Margarita, escaped unharmed from the upper flat. Two of Dryden's friends were rescued unharmed from the lower unit.

Fireman Urie Walsh twisted a knee while fighting the blaze.

Kremlin Woos France With Help For Franc

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet Union is moving to counteract an improvement in U.S.-French relations by reassuring President Charles de Gaulle on its military aims in the Mediterranean and by offering increased economic cooperation, diplomatic sources reported today.

The move is timed in part to France's financial troubles.

Virtually without publicity, the Soviet Union showed its intentions yesterday by granting a contract to a subsidiary of the French electronics manufacturer, Compagnie des Compteurs, for a space simulator.

The terms were not disclosed, but the delivery date—within a year—indicated the Russians were anxious to make a gesture that would be quickly felt, even if on a limited scale.

Soviet-French relations, once vigorously promoted by De Gaulle as a basis for creating a "European Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals," have been in decline since the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in August.

This, the presence of Soviet warships in the Mediterranean, and France's monetary troubles have pushed France closer to the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that De Gaulle virtually abandoned two years ago.

One diplomatic informant said the Russians were concerned about a shift, even if slight, from France's middle road between the two power blocs.

The way the Soviet Union hopes to counteract it, according to this diplomat's reading, is to reassure France about the move into the Mediterranean while making room at home for more French exports.

TALKS WITH DE GAULLE

Twice in the last 10 days, Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin went at his own behest to see President de Gaulle. One meeting was understood to deal with economic questions—Zorin described it as a discussion of "bilateral questions and the other the Mediterranean issue.

A report that could not be checked said Zorin presented the argument that the Soviet presence in the Mediterranean was no more surprising on analysis than that of the United States 6th Fleet.

Zorin's visits may have had some connection with planning for meetings here in January of the "master commission" overseeing the Soviet-French economic and technical agreement signed in 1966.

That agreement has led to Soviet purchase of the French color television process and a contract for construction by French engineers of a nuclear bubble chamber at the Soviet atom center at Serpukhov. The Russians send France petroleum and machine tools.

French exports to the Russians were $128 million during the first nine months of 1968, a surplus over imports from the Soviet Union for the first time since the 1966 agreements were concluded.

Housing Office Hit By Robbers

NORTH RICHMOND (UPI) — A gunman, using a six-year-old girl as a hostage, yesterday robbed the Contra Costa County Housing Authority of $5,000.

The bandit held Susan Olden by the hand as he forced office clerk Barbara Hines, 20, to open a wall vault.

While he was scooping up the money, Miss Hines grabbed the girl from her captor. The gunman then slammed them shut in the vault but did not lock the door as he made his getaway.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The apricot orginated in China some 4,000 years ago. It is the staple diet of the tiny Himalayan kingdom of Hunza, where people are said to often live to the age of 150.

Robbery Victim Ends Up Jailed On Dope Charge

OAKLAND (UPI) —A merchant marine seaman was arrested as an alleged narcotics dealer yesterday when he was apprehended carrying 11 ounces of suspected heroin in a brown paper bag.

Police said they became suspicious of Roy Boswell, 58, after he complained he had been beaten and robbed of some clothing and valuables about 10 days ago.

Sergeant Ted Hilliard of the Oakland police vice squad said he received word from underworld source that Boswell had also been robbed of $8,000 in cash and about four ounces of heroin.

Police staked out Boswell's flat and moved in when they saw him carrying the bag.

Officers said the heroin was worth about $50,000 on the retail market. A search of the flat turned up an additional quantity of heroin hidden in a mixing bowl.

Boat Said Safe

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI) — The sailboat Saga II, feared lost in a storm carrying 35-year-old Leif Alm and his 13-year-old daughter from Stockholm to the Canary Islands, was sighted yesterday south of Lisbon. Both Alm and the daughter were safe, a Swedish radio station said.

Girls Murdered

ROCKAWAY TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Two young girls were found beaten to death today in a wooded area.

Police identified them as Julie Rodriguez, 7, and Darline Copensky, 6.

Authorities said their skulls were crushed with a rock that was found nearby covered with blood stains. Darline's uncle, Edward Copensky, discovered the bodies in a gully 150 feet behind the Rodriguez' house, police said.

There was no indication of sexual assault.

Officer Faces Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A trial date of Jan. 13 was set Friday for police officer Michael O'Brien, accused of shooting a truck driver during an argument over a minor traffic accident.

O'Brien, who has been suspended, pleaded not guilty to the manslaughter charge. The shooting victim, George Baskett, was killed Sept. 29.

Australia Fire Danger Eases

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Steady rain and cooler weather today eased a fire threat in the Blue Mountain suburbs of Sydney, where wind-whipped brush fires claimed at least five lives and destroyed about 150 buildings earlier this week.

The lull gave firefighters a rest and a chance to consolidate positions for Monday when more hot weather and stronger winds are forecast.

Army bulldozers cut fire trails and mowed down fresh growth in fire hazard areas.

More than $333,000 has been collected so far to aid fire victims and the homeless. Many families who fled to safer ground began returning to their homes.

Hotel Robbed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A lone gunman escaped yesterday with $17,294 belonging to the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Girl Falls, Rescued

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Coast Guard helicopter was called Friday to rescue an 18-year-old girl who had tumbled down a cliff onto Baker's Beach.

The Coast Guard said Mary Hall was hiking on the cliff above the beach with a friend, John Meller, when she fell.

She was reported in good condition at a local hospital after emergency treatment.

Negro Doll Boom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Shindana Toy Factory, run by a Negro self-help group, says it will add 30 workers next week to its staff of 22 to keep up with demands for Baby Nancy, a Negro doll.

The factory opened in October as a subsidiary of Operation Bootstrap, with technical help and money from Mattel, Inc., a toy company.

Shindana spokesmen said Friday the company has sold 15,000 of the dolls to toy dealers and department stores.

East Bay Holdup

EL CERRITO (UPI) — Two men escaped with $20,000 worth of watches and gems from a jewelry store yesterday after tying up the store owner.

Larry Schmike, 35, owner of the shop, said one of the men threatened him with a gun and ordered him into a back room. After securing Schmike, the two men gathered up their loot and fled.

Four Saved At Sea

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A man, woman and two children kept afloat all night in the Atlantic Ocean by lifejackets after their 63-foot boat home sank were rescued today by the Coast Guard.

The survivors were identified as James C. Jones, 30, Mrs. Robie Jones, 29, Larry Jones, 14, and Raymond Jones, 11.

A plank on the bottom came loose allowing sea water to swamp the boat, the Coast Guard said.

Second Fatal Holdup

OAKLAND (UPI) — A service station attendant was shot to death during a robbery Friday at the same station where another attendant was killed during a robbery two months ago.

John Willie Hill, 25, was found lying in a pool of blood in a storeroom. He had been shot in the head and neck.

On Sept. 30 Robert Stratton, 18, was stabbed and beaten to death at the station, also during a holdup.

A company spokesman said the attendants never keep more than $10 in the cash drawer. The rest of the money is kept in a safe in the concrete floor.

Kennedy To Speak

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts will be the principal speaker at a testimonial dinner Dec. 15 to honor the memory of his brother, the late New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The event is designed to raise funds to pay off the deficit estimated at upwards of $100,000 accumulated during Robert Kennedy's successful California primary campaign. He was assassinated as he claimed victory election night.

More Hong Kong Flu

BERKELEY (AP) — Cases of Hong Kong flu have been diagnosed in 10 California counties — but only 16 cases have been confirmed, state health officials say, and none are in Marin.

Conductor Loses

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Martinson, former conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has been ordered to pay $42,000 in back income taxes despite his claim that he is a French citizen with no residence or place of business in the United States.

U.S. District Judge Walter R. Mansfield refused yesterday to enjoin the Internal Revenue Service from collecting the taxes.

Martinson had sought to block the action, claiming he was exempt from paying U.S. income taxes under an agreement between the American and French governments covering the tax status of aliens.

Beat Poet Hurt

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Allen Ginsberg suffered a broken hip and broken ribs in a two-car collision yesterday near the Albany County airport.

The 42-year-old beat poet, whose best-known work is the lengthy "Howl," was reported in satisfactory condition after being admitted to Memorial Hospital here.

He and three companions, who suffered minor injuries, were returning to a 70-acre farm which Ginsberg bought about 40 miles west of here to take up organic gardening.

Santa Funds Cut

PARIS (AP) — The French government's official Santa Claus today became a victim of President Charles de Gaulle's save-the-franc austerity program.

To tighten its budget, the Postal and Telecommunications Ministry announced it would no longer maintain its Santa Claus office to reply to children writing with their Christmas toy lists.

New Ambassador

SAIGON (AP) — William E. Colby, head of the American pacification effort in South Vietnam, has been given the rank of Ambassador by President Johnson, the U.S. Mission announced today.

Colby succeeded Robert W. Komer, who left to become ambassador to Turkey. Komer also had ambassadorial rank. Colby was his deputy.

Fighting In China

HONG KONG (AP) — Reports reaching Hong Kong said fighting has broken out between government and antigovernment forces in Communist China's Kwangtung Province.

Chinese travelers said an organization which calls itself the "Chinese People party" is publishing its own newspaper and carrying on guerrilla warfare against forces loyal to Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

No Airport Parking

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco International Airport officials have issued an advisory urging persons going to the airport to use public transportation.

All airport parking lots were full and traffic congested because of holiday airport usage and the situation was not expected to ease until Sunday night, a spokesman said Friday.

'Topless Mother Of Eight' Dies In Crash With Three Children

VICTORVILLE (UPI) — Mrs. Gaye M. Spiegelman, who built a bare-bosomed career in West Coast nightclubs as "Mama Spiegelman" and "The Topless Mother of Eight," was killed yesterday in an auto accident along with three of her children.

The 36-year-old dancer and seven of her children were passengers in a station wagon that overturned after hitting a center divider on Interstate 15 two miles north of Victorville.

During the accident the Los Angeles-bound station wagon was hit by a pickup truck traveling in the opposite direction. Mrs. Spiegelman was en route from her home in Las Vegas, Nev., to a nightclub engagement in Southern California.

The accident took the lives of Mrs. Spiegelman's sons Mark, 15, and David, 5, and a five-year-old adopted daughter, Sylvia. Four other children escaped serious injury and were taken to the Victor Valley Hospital. Among them was Sylvia's twin sister, Nancy,

The driver of the station wagon, Marvin P. Brody, 43, of North Hollywood, who was not seriously injured.

Mrs. Spiegelman was one of the pioneers of the topless entertainment craze that originated in the nightclub strip of San Francisco's North Beach.

The children in the auto who survived the accident are Steven, 12; Tracy, 11; Scott, 8, and Nancy, 5.

Watch Your Step In Using The Ladder

Outside ladders get lots of attention at this time of the year.

In our part of the country where the weather remains mild throughout the winter, outside ladders are utilized for all the usual purposes — painting, staining, caulking, roof repairing, and such general maintenance chores as cleaning gutters and downspouts of accumulated leaves and debris.

WHATEVER ITS purpose, the outside ladder must be handled properly to prevent accidents.

This begins with placement of the ladder against the house at the proper angle. To get this balance, the bottom of the ladder should be a specific distance away from the house. That specific distance is one-fourth the length of the ladder. Thus, when placing a 12-foot ladder against the house, see that the bottom of it is three feet from the house.

Other things to insure safety in handling and working on an outside ladder are:

IF THE GROUND on which the ladder rests is soft, place a wide, solid board under the legs, then stand on the bottom rung and jump up and down on it a few times to be sure the board is firmly placed.

If the ground is hard, the feet of the ladder should be equipped with safety treads or one of the other devices designed to prevent slipping.

Where there is even the slightest doubt about the solidity of the setup, use roof ladder hooks, which fasten onto the high rungs of the ladder and hook over the roof ridge.

Forget about using the ladder when there is a strong wind.

BEFORE PUTTING up the ladder, examine it for structural defects. Such defects can be hidden by paint, so be sure that you use only a clear finish on the ladder.

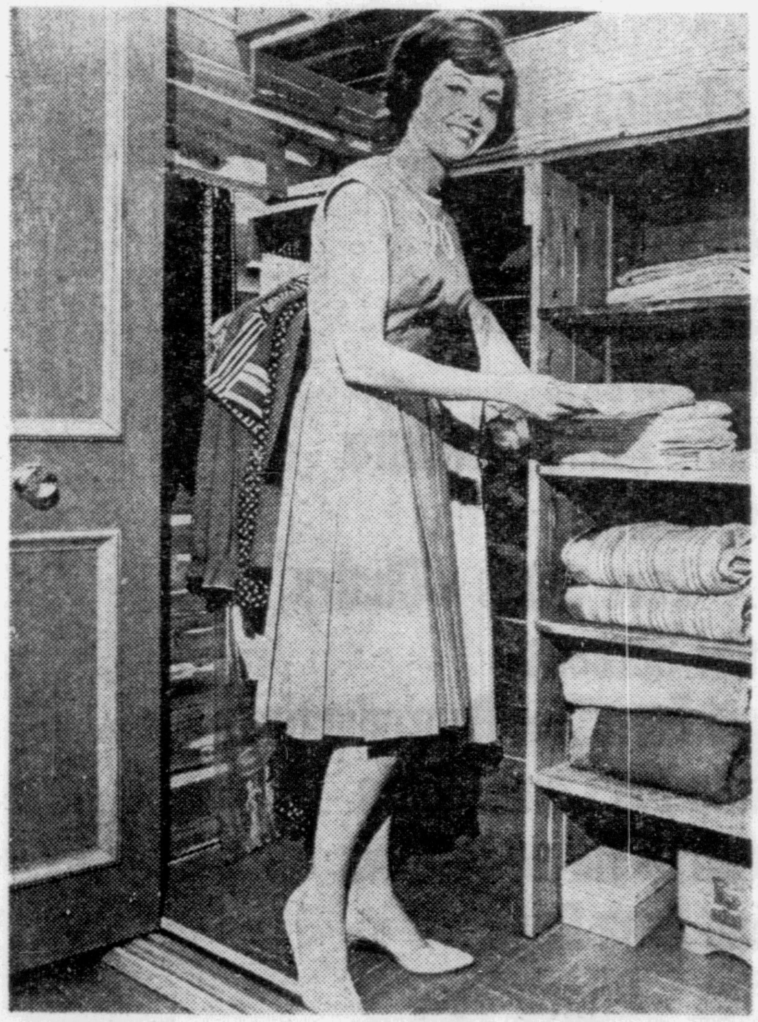
Never go higher than the second step from the top of the ladder; working from the third step from the top is even better.

Don't try to show how strong you are by shifting the position of long heavy ladders. Get someone to help you.

When working in front of a door, either keep it wide open or lock it.

DON'T WORK on the ladder when children are playing nearby. Statistics show that a considerable percentage of ladder accidents occur when children bump into ladder bases.

While on the ladder, don't reach out too far on either side; the shifting of weight may cause the ladder to slide.



WITH THE addition of some shelving and vertical dividers you can literally make your large closet do double duty by installing, in effect, a linen closet within a closet. Above, cedar lumber has been used for shelving and dividers, with the right side now accommodating bedding, the left side clothing. Hanger bar is but five feet off the floor for most efficient use of available space. While adding the shelving, it might be a good idea to mothproof your closet with a clear cedar lining that comes in easy-to-handle pieces that are nailed directly to closet walls.

Fate Of Surtax Sparks Differing Congress Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, believes that with good fiscal management Richard M. Nixon will be able to let the 10 per cent income surtax expire next June if the Vietnam War continues at its present pace.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, has said he sees little possibility for letting the surtax expire. In his view the only hope for tax relief is to impose stringent economies on government spending.

Ford's view is somewhat at variance with that of Wisconsin's John W. Byrnes, top Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, who has said that if there is no change in the Vietnam war during the next few months Congress will have to continue the surtax.

At the same time, Byrnes said that if the shooting aspect of the war is pretty well resolved by January or February, it would be possible to eliminate the surtax or to make changes such as reducing it by 5 per cent.

Bread, Cheese Wine And Jail

Three young persons were booked into Marin County Jail last night after a San Anselmo police officer saw them sitting across from the police station eating bread and cheese and drinking from a bottle believed to contain wine.

Charles Thomas Walsh, 20, of 19 Sheila Court, San Anselmo, and Naomi Marie Barton, 20, and Rosanne MacLeod, 19, both of 9 Summer Avenue, Fairfax, were booked on suspicion of possession of alcohol, contributing to the delinquency of a minor and furnishing alcoholic beverage to a minor.

The minor, a 13-year-old boy, was cited to probation officers on suspicion of possession of alcohol, police reported.

The three were held in lieu of $1,005 bail each and scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday.

Daylight Thieves Flee With $375

Thieves made off with about $375 in cash and checks in a daylight robbery at the Enco Service Station, 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, yesterday, police reported.

Police said the station attendant, John Bittner, reported he saw a car drive in about 4:15 p.m. while he was busy with another customer. He said the car stopped as though the occupants were just going to use the restroom.

has come now."

One of those present, declining to be identified, said Corcoran told them that "every human effort to save the men had been made," and that he could no longer jeopardize the lives of men on the drilling crews and rescue teams.

"There is only one alternative now," he quoted Corcoran, "to put out the fire by sealing the mine."

The Rev. John Barnes, pastor of the church, rose to say a prayer. Loud, wracking sobs filled the room.

The most Rev. Joseph Hodges, Roman Catholic bishop of Wheeling, W. Va., followed with a spontaneous prayer, then asked the congregation to join him in reciting the Lord's Prayer.

Outside, Tony Megna was bitter, Megna, a high school principal in Plain City, Ohio, lost a brother, Emelio, to the mine.

"I don't think they have done enough," Megna said. "They could have brought in more drills or used the foam machine as a last resort. By sealing the mine they aren't really sure whether they are alive and at the same time they are eliminating the chance that they might be alive. I believe the emphasis here is more on production than safety."

At the company store, the manager went about restoring a semblance of order. The store was used as press headquarters and a temporary shelter for the families during part of their vigil.

Psychological Group Revives

Marin psychologists met yesterday to reactivate the Marin Psychological Association and elected Dr. William Pemberton of Mill Valley as president and Hildegard Berliner of San Rafael as secretary.

Dr. Pemberton said the organization will coordinate services for Marin residents and will also provide specialists to keep members abreast of current developments in the field.

He said the association plans to bring specialists in behavioral science to the county. He said keys to meeting current problems can be found in research in the field.

Woman Dies In Strewn Apartment

San Rafael police last night found a 61-year-old woman dead in her Laurel Avenue apartment, which they said was in shambles.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Katherine Ketner of 215 Laurel Avenue, Apt. 4.

The cause of death was not known, according to police, pending a coroner's autopsy.

Officers said that the woman's husband, Henry Walter Ketner, 57, called family friends in Walnut Creek, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Brungard, about 8:30 p.m., asking them to come over because his wife was dead.

Brungard notified police at 10:30 p.m. Officer Timothy O'Donnell said he found Mrs. Ketner lying face up near the front door and with several bruises on her body.

Ketner told police that he and his wife had been on a three-week drinking spree and that he did not remember what happened to her.

The apartment was littered with clothes and furniture was overturned, O'Donnell added.

Ketner was committed to Napa State Hospital at Imola.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Marin Air Cadets Aid Plane Hunt

An air search has failed to turn up any sign of the light plane piloted by a Ukiah businessman which disappeared Wednesday on a flight from Imperial to Ukiah.

The search for Sid Beamer, 49, and his wife, Audrey, 42, and their aircraft was being conducted by the Coast Guard and Civil Air Patrol planes, along with liaison craft from the Air Rescue Service at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Flying with the Civil Air Patrol as ground watchers during the search were nine boys, aged 15 to 17, of Marin County Cadet Squadron No. 137.

The cadets, who receive training in search and rescue operations and first aid, travel with piloting members of the air patrol, watching the ground for signs of missing aircraft.

The aircraft was believed down somewhere between Tomales Bay and Fort Bragg.

Beamer's father, Steven R. Beamer of Sacramento, has offered a $10,000 reward for the rescue or recovery of the Beamers.

Under Saigon street banners proclaiming, "The government shows tolerance to the people who have gone down the wrong path and want to mend their ways," the prisoners snapped to attention as Minister of State Mai Tho Truyen arrived to preside over the ceremony.

"Some say the South Vietnamese government's action in 'sending tigers back to the jungle' is risky," Truyen said. "However, we think that with the release of such a great number of prisoners we can prove to the domestic and foreign public opinions that we believe in the certain victory of the righteous cause."

Do Van Thinh, spokesman for the prisoners, read from a typewritten statement:

"I was forced by the Communists to fight against the South Vietnamese government. But in reality, there is no hope in fighting for them."

Rare Turtle Stolen; Needs Special Care

A rare six-month-old turtle, stolen yesterday from Aquarium Beautiful, 1409 Fourth Street, San Rafael, will die if it does not receive special care, Mrs. Pat Miller, owner of the pet store, reported to police today.

Mrs. Miller, who reported the turtle was taken between 4 and 6 p.m. yesterday, said it must be kept in shallow, warm salt water and given live food. Because of its age, she said, the turtle cannot fend for itself. She valued the turtle at $30.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Will's Wording A Tricky Thing

When a lawyer writes your will and refers to "personal belongings" this may not mean "personal property."

Greta found this out recently when she tried to enlarge her inheritance from her bachelor Uncle Ed. Ed has his lawyer write the will instructing his executor to sell his real property for cash, and to give $30,000 of the proceeds to Greta, his only relative, along with his "personal belongings." The rest of the estate was to go to Ed's university.

In court Greta argued that Ed meant her to get more than just jewelry, knick-knacks, and the $30,000. Since by law "personal property" is everything except real estate. Greta also wanted bank accounts and securities and the like.

The court ruled against Greta. It asked, what was Ed's intent when he had his lawyer write his will? When the lawyer used the words "personal belongings," he meant Ed's jewelry and tangible personal items.

Ed had clearly limited Greta's inheritance. In his will he disposed of specific things, leaving a certain amount to Greta, and gave the rest to the university. If he had meant Greta to get all "personal property," he would not have left the university all the "rest of his personal property."

When a non-lawyer writes his own will, a long court hearing may be necessary to find out what he meant by "personal belongings," "belongings," or "the balance of my estate."

Evidence must be produced as to what he had in mind — any written letters, his expressed desires, and the like. The court then must make out his wishes as best it can and distribute his estate accordingly.

The court may have to disregard the technical legal meanings of the words to find out and carry out his intentions.

Words such as "heirs," "family," "relatives," used in a home-made will are confusing because their legal meaning may be much more precise than what the will-writer had meant to say.

If you wish to give something to a charity, have your attorney review it, perhaps in consultation with the charity or its legal counsel. The law limits some such gifts, especially when the testator has close relatives.

ambassador to West Germany, has frequently been mentioned as a possible successor to Harriman.

Because of this, the diplomats said, Saigon may well wait until after January 20th before seriously settling down to talk.

The South Vietnamese government still has not sent its 100-member delegation to Paris and therefore it would be "physically impossible" to start before late in the week. U.S. officials doubted they could begin even then.

Both Saigon and the NLF demand to be treated as the only authentic representative of the people of South Vietnam. Each has vowed to ignore the other at the talks.

U.S. officials said they were waiting for the return from Saigon tomorrow of South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam before making any agreement with Hanoi. Lam is considered a possible leader of the Saigon delegation which will be "overseen" by Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky.

Another sign the talks could not open next week was the departure for Washington of U.S. Ambassador-at-Large W. Averell Harriman. He is presiding over the President's Commission on Human Rights Dec. 3-4 and was not expected back in Paris until the end of the week.

Two Burglaries In Ross Homes

Burglars entered the home of William Cavalier on Shady Lane in Ross between Wednesday and yesterday and made off with a pair of solid gold cufflinks and several 1912 and 1920 $20 bills, police reported.

Police said the total value of the stolen goods had not been determined. The method of entry was unknown, police said.

Police said burglars entered through a louvered window and removed a stereo, 230 records and earphones. The value of the records was not determinied, police said, but the other items totaled $225.

Charles G. Strom Dies At 59

Charles G. Strom, longtime San Rafael resident and sales manager of Pacific Union Metal Co. in San Francisco, died yesterday in a local hospital at the age of 59.

Strom suffered a stroke after entering the hospital two weeks ago after becoming dizzy at home. He apparently recovered, however, and returned home Wednesday. He collapsed after Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday and was rushed back to the hospital.

He had spent 20 years in sales of street lighting and traffic signals, entering the business after World War II, in which he was a commander in the Navy, serving as skipper of oil tankers in the Pacific. He received the Silver Star award in Navy service.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., he came to California as a youth and was graduated from University of California at Berkeley. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity at U.C., and of the Meadow Club, Electric Club, Illuminating Engineering Society, Institute of Traffic Engineers, International Municipal Signal Association, and American Public Works Association.

He leaves his wife, Anita C. Strom, former San Rafael Board of Education member, and two daughters and a son, Sandra, Wendy and Peter, at the family home at 260 Linden Lane.

Funeral will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. The family prefers that tributes be contributions to Guide Dogs for the Blind.

MATTHEW MILES

Private inurnment for Matthew F. Miles of Greenbrae will be Thursday at Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

Miles, 15, died Wednesday in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness.

A native of Marin, he resided at 230 Los Cerros Drive. He was a student at Redwood High School.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Logan T. Miles, and two sisters, Mrs. Jean Circiello of Berkeley and Laura, at home. The youth's father is principal of Homestead School in Homestead Valley.

His family asked that memorial contributions go to the University of California Hospital Pediatric Hematology Fund, San Francisco.

CHARLES B. CHAN

Charles B. Chan, 64, of San Rafael, an employee of the Presidio of San Francisco, died in a San Francisco hospital yesterday after a short illness.

A native of San Francisco, Chan moved to Marin County 27 years ago. His home was at 47 Wood Street.

He was a clerk in the commissary at the Presidio and was a member of the American Federation of Government Employees Associations, Local No. 1457 of San Francisco.

He is survived by his wife, Mae L. Chan of the family home; two sons, Dennis L. Chan of San Francisco and Jeffrey Chan of San Rafael; a daughter, Mrs. Pearl Young of San Francisco, and one grandchild.

The funeral will be at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the Heart Association.

Pluto Proves Heavyweight Space Puzzle

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Pluto, farthest out of the sun's planets, has always been a puzzle. There is, apparently, too much stuff in it for its size.

Since Pluto was discovered in the 1930s calculations based on gravitational theory — on Pluto's pull on nearby Neptune and Uranus — have given it a mass quite near to the earth's 6,000 billion billion metric tons. Recent studies show Pluto with eight or nine tenths of earth's mass.

The difficulty is that Pluto appears to be only half the size of earth — something like 4,000 miles in diameter compared to the earth's 8,000 — and the volume so calculated combined with the large mass would make it 40 times as dense as water.

On the other hand, calculations that start from Pluto's size and assume that it is about as dense as the earth give it a mass only 0.13 times that of the earth. But this figure did not fit the gravitational calculations.

The reason for the discrepancy, says Drs. R. L. Duncombe, W. J. Klepczynski and P. K. Seidelman of the Naval Observatory, was that there were too many unknown factors in the gravitational equations. They have done a series of calculations in which they have gone a long step toward harmonizing the figures.

They noticed that the predicted orbits for the planet Neptune that had been used in calculating Pluto's mass were beginning to disagree with observation. These orbits had been fitted carefully to observations up to the times they were calculated, but observations since then were coming out up to 1/720 of a degree away from the predictions.

This is very small error, but it can mean a big difference in the mass of Pluto, because Pluto's gravitational effect on Heptune is very small compared to that of the sun and other planets.

The Naval Observatory astronomers concluded that the inaccuracies grew out of attempts to calculate the orbit of Neptune and the mass of Pluto at the same time.

So they resolved to do a series of calculations of Neptune's orbit in which they assumed different values for Pluto's mass and see which one came closest to Neptune's observed positions.

One of the problems in this kind of fitting is that since the first certain observation of Neptune in 1795 (Neptune was not definitely identified until 1846), the planet has completed only about 70 per cent of a single orbit. For inner planets like Venus or Mars thousands of orbits are recorded.

A calculation made with Pluto's mass set equal to 0.18 earth mass fits the observations of Neptune best, say the three astronomers. With this mass Pluto would have to be 4,500 miles across to be as dense as the earth. If the observed diameter of 4,000 miles is taken as accurate, the density comes out 1.4 times that of the earth or 7.7 times the density of water, a plausible figure.

New Swimsuits Use Metal

By NADEANE WALKER

LONDON (AP) — Bullet-proof clothes, suitable for chic soldiers or riot police, made their debut Tuesday in fashions for the future, and one designer forecast handbags instead of pockets for men.

FISH SCALE fashions—with plastic discs knitted into flexible fabrics—were the sensation of the show at Britain's designers' convention.

Middle-aged designer-technician John Carr Doughty said his plastic-plated swimsuits made of the same materials would simulate fish scales and "cut through the water like an electric eel with negative skin resistance."

"When split seconds can win or lose a gold medal, no Olympic swimmer will be without the new swimsuits," Carr Doughty says. Ski clothes fashioned from the same fabric might cut down wind resistant on the racing slopes.

Carr Doughty said he is also working with the government on substituting thin titanium or nylon alloy plates for the plastic scales, and this would make his knitwear bullet-proof.

MADE OF METAL instead of plastic, the designer claims, his clothes can withstand rifle bullets at close range. He showed only plastic clothing Tuesday, but says the discs on his multi-colored cocktail dresses can be knitted invisibly into bullet-proof suits.

Of one all-gold sinuous mermaid number using 6,000 gold scales, he commented that it could be mass-produced without real gold to retail for $24. Another dress in black and white scales reproduced the designer's conception of electronic sound waves.

Prof. Janie Ironside, until recently head of the Royal College of Art's school of fashion, told the convention that as styles change, pockets may vanish and men might carry handbags.

THE DESIGNERS' convention, sponsored by the Clothing Institute, concentrates on technological advances in fashion. Among the speakers was a representative of "ergonomics" or biological designing, meaning engineered clothing adapted to a wearer's needs.

One young men's wear designer, Miss Gail Ansell, complained that "it's impossible to get manufacturers to change basic styles. Men are still in the Victorian era of built-in shape or external corsets."

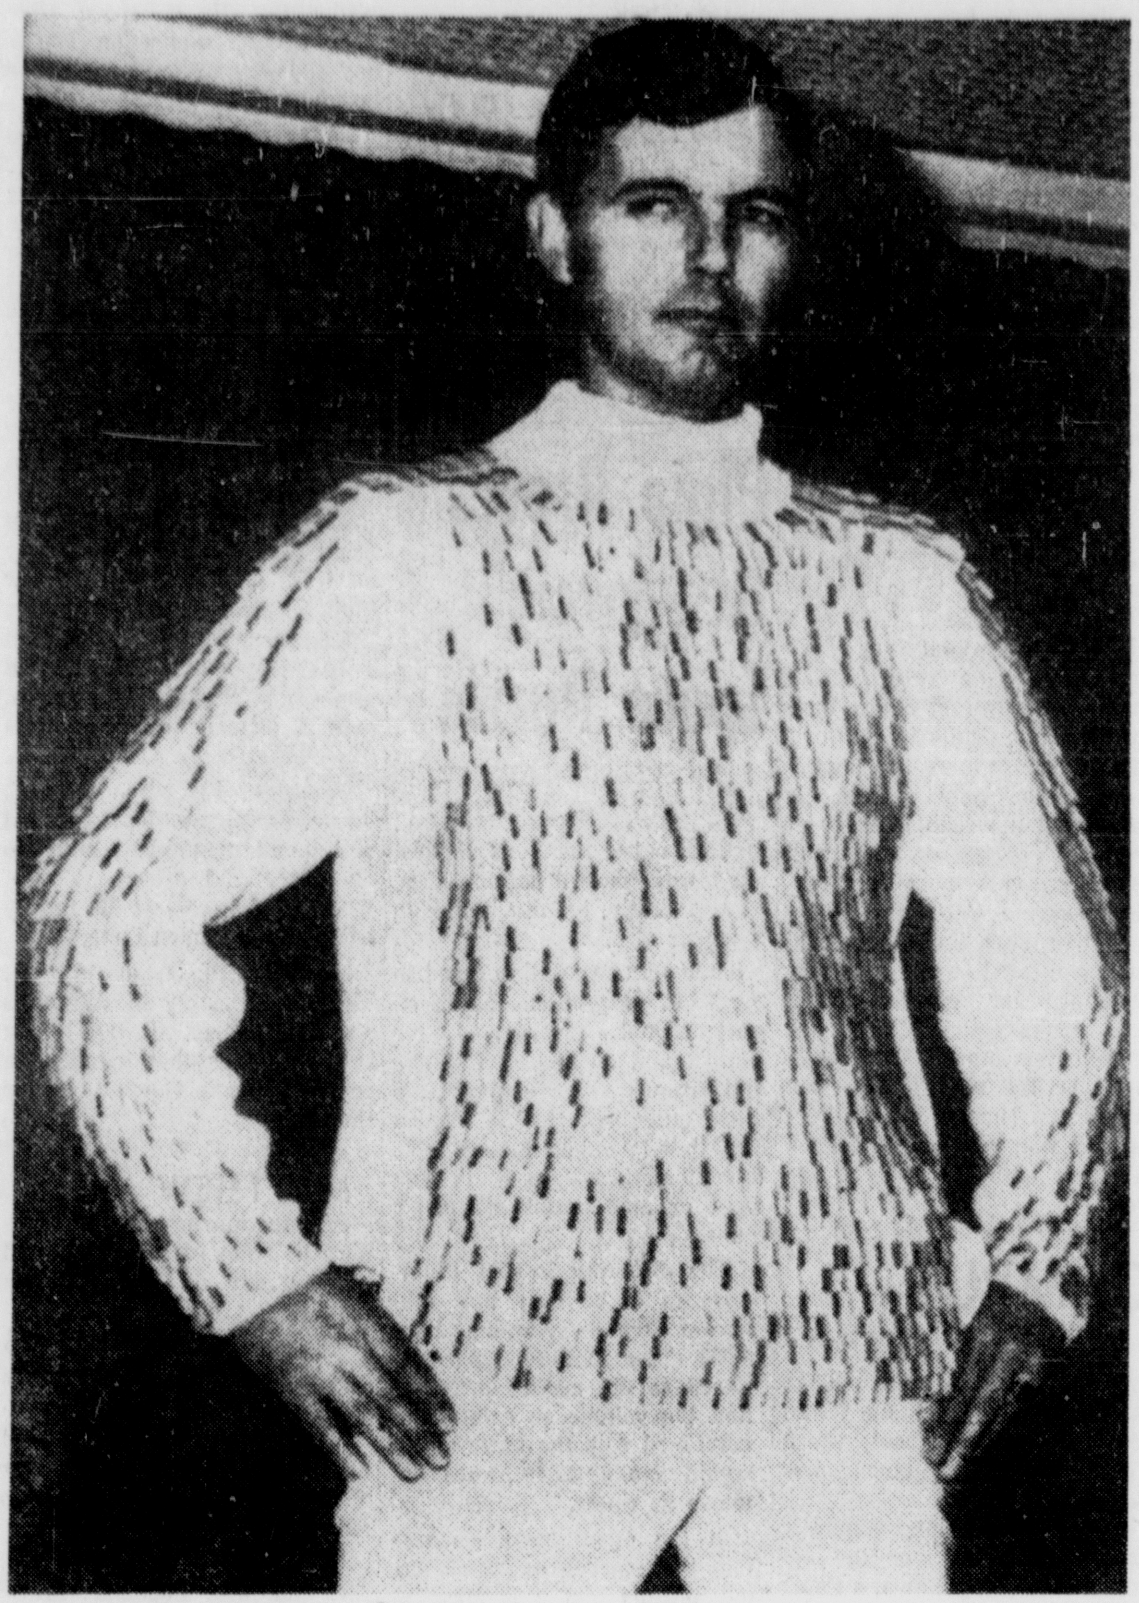
"IT'S TIME for a complete new look for men," said designer Tom Gilbey, "instead of struggling against public resistance to change of the basic suit."

Carr Doughty said: "I don't foresee garments being made much longer with any seams at all."

As to when his own fish scale fashions may appear in shops for sale, Carr Doughty said, "We already have the technique. Now it's up to the manufacturers to show some interest."

A KNIT FABRIC base makes the garments agreeable to wear, and the clothes will be washable.

He said troops wearing his bullet-proof knitwear "would win a lot more medals for bravery." The garments are also to be made for "riot police, politicians and those who value their lives in hazardous conditions," he said.



THIS IS A MACHINE-KNITTED PLAYSUIT with protective plastic plating shown at the British designers convention show in London. The designer, John Carr Doughty, said he's working with the British government on substituting thin titanium or nylon alloy plates for the plastic scales which would make his knitwear bullet-proof. This outfit is in white with the plastic shapes knitted on yard. (AP Wirephoto)

More Seamstresses

The interest in sewing shows in pattern and fabric sales. At a seminar held by one sewing machine manufacturer, panelists said that in 1967 pattern sales were up 30 per cent from the previous year, fabric sales up 29 per cent.

Experts at the seminar estimate that today, 85 per cent of all high school girls know how to sew. In 1967, these 10,650 million girls made nearly 71 million garments.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Bachelor-Inclined Would Send Flowers In Place Of Proposal

DEAR HELEN:

I have been going with a girl for four years. Several times she hinted at marriage, but it didn't seem like a good idea at the time. I am 23 and she is 22. We both work. But I like bachelor life.

Well, I went away for a two-week vacation and, when I returned, my girl said we were through. Just like that. She said she had met another guy. I saw him. He doesn't seem like much. But he looks like a husband, if you know what I mean.

I can't believe my girl really prefers him over me, but she is very stubborn. Do you think candy, flowers and the works might bring her back? — JILTED

DEAR JILTED:

No — but a marriage license would. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

If my mother knew I was writing this, she'd probably kill me because she figures a "tramp" doesn't need any help.

I'm not a tramp. My friends are good kids. They like fun, but they know when to stop, and they don't break the law. I wouldn't think of petting with a boy, but try to convince my mother about that! A neighbor saw me kissing a boy goodnight, and now my folks are sure I'll end up pregnant. They seem to think that no teen could possibly say "No." To tell the truth, I am not even tempted, and a little kiss doesn't make me go wildly out of control.

JIS:

Probably. If parents would throw away the passionate-purple tinted glasses and see teens as they are — not as they're too often written about — we'd turn the Generation Gap into a two-way street. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

When you wrote about the domestic student exchange program, it could have been written about our school. For many years, Glen Rock High School has been interested in exchanging students between different states. Last year our first exchange was successfully carried out with Matoon High School in Illinois.

A dozen students from Illinois came here to New Jersey, where they saw New York City and attended our school for a week. In turn, the teens from Glen Rock lived with their hosts and toured a little bit of Lincolnland.

Not only did we see how other Americans live and feel, but we also exchanged ideas about improving our schools. I hope many other schools will join in the program. It's terrific! — S.P.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Don't Kiss The Girls

LOS SANTOS DE MAIMONA, Spain (UPI)—A word of advice if you visit this little town in western Spain:

Don't put your arm around your wife or girl friend.

Above all, don't kiss her or even give her a quick peck, unless you're sure no one is looking.

For this is a town that has banned any and every demonstration of affection in public— by order of the mayor, Don Francisco Murillo de la Calzada.

Violators face fines, possibly prison and a punishment of Murillo's devising — their names are inscribed on town bulletin boards for a period of eight days.

So far, nobody has violated the anti-love laws—at least not in public.

"They are very good people," said parish priest Angel Munoz Ramirez.

Murillo himself has admitted he would turn a blind eye to discreet hand-holding, even to couples walking steadily arm in arm.

But his decree forbids "any demonstration of love in streets and public places ... which can be considered an affront to public morality, a bad example for children and a moral defect on the guilty persons."

Included are "walks in solitary places" after dusk, including all places outside urban limits, even on highways and roads.

Couturier Touch Given Hem

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

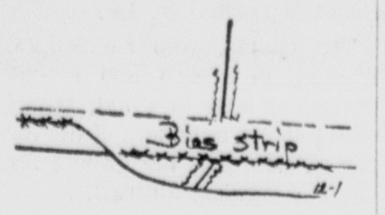
Is there a way to finish a hem in a coat without the stitches showing from the right side?

MRS. S. T.

DEAR MRS. S.T.:

The stitches at the hemline may be eliminated by adding a strip of light-weight interfacing fabric to the hem of your coat or suit and fastening the hem to this.

Use a bias strip of woven interfacing about the same weight as muslin. Be sure it is at least ½ inch wider than the width of the hem. Baste this strip of bias fabric to your garment; the edge of the bias should be exactly on the hemline marks of your garment. Catch stitch this edge of the bias strip to your garment.



Next, fold the hem of the garment in place of the bias strip, baste near the fold to keep it even and straight, and press lightly in place. (Be sure to use silk thread for this basting. If you are working with fleecy fabrics or broadcloth finishes in wool, the silk thread will eliminate marks when pressing.)

Next, catch stitch the edge of the hem to the bias strip only; the bias strip should extend at the hem. Catch stitch the edge of the bias interfacing to the garment seams only. This will eliminate the need for placing hemming stitches on the entire hem, which would be sure to show from the right side. The last ½ inch above the width of lining of your coat will keep the hem in place and prevent it from pulling down. The bias strip of fabric will give the necessary body to the hem of any garment and prevent it from becoming limp and stretched out of shape. One of those important couturier touches!

I have a little trick for concealing shoulder straps. It works beautifully for sleeveless dresses as well as those with sleeves.

Instead of fastening down a neck facing all the way around, I only fasten it down across the front and the back centers, leaving the sections across the shoulders open.

I place a snap at the shoulder seam on the facing, as well as the garment itself. After slipping my dress on, I tuck my straps under the facing and snap the facing down. Straps never creep into sight. This trick will enable a gal to wear a regular bra instead of a strapless one with most low-necked formals or cocktail dresses.

DEAR EUNICE,

Recently I made a suit of imported Scottish tartan fabric, an even-plaid, each square approximately four inches. I thought I had everything matched perfectly, but when I set the sleeves in the armholes, I found that they didn't match the plaids of the jacket. Would you please tell me if there is some rule about matching the sleeves and the body of the jacket?

MRS. R. W. B.

DEAR MRS. R. W. B:

It sounds like you thought of almost everything, except where the sleeves should match. You never try to match the vertical plaids, just the horizontal lines. When placing the pattern on the fabric, use the notch in the front section of your pattern at the armhole as the guide to your plaid. When placing the sleeve in position to cut, place the front notch of the sleeve on the same horizontal line as the front notch of the jacket front. Unfortunately, you will not be able to match the notch at the back armhole, but the front is the most important.

Always remember that a most attractive sleeve in a plaid suit or coat is to cut the sleeve on the bias of the plaid. It is not only decorative but also eliminates the need for matching completely. (Sounds like the coward's way out, but it is actually a detail used by many designers and the better coat and suit manufacturers.)

DEAR READERS,

To the many of you who wrote about your interest in using "signal dots" as markers on garments instead of chalk or tailors chalk, but didn't know where to find these "dots," they come in colors and can be purchased in most stationery stores or office supply stores. They are self adhesive and stick to the fabric, and yet they can be easily lifted off after they have served their pupose.

DEAR EUNICE,

Is there any way to make the flat feld seams inside the pants legs or the long sleeves of a garment? I seem to have quite a bit of difficulty achieving this because the sleeves and legs are so narrow; when the seam goes from the bottom all the way to the top, there just isn't room to work with.

MRS. K. R. C.

DEAR MRS. K. R. C.:

It is always more difficult to make a flat feld seam when the area to work with is small, but it can be done. When you have the seam basted in place, turn the garment wrong side out. Now when you place the seam under the presser foot you will be working with the wrong side flat against the plate of the machine and still be machine stitching on the right side of the garment.

This is much easier than trying to machine stitch seams of this type with the garment right side out.

Madrigal Singers To Serenade For Social Services Auxiliary

THE CHRISTMAS TEA and Boutique given each year by the Social Service Auxiliary of Marin will be held Wednesday from 2 to 5 p.m. at Fanjeaux Hall on the Dominican College campus, San Rafael.

Mrs. Lawrence Murray, president; Mrs. William Losee, vice president, and Mesdames Adolph Capurro, Arthur Goepp Jr. and Thomas Sinna will greet the auxiliary members and their guests at the holiday party.

Home baked foods, boutique gift items, hand sewn articles and Christmas decorations will be offered for sale by the auxiliary, which aids the Catholic Social Service Agency of Marin.

A special feature of the afternoon will be a serenade of Christmas songs by the Madrigal Singers from Dominican College.

Mesdames Clinton Waring and Constance Bricca are chairmen for the tea; Mrs. Robert O'Mara will do decorations; and other chairmen are Mesdames C. Stanley Lawrence, hospitality; Bernard Conroy, awards; Richard A. Williams, refreshments; T. V. McGuire, publicity; James Drier, properties and Arthur V. Fay, invitations.

EPISCOPAL CHURCHWOMEN of the Church of Our Saviour, Mill Valley, will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. to hear members of their Altar Guild explain and demonstrate the work they do for the church.

Also present to answer questions concerning Altar Guild duties will be Mrs. W. E. Somervell of Kentfield, who is directress of Altar Guilds for the Episcopal Diocese of Northern California. Directress of the local guild is Mrs. Robert Brinton.

ALPHA TAU Chapter of Kappa Phi Sigma will have its Christmas dinner at the Flamingo Hotel in Santa Rosa on Dec. 7.

Members and their husbands will attend the social hour at 7 p.m. followed by dinner at 8 and dancing. Mrs. Carol Varner is social chairman.

A luncheon for Alpha Tau member, Mrs. Dennis Monahan, will be held at Dominic's Restaurant in San Rafael on Wednesday. Mrs. Monahan and her husband are moving to New York.

A CHRISTMAS tea for members will be held by the Petaluma Newcomers Club Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. John Olmstead Jr. in Petaluma. Mrs. Edgar Biswell is cohostess for the party.

A NEWLY organized art interest group in Rohnert Park will have an "artistic flea market" of art and craft objects as its first event. The flea market, in which everyone can bring anything in the art or crafts line and sell it, with a 25 per cent commission to the art group, will be held Dec. 7 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Dec. 8 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sales chairman Mrs. Lauren Anderson, said that the sale will be held at the Chamber of Commerce office on the mall in Rohnert Park Shopping Center. Sale items will be received Dec. 6 from noon to 9 p.m. Baked goods will be sold also.

"CHRISTMAS at the Club" will be the theme for the annual Christmas ball to be held for Outdoor Art Club members and guests on Dec. 7 at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Vincent White is chairman for the party planned by Mrs. Roy Simpkins as a fund raising event. A get-acquainted cocktail hour at 7 p.m. will precede the 8 p.m. roast beef dinner, and there will be dancing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to music of a dance band.

President and Mr. Walter Long and past presidents, Mesdames J. Paul Hurd and Kenyon Spalding, and their husbands will be hosts and hostesses.

Reservations chairmen are Mesdames William Bacon and Henri Boussy. Other chairmen are Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Keane, dinner; Joseph Brewster and Gordon Reynolds, dessert; Mesdames Hurd, decorations; Fred Wight, table settings; Roland Kelly, serving; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Laird, potables; and Mrs. Peter Van Dalen, invitations.

STEPHENS COLLEGE Alumnae of Marin will hold it's annual Christmas party on Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Koepke, 15 Lower Drive, Mill Valley.

Plans for the party are being coordinated by Mesdames Robert Nerrie of Mill Valley, and Harold Mickens, William Lewis and D. C. Drake of San Rafael.

A WINE and cheese tasting will be held tomorrow from 5 to 8 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Marvin in Greenbrae, and the gathering will feature a fashion show with an African motif. The event is a benefit for the secretarial school at San Domenico School for Girls, with three women from Greenbrae, members of the Education Corps, who were instrumental in starting the school and three girls from the class as models for the fashions.

THE LARKSPUR Women's Club will hold its annual bazaar and luncheon on Wednesday at the Larkspur City Hall. The bazaar will open at 10:30 a.m., and luncheon will be served at noon. Mrs. Marvin McCarthy is chairman of the bazaar and Mrs. Frank B. Frantz is in charge of the luncheon. Mrs. Carlotta Thomas, president, will welcome guests.

Proceeds from the bazaar and luncheon will go to the club's program of community service.

Reservations chairman is Mrs. Frank Gunner.

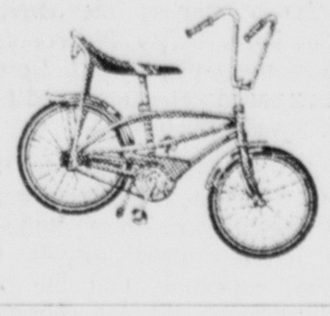
Is A Safe Riding Area Located Near Your Home?

More bicycles are sold during the Christmas shopping season than at any other time of the year. Parents making these purchases should keep certain accident hazards in mind.

Two kinds of braking systems for bicycles are currently available. The simplest to operate is the coaster brake, which requires only that the direction of the pedals be reversed. To apply reverse pedal pressure the arms are used to push the main weight of the body back from the handle bars and onto the pedals. This bracing action tends to keep the rider from being pitched headlong over the front wheel as the cycle stops.



Becoming increasingly popular with youngsters are bicycles with gears which permit the use of multiple speeds. Usually, such cycles are equipped with brakes operated by special grips applied to the handle bars. Cables transmit the pressure from one hand grip to the front wheel and from the other grip to the rear wheel. If equal pressure is applied to both wheels the braking action of this system is excellent, but obtaining this result requires a degree of skill not possessed by all children. It too often happens that most of the braking is applied to the front wheel, flipping the bike so that the rider is thrown headfirst to the pavement. Hand brakes also add to risk of severe injury by encouraging coasting with the weight suspended over the handle bars instead of back over the pedals.

In addition, parents considering the purchase of bicycles should ponder the availability in their neighborhoods of areas safe for cyclists. Physicians are reporting more fatalities and serious head injuries from falls, particularly from bicycle accidents, in the 5 to 15 age group than all other causes combined. Here are four suggestions for reducing the danger to your child:

Give more thought to matching the bike to the skill of the rider.

Beware of hand brakes for younger children.

Provide a hard helmet, similar to those worn by motorcyclists, to be worn while bicycling.

Make certain that lights (the tail light in particular) are installed, maintained, and used when your youngster rides in darkness and times of poor visibility (dawn, dusk, rain, fog).

If your neighborhood does not provide safe areas for bicycling, consider the selection of a different gift.

Physical Condition Affects Ski Injuries

More than 90 per cent of all ski injuries are caused by poor physical condition, fatigue, and overconfidence in skiing ability.

The first step in accident prevention is to get into sturdy physical condition and stay that way. Well before your skiing season starts, loosen up your leg and thigh muscles. Trot and jog awhile each day. When you walk, take long strides with a definite kickoff on slightly bent legs. Other sports, such as canoeing, rowing, swimming, and water skiing will contribute to the strength and flexibility of your arms, shoulders, and legs.

DURING THE SEASON, spend 10 minutes a day in knee bends, waist bends, and a few pushups. Walking on tip-toe is good exercise for the ankles. To develop the thighs, sit on the edge of a table and straighten the legs slowly. When you are able to extend the legs without their trembling, add two pounds of weight on each foot and continue the exercise. A simple home device for adding weight is to put canned goods in a pillow case. Increase gradually until you can extend a weight of 35 to 40 pounds without a tremor. Maintain these daily exercises throughout the skiing season.

A skiier who is tired is more susceptible to injury, because he tends to become careless and is more likely to lose control of his body's coordination. Get enough sleep before the trip, and eat well. Most important, don't overdo it. If you are too tired or weak to brake or to turn suddenly, you may become a casualty.

It is imperative that the beginner receive ski instruction from someone who is thoroughly qualified to teach. If he tries to learn alone, he may teach himself bad position and posture habits, and he may develop techniques which expose himself and others to danger.

A FEW OTHER TIPS: Ski with proper equipment. Watch snow conditions; there may be midday softening of the snow and, as the sun sets, trail conditions may change rapidly. Never ski alone — if you get hurt, a ski buddy can get help. Every skier should have an elementary knowledge of first aid.

Frostbite fallacy: Do not rub frostbitten parts with snow! Rubbing increases risk of gangrene. Symptoms are pink skin just before frostbite develops, changing to white or greyish-yellow. Initial pain quickly subsides and the victim feels cold and numb — usually not aware of frostbite. In giving first aid, 1) cover affected areawith a warm hand or woolen material (hands may be tucked under armpits), 2) get victim inside, 3) place frostbitten part in lukewarm (not hot) water or gently wrap in blankets, 4) let circulation re-establish itself naturally, 5) give a warm, nonalcoholic drink, 6) when fingers or toes are involved, encourage gentle exercise when they are warmed. Never use hot water bottles or heat lamps.

Remember: Accidents rarely happen to the experienced skier because he keeps himself in good physical condition — he recognizes his own limitations — he keeps his skiing under control — he uses the proper equipment and keeps it in good repair — he has learned all the rules of safe skiing — and, he knows how to handle the dangers found on the different types of trails.

GAY RAMSEY

Miss Ramsey Will Marry MacGibbon

A May wedding is planned by Gay Marguerite Ramsey and William Douglas MacGibbon II.

The future bride is the daughter of Dr. Douglas E. Ramsey of San Rafael and Mrs. Roberta Ramsey of Sausalito. She is the sister of Mrs. Samuel Williams and Robert Ramsey of San Rafael. A graduate of Redwood High School and Stephens College, she is employed at Teledyne, Inc. in Los Angeles.

William is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Douglas MacGibbon of Portland, Ore. Bruce and Evan MacGibbon are his brothers. He is a graduate of Jesuit High School and Portland State University and is employed by Capitol Records in Los Angeles.

On The Rise

Real estate lots in the fast-developing Manila suburb of Forbes Park have increased in value from 6 pesos ($1.50) to 200 pesos ($50) per square meter, slightly more than one square yard, since 1948.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Witherspoons Sail On Eastern Cruise

By MOLLY MARIN

Sailing aboard the liner Santa Rosa on a 13 day cruise to the Caribbean and Central America were Mr. and Mrs. William E. Witherspoon of San Rafael.

Sailing from New York, the liner's ports of call include Curacao, Caracas, Aruba, Jamaica, Haiti and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Now A Stewardess

Carol Ann Blachley of Fairfax was graduated from stewardess training school in Chicago and is flying aboard United Airlines jets from Chicago. A graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, Carol attended College of Marin and was formerly employed by the American Automobile Association in San Francisco.

MR. AND MRS. Robert Pritchard of Lucas Valley will honor their son and wife, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. John Pritchard at a cocktail party tonight. Eighty friends from the Bay Area have been invited to the party.

MAKING A 31 day tour of the Pacific, the Water H. Abrahams of San Rafael stopped over briefly in Fiji, where they stayed at the Grand Pacific Hotel in Suva.

MRS. HAL MOORE is leaving Dec. 15 to spend the holidays in Honolulu with old friends, Dr. and Mrs. Hans Zimmerman.

While she is in the islands Violetta Moore's brother-in-law, Harvey Au Buchon of Chicago, will stay at her home.

THE NEWLY WED Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Langfeld of San Rafael were honored last Saturday evening at a cocktail party at Oreste's Restaurant. Hosts were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Reeves.

Glamor Of Old India Invades Beverly Hills

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Socialites and movie lunminaries jammed bachelor George Frelinghuysen's durbar — a reception patterned after one given in India 65 years ago.

Frelinghuysen, 57, a millionaire art collector, big-game hunter and globe-trotter transformed the Crystal Room of the Beverly Hills Hotel into an Indian palace. Outside the windows flickered 1,500 votive candles while a Beverly Hills Fire Department inspector stood watch.

ELEPHANTS, TIGERS

Inside there were elephant and tiger figures, a gigantic papier-mache cobra, endless arrays of flowers and maharajah and maharani figures which Frelinghuysen brought back from a hunting trip in India, along with a canopy for the royal platform.

For entertainment, a pair of Siamese dancers performed with hand-held flames and clanking ornaments.

Two other dancers, costumed as tigers, were carried in a bamboo cage. They simulated an old Far Eastern sport in which two warriors clad in loincloths fought with steel fingernails until one was dead.

COMING-OUT PARTY

Frelinghuysen, of Beverly Hills, gave the affair as a coming-out party in honor of brunette Mary Victoria Leiter, 18, of Washington, D.C., and Newport, R.I., daughter of his longtime friend, the late Thomas Leiter.

She is a great-niece of Lady Mary Victoria Curzon, whose husband gave a durbar in New Delhi 65 years ago as viceroy to celebrate King Edward VII's coronation in London.

Ann Miller wore an Indian sari gown of green with gold-thread figures. She confided the garment took a year to make and the material cost $1,000 a bolt.

Kurt Kreuger appeared as a Romanian Ambassador and the Ricardo Montalbans as an Indian prince and princess. Ross Martin was a Bengal lancer, his wife, Olavee, in Indian costume.

Former movie skating queen Sonja Henie came from Norway with her shipowner husband Neils Onstand.

Frelinghuysen declined to say what his durbar cost except that a published estimate of nearly $250,000 was "a gross exaggeration. It couldn't cost even one quarter of that."

Punch Thrown At Film Fete

LONDON (UPI)—French film director Jean Luc Godard socked Canadian film producer Iain Quarrier in the face and stomach on the stage of the National Film Theater last night before 600 startled movie fans.

The fisticuffs broke out after Godard urged the audience to walk out rather than staying to see his latest film "One Plus One" starring the Rolling Stones and Black Power leader Frankie Y. He objected to a change made in the film.

Godard suggested the fans ask for their money back and then send it to Eldridge Cleaver, the U.S. Black Power leader being sought by California authorities.

Godard punched Quarrier as the Canadian rose to try to talk to him.

"You're all bourgeoise fascists," shouted Godard who complained the addition of a Rolling Stone song "Sympathy for the Devil" had ruined his film. He blamed Quarrier for the change.

DRAMA REVIEW

Odd Near-Melodrama Comes To Mill Valley

By KARL BARRON

The constant search of little theaters to find new vehicles turns up some strange stage fare — witness the current Tamalpais Valley Players production of a play by J. L. Rosenberg called "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch."

At first glance one decides this is a melodrama. But it has hardly begun before Robert Butts as a narrator-singer dispels the idea, explaining that the title character is the one character who is out of place in the traditional Western.

BREAKS 'CODE'

Everyone else is stock, from the fastest gun in the West to the booze-heisting "Doc." But Sneaky Fitch is a no-good, drunken, cowardly son of an epithet who refuses to abide by the "code of the West." When Rackham, the fastest gun, challenges Sneaky, Sneaky just grovels and refuses to draw his shootin' iron.

But then, through a plot complication which I will not give away, the tables are turned. Sneaky becomes the town terror, bumps off the sheriff, takes over Maroon, the sheriff's dance hall girl friend, and generally raises hell.

LIKES COWARDICE

The double switch at this point is that Sneaky discovers that a life filled with fear, especially fear of death, is much more rewarding than a life which is indestructible. And he finally returns to the ways of cowardice with great delight.

The premise that fear is the spice of life is not new, and Rosenberg adds no new discoveries. He has penned a script which keeps promising but seldom produces. Only a top-notch cast keeps the production from being a colossal bore. The satire on the fabled, unreal West of TV is not broad enough; the melodrama does not mellow; the real drama almost jells, but cannot because of the treatment. The result is a bit strange.

STAR EXCELS

However, Rick Hackney as Sneaky is so good that we often forget he is fighting a losing script. Stubble-bearded, beady-eyed, his unashamed cowardice is positively refreshing, while his change to the debonair man-about-Gopher Gulch is a little masterpiece of characterization.

Alan Burdick is remarkably sinister as Rackham, aided by an all black costume, a walrus mustache and a pearl-handled gun. Bern Healey plays the rascally Doc with melodramatic zest, while Phoebe Deignan's gum-chewing, deadpan Maroon is right out of Dodge City.

Others who aid in keeping up the pace under G. S. Andrews' slightly static direction are Mike Geisler, Joe Allen and Diane Wood.

Healey, Allen and Tod Andrews have turned the postage stamp stage of Brown's Hall into the main street of Gopher Gulch, complete with jail, saloon and bank.

J. L. Rosenberg will not win any Pulitzer prizes for "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch" but there have been worse evenings in Mill Valley. And it's worth seeing for Hackney's performance alone. It'll play today at 8:30 p.m. and again next Friday and Saturday.

Adult Trial Set In Star's Killing

VAN NUYS (UPI)—A 17-year old boy accused of helping club silent screen lover Ramon Navarro to death during a robbery will be tried as an adult.

Novarro, 69, was found beaten to death in his blood spattered mansion in the Hollywood hills Oct. 31.

The Ferguson brothers, who formerly lived in Round Lake, Ill., a Chicago suburb, were arrested a week later.

Integration Speech

Carl Braden, executive director of the Southern Conference Educational Fund of Louisville, Ky., will speak at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 North San Pedro Road, on "The White Man's Stake in the Black Man's Liberation."

VERY SELDOM

does a realtor have the opportunity to present, for sale, a home as spectacular & handsomely built as this one. Located at the water's edge on Belvedere Island, it commands a panoramic view of San Francisco & the Bay Area. 8 plus rooms surround a center court patio & large swimming pool extending out over the bay. Designed for both formal & informal living, this home has 4 or 5 bdrms., 6 baths, library, large kitchen, sauna bath, 3 car garage. No expense was spared in construction. Detailing is perfect down to the $20,000 sound system throughout the home which includes underwater speakers in the pool. This residence is a result of a life-long dream and would not be for sale except for extenuating circumstances. It is being offered at well below its replacement cost. For further particulars call W. Bruce Shafer or Emerson Best at 332-4743.

Volunteer Firemen Group Seeking To Incorporate

The 94-year-old San Rafael Volunteer Fire Department — once all that stood between disaster and the city's homes, schools and businesses, but now largely a social group — has filed papers as a nonprofit corporation with Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan in Sacramento.

The organization is seeking nonprofit status mainly for tax and insurance benefits, vice president Richard H. Miehling said.

Twenty of the 85 members have belonged to the organization over 40 years and therefore don't pay the required monthly dues, according to secretary-treasurer Lloyd C. Brooks. The membership includes professional firemen.

The organization's major event — the annual dance in February, near George Washington's birthday — is to benefit a relief fund for members who were injured or made ill on duty and for widows and children of those who died combating fires.

The volunteer company was established by the original city charter in February, 1874, and was organized Dec. 17, 1874. It has been supplanted by a professional company but several volunteer firemen have helped to fight recent blazes, San Rafael Fire Inspector Dennis A. Jenson said.

Drug Abuse Programs Will Begin Dec. 8

A three-Sunday program of drug abuse information, beginning Dec. 8 at 11 a.m. at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia, will be sponsored by the center's Commonwealth Club.

Robert Levin, a pharmacologist, will speak Dec. 8. Robert Flynn, College of Marin Sociologist, will speak on the subject at 11 a.m. Dec. 15. Inspector William G. Burgess of the Marin Durg Abuse Bureau will complete the program with a talk at 11 a.m. Jan. 5.

Civil Liberty Parley

The Committee for Civil Liberties in Secondary Schools, whose aim is to insure student freedoms granted in the Bill of Rights, will hold an organizational meeting Wednesday in Room 163 of Redwood High School. Officers will be elected and goals will be set.

AN EXCITING STROLL

Keepers at the Rio Grande Zoo in Albuquerque, N.M., had an exciting half hour yesterday when three polar bears discovered their pen's gate had been left open. One bear chased a keeper through a hole in a fence, but otherwise the ursines concentrated on enjoying an autumn stroll. They were finally recaptured with a combination of fish as bait and cars used for herding them back into their pen. (UPI Telephoto)

Polar Visit Junket Going To Moscow

BOSTON (AP) — Businessmen on a flight over both North and South poles, added Moscow to their itinerary yesterday.

A spokesman said arrangements for the stop were made through Anatoly F. Dobrinin, Soviet ambassador to the United States, when the flight landed in Rome and passengers said they'd like to visit the Russian capitol.

Marinites on the journey include William E. Steen of Belvedere, president of a San Francisco clothing firm, and Richmond steel firm executive Marshall I. Wais of San Rafael.

The spokesman said the side trip was arranged after calls to Washington where Dobrynin approved visas and clearances.

The flight was organized by Cmdr. Fred G. Dustin, head of the Byrd Polar Center in Boston, as a tribute to famed Arctic explorer Adm. Richard E. Byrd and to interest businessmen in potential polar resources.

The flight left Boston Nov. 8 and is due back Tuesday.

Session Postponed

The Belvedere City Council will not meet Monday as regularly scheduled because a quorum of the council will be unable to attend. The meeting has been rescheduled for 8 p.m. Dec. 9 at the Belvedere City Hall.

Honor T Society Seats Officers

Liese Greensfelder was installed as grand oracle of the Tamalpais High School Honor T Society in initiation ceremonies this week at the school.

William Guerin was installed as vice oracle, Sue Folder as scribe and Evelyn Shiro as treasurer.

Certificates for the Honor T and California Scholarship societies were presented to students who maintained a B average or higher during the semester.

Boys Club Given Nod For Park In Corte Madera

The Corte Madera Parks and Recreation Commission Wednesday night gave the Javelin Club for Boys permission to use Town Park except for its archery activities. It was incorrectly reported to the Independent-Journal by a commission spokesman yesterday that the club had been denied use of the park for all purposes.

The commission said it might be interested in aiding the club financially if the boys were from only Corte Madera and Larkspur, but didn't, as reported Friday, limit park use to the club for boys from just these communities.

The club, directed by Frank J. Selas, has 35 boys ranging in age from 5 to 13 and living from Terra Linda to Sausalito. It offers, for an hourly fee, activities in golf, judo, swimming, horseback riding, crafts and archery.

New Year's Party

The Marin Jewish Community Center will hold its New Years Eve party, including dinner and dancing, from 9 p.m. Dec. 31 at Temple Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road. Mrs. Al Schilling, chairman of the New Years Eve Committee, recommends reservations in advance.

MARIN HEALTH-SEEKERS

Some Jog As Others Commute

By MARY LEYDECKER

An increasingly familiar early morning sight on Marin's roads and walks is the jogger in ever-growing numbers, clad usually in a sweat shirt and trotting happily along oblivious to his gray-flanneled neighbors as they head for the freeway crush.

"Jogging or running for a few minutes every day is probably the best kind of exercise there is," said Dr. James R. Dahl of Greenbrae, an internist who follows his own prescription.

Not only does Dr. Dahl run a mile every day, he has a strong believer in his wife, Wanda, who does her own every morning.

"My husband and I can't run at the same time, because someone has to watch the baby," Mrs. Dahl explained. She puts on shorts and heads outdoors before 8 a.m. to run near her home at 116 Almenar Drive, doing a mile in eight or 10 minutes.

Dr. Dahl, also more of a runner than jogger, does his mile in the evenings in about six minutes.

"If it's pouring rain, I run in place in the house," Mrs. Dahl explained, "but it's so much nicer to get outdoors."

Mrs. Dahl, the mother of three youngsters, is lean, firm and trim after about a year of running, but said that this wasn't always the case. "I was in terrible shape after the birth of the baby, Kristin, a year and a half ago," she laughed.

Not only do her two sons, Jim, 6, and Erik, 5, often join her in running but her most faithful companion is the family basset hound, Poky. "She's so stupid she would get lost if I didn't take her on a leash," Mrs. Dahl said with a smile.

Although basset hounds are not noted for speed, Poky zooms ahead on the mornings when garbage trucks are in the nighborhood. "At any rate, she's a very healthy dog," said Mrs. Dahl.

While Mrs. Dahl sees the fun of it and a trim figure as the prime benefits, her doctor husband is equally as interested in what jogging and running do for the heart.

"I treat many patients who have had heart attacks," said Dr. Dahl. "I start them off walking, then walking briskly and finally jogging," he explained.

"It's actually possible for them to build up hearts that are in better shape after an attack than before if they exercise regularly, give up smoking and eat a low cholesterol diet," he said.

"The best exercise is one which a person can do vigorously for six to 10 minutes without becoming completely exhausted," the internist said. Swimming laps, bicycling and rowing are also good, Dr. Dahl said, but few of the competitive sports meet his standards because most require sudden spurts of energy.

Playing tennis singles for a half-hour no less than every other day would fill Dr. Dahl's health bill, but "golf is not enough."

Not only does jogging have great health benefits, there is sometimes a special dividend.

A story going the rounds of Marin joggers tells of a Terra Linda man who was jogging in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park when his wife's purse was snatched. The jogger took after the thief, jogging until he finally wore down the out-of-shape purse-snatcher, who dropped the bag and disappeared.

Cheaper To Build Tunnels Than Roads

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—The city is building tunnels under the Mobile River for interstate highway traffic and people are asking: "Why not a bridge over it?"

The Alabama Trucker magazine has an answer. "In the 1970s, it says, "it will be cheaper to build tunnels than highways." It cites a study which based cost savings on new techniques in tunnel construction and rising land costs.

Christmas Calls Best Placed By GIs Overseas

Persons who wish to speak to relatives stationed in Vietnam during the holiday season have been encouraged by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. to have the servicemen place the calls.

Troy E. Lewis, manager of Pacific Telephone's San Rafael office, said that although the company makes every effort to locate men in Vietnam, it is often difficult because of Vietnam travel restrictions and curfews.

On the other hand, calls originating in Vietnam are handled on a first-come, first-served basis at various telephone centers for servicemen, Lewis explained. "Once a serviceman places his call, it's just a matter of minutes before it is completed," he said.

However, if relatives wish to place calls to Vietnam, Lewis said, it is important for them to have the serviceman's unit, APO number and, if possible, a telephone number where he can be reached. He said the speed with which the calls goes through depends on the number of calls at the time and the serviceman's availability.

Anti-Cancer Plant Compound Discovered

BERKELEY, Calif (UPI)—In a development that may assist cancer research, University of California pathologists have discovered a "medicine" that destroys bacteria-caused tumors on living plants.

The compound is now being manufactured for agricultural use, but medical researchers say it offers hope in the human cancer disease. They note it is "the first evidence of a selectively toxic agent that completely and consistently destroys tumors without injuring the host."

Policeman Playing More Than One Role

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Ernest Roger Griss is a policeman-poet-actor-song composer.

His acting, writing and entertaining are off-duty hobbies. Griggs writes poetry, music and essays. He has appeared in "The Blacks" by Jean Genet. His songs have been recorded by Arthur Prysock, Nancy Wilson, Gloria Lynn and The Fifth Dimension.

Hayakawa Needs Help To Save State College

THE FEWER DETAILS you know about the situation at San Francisco State College, the easier it is to be sure of simple ways to end the trouble.

The converse is also true.

Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, one of Marin's most distinguished citizens, ascends to the San Francisco State College presidency knowing considerable about the problems underlying recent events on the campus. He first served on the faculty there more than 15 years ago.

In short, he knows a multitude of reasons why no simple, easy solution is possible.

But he seems to be off on the right foot.

At the outset, he approached his task cautiously.

"I prefer to avoid comment on specific matters of policy and operation," he said at the press conference which followed the announcement of his appointment as acting president.

LATER HE EXPRESSED the belief that most students want to return to classes, and observed that many classes had been held despite the strike and the turmoil of the past two weeks.

He made special mention of the Committee for an Academic Environment and lamented the lack of publicity its activities have received.

Privately, Hayakawa has disclosed his conviction that the Black Students Union, Students for a Democratic Society and Third World Liberation Front constitute a relatively small minority agitating for the continuing shutdown of the school.

Each of these three militant, activist organizations has been widely publicized. Committee for Academic Environment has not. Privately, Hayakawa has expressed the hope that the latter organization will rally as spokesman for what up to now has been the "silent majority" in favor of immediate resumption of classes.

IF YOU READ PAMPHLETS handed out on campus by each of the aforementioned organizations, only those from the Committee for Academic Environment reflect calm reason, as distinguished from the hysteria evident in most campus pamphleering.

While favoring the building of a black studies department, the CAE recognizes that thus far this year San Francisco State has spent more than three quarters of a million dollars beyond its budget. CAE offers its services to help raise an additional $350,000 needed for posposed expansion of a black studies department.

However, says, CAE, "The Black Studies Department must meet regular standards of the college in order to be academically recognized and part of the accredited college curriculum. This must be done to satisfy the needs of black students who are to benefit by the program."

Those who have followed the demands of the Black Students Union recognize the reasonableness of the CAE view as contrasted with the BSU position.

ON CAMPUS VIOLENCE, the CAE has expressed an intelligent attitude.

"We cannot stop the violence. We cannot stop police from coming on campus. We can prevent it from becoming a major crisis by not becoming part of a mob. The police do not decide of themselves to come on campus and attacking them will not prevent them from coming again. It will close the campus."

Obviously, that is a more mature view than the oft-mouthed assertion of the radicals that "invasion of the campus by police causes violence."

The CAE has advocated — without much public notice — that present student body officers be recalled.

Eighty to 90 per cent of students attended classes (when they were held) during the strike, but "student government sided with the small minority of radical students that did support the strike," said the CAE.

"The present student government has made no attempt to present the issues to the student body and conduct an intelligent, nonviolent alternative to settle the disputes," it observed.

WHY DOESN'T THE SILENT majority just stand up and speak out in support of restoration of order and resumption of classes?

Perhaps it is because its members are intimidated by threats from minority extremists. Two faculty members who spoke out thus subsequently found their offices fire-bombed and their very lives threatened.

When Dr. Hayakawa assumed the acting presidency he asked for support — on campus and off — and for the prayers of well wishers.

He both deserves and needs support and prayers.

If he fails, San Francisco State College will either be closed up tight or become an armed camp, perhaps occupied by national guardsmen in an atmosphere of martial law.

If he fails, other state colleges will experience similar disasters.

If he succeeds in bringing order out of the present chaos, he will set a pattern for others to follow in preserving order.

Let us fervently hope and pray for the latter course.

—Jack Craemer

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the Marin County Board of Supervisors majority for voting to put dissolution of Bolinas Harbor District up to vote of the people of the district. Supervisors Ernest N. Kettenhofen and John F. McInnis, who have consistently opposed dissolution, seemed inconsistent in opposing the election on it.

BOUQUETS to Madelyn Angress of Marshall and Glenn Parks of Tomales for being named 4-H Club All-Stars of Marin County.

BRICKBATS to all concerned in the court handling of the Leydecker-Rabuzzi marijuana case. Neither the court nor the legal profession enhanced its stature on this one.

BOUQUET to E. Warren McGuire on his appointment as new judge of Marin Superior Court.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Nov. 30, 1958

Sixto Rodriquez, 21-year-old San Anselmo resident, won the California lightheavyweight boxing championship with a 12-round decision over Billy Hester of San Diego at Richmond Auditorium.

Ross General Hospital directors approved plans for a new $250,000 wing with 20-bed capacity, and three operating rooms.

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 30, 1948

Marin's two daily newspapers, the San Rafael Independent and the Marin Journal, were merged as one publication, the Independent-Journal.

Distribution of Communist literature in Mill Valley and Alto was under investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and postal authorities.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Once, to an old Scotch carpenter, I boasted with scant tact of 10 ancestors on the Mayflower and that every drop of my blood had been on American soil for more than two centuries. He replied: "Tell me this — how many nights sat ye up decidin' ye'd no be born Chinese?" — John Palmer Gavit.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Meaningful Racial Dialogue Necessary

Bill McShane in "What Our Readers Say," Nov. 25, insults a greater majority of the black people than he could ever imagine.

He had best leave his amateurish attempts at sounding like Art Hoppe at home in the waste basket.

What is happening at S. F. State, at the Olympics, etc., is inevitable. Mr. McShane's attitude only accelerates it.

These students will be heard and we had all better listen, hard. Unless a meaningful dialogue quickly occurs between the people who have exploited and oppressed the black man for 300 years and his "victims," we will all look back on the last month as "the good old days."

One notes a considerable fear of retaliation in this letter. I think those he fears would be hard pressed, however justified, to match the ingenious exclusion from life itself that they have endured for about the last time.

Leydecker Case 'Just Plain Stinks'

The Leydecker case, as reported, just plain stinks!

As many other Marin County parents have done, we saw our teen-ager's name on the I-J's front page, saw her through court appearances, saw her caught up in the red tape of the juvenile department — all because she was found in a car parked where marijuana was found on the road outside.

She lost her job with a local bank as a result.

But she wasn't the president, or otherwise enough of a local "shot" for the district attorney to recommend that she and her companion be freed, and to win discharge on a legal technicality.

How can we parents teach teen-agers respect for the courts, for attorneys, for bankers, for "the establishment" in general, when they see a whitewash job like this on the front page? No one can know that the defendant is actually guilty unless a true adversary trial has taken place — but try to tell that to any intelligent teen-ager these days!

If the suspicions left by this case can be satisfactorily explained away, you owe the county's parents an editorial to do so.

Editorial Provides Theme For Project

Your lead editorial of Nov. 26 was timely and to the point.

"Planning To Preserve People." What an excellent theme!

LINES ON LIVING

Nature's Constant Revival Has Lessons For Man

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

If you ever become despondent when you see fallen leaves of a past summer and the lengthening shadows of a nearing winter, stop and look, listen and observe.

There are sights on the horizon and voices in the air to brighten man's darkened soul. There is hidden mystery and splendor in ebbing colors and shades. There is sweet melancholy in nature that proclaims change and prompts innovation and enthusiasm.

A GREEN LEAF on soggy ground is a sad sight, a gesture of resignation. But the tree beside it tells another tale. It is a solitary witness to an eternal and more reliable and recurrent cycle of life, of never-fading promise. For every drying leaf, there is another leaf in the making, in expectancy and budding. Ice, snow and black skies can only shroud it in what seems to be an invitable hibernation necessary to life.

There is a loveliness in nature, a grace that makes leaves blown in the wind as mystifying to our imagination as the freshly born blade that springs out of a deep freeze to burst into new life.

There is an economy in nature, a brilliance of cleansing and dusting, pruning and revitalizing. A cosmic vacuum cleaner is at work to give newness and freshness to weary leaf, branch, root and soil. And with it comes rest to teeming life and pause from dazzling heat and growth.

THE SUN is cutting corners today and is hiding in chilly air and gloomy clouds. But the sun's circle is reliably round and perfect. Beginning and end are merged; light and darkness are co-mingled into the perennial completeness of a globular whole.

Seasons provide us with a variety of beauty. And all elements in nature are fair. It is what we ascribe to them and the way we learn to live with them that makes the difference in what we see. There is a splendor even in the dark of night, a delicacy in slumber, a comely serenity in retreat. And the sensitive ear will listen to the voices of change and welcome them as the inscrutable rule of all life and all creation.

Beneath the fiery sun of a distant glow, you can still hear the chatters, the calls of birds in migratory flight. They are departing, but to return again; they are leaving, but to come back and rebuild their shattered nests, as soon as change on day not far off will usher in a warmer season and brighter days.

THE WISDOM of birds can be instructive. They have no time for sad lamentations. They mourn not last summer and a lost spring. An inner urgency of life impels them to embark upon their long journey of survival. They will die if they learn not to live with change, with the seasons, with transition. They linger not idly for devastating winds to pluck away their feathers and to chill their breath of life. They survive to sing another spring's song of life because they are too busy living and flying to surrender to winter gloom and doom. They cross mountains, rivers and lands and rise skyward so that the cold earth will not overcome them.

Everything in nature—even fall's deep night—tells us of transition and movement, not of finality and end. A cold November day is only a partial summary of leaves and a certain stage of life. But by no means is it the signal of fatal descent and final impending death.

We can enhance life with enthusiasm and beauty if we add the vision of faith and optimism to the sights of falling leaves and howling winds; if we summon the hope of confidence when black clouds seem to darken our horizon; if we escape sorrow by an upward flight, to rise again with the sun and to rebuild our battered nests with the dawning of a new spring in our life.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Congressional Divisions Hamper Democratic Party's Rebuilding

WASHINGTON — In remaking the fragmented Democratic party the congressional piece is bound to have a prominent place. The Republicans on Nov. 5 were held to minimal gains and the Democrats control both Senate and House and the powerful committee chairmanships that have so much to do with the progress of legislation. Richard Nixon's failure to carry with him majorities of his own party is the first time this has happened to an incoming President since Zachary Taylor in 1848.

The fact is, however, that the congressional piece is split down the middle. On one side are the old stand-bys and on the other the young activists long restive under the shackles of seniority.

It is here that Vice President Hubert Humphrey can function most effectively. He knows Congress inside out with a direct and personal understanding of the rivalry and factionalism deeply embedded in the two majorities — nominal majorities in light of southern dominance — in Senate and House. Determined to put new life into the Democratic National Committee, so long moribund, Humphrey can draw on such talented senators as Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Fred Harris of Oklahoma, who contributed a lot to his campaign.

THE NEXT congressional election is only two years off and the division between the liberal-moderates and the old liners and southerners can mean trouble for the Democrats in that contest. The image of an old, barnacle-ridden ship of state is hardly one to inspire younger voters. At the helm in the House is Speaker John W. McCormack looking like a troubled ghost of Christmas past. Of his 77 years, 40 have been spent on the seniority escalator that carried him to his present eminence.

The mutterings of revolt are louder this time over the obduracy of what the young activists feel is the entrenched and resistant Old Guard. The talk among the bolder spirits is of sidetracking McCormack when Democratic House members hold their caucus and replacing him with one of the activists. The name most often mentioned is Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona.

But Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, whose recent book, "Power in the House," contains a broadside attack on McCormack's feeble, wavering leadership, would not go along. While the Democratic Study Group claims a membership up to 140 out of 243 Democrats in the House, the hard core willing to stand up and be counted is perhaps 60 to 70. In short, the votes are not there to move McCormack out of the speaker's chair.

A crafty player of the seniority game, cultivating the Boston-Austin axis as it is known in the House, McCormack at the end of the last session made some strategic appointments to the powerful ways and means committee. Omar Burleson of Texas, James C. Corman of California and William J. Green of Philadelphia all were rewarded, and that fine geographical distribution speaks well for McCormack's astuteness in holding his power.

BUT IF McCormack cannot be dislodged, the DSG does intend to move on Democratic members whom Bolling calls Republicans with a southern accent. High on this list is Rep. John R. Rarick of Louisiana who, according to the DSG, spoke around the country for the National Youth for (George C.) Wallace organization. They are even making a pass at one of the southern ineffables, chairman Mendel Rivers, who exercises an authority over the armed services committee and the Pentagon that the czar of all the Russias might have envied. The DSG has a picture of Rivers locked in a fraternal embrace with Gen. Curtis LeMay, former Chief of the Air Force, Wallace's vice presidential candidate. The caption under the picture says that Rivers was being given a briefing, presumably on the state of the Wallace campaign, by LeMay.

In the Senate the liberal-moderates would like to remove Sen. Russell Long from the whip's position. As No. 2 to majority leader Mike Mansfield, he has been erratic, often taking a position contrary to that of Mansfield and the administration.

Those who look realistically at the divisions in the Democratic party are convinced there can be no forward movement without drastic changes in Congress. Nor, they argue, can Richard Nixon be counted on to make boners that will atuomatically return them to power.

20 Questions About Money-And Try To Understand Answers

WASHINGTON — Now that everyone understands the world monetary crisis, we're going to give you your final quiz:

1—If I have five French francs and you have three West German Deutschemarks, what will we have all together?

ANSWER — One of the damndest money messes since World War II.

2—If I want to sell my French francs for German marks at 10 per cent less than they're officially quoted, what currency will be hurt the most?

A—The British pound.

3—Why?

A—Because it's tied to the American dollar.

4—WHEN THE American dollar gets in serious trouble, what country sells its dollar and demands gold, to make it go down further?

A—France.

5—When the French franc gets in trouble, what country agrees to go to its rescue and shore it up with its own gold?

A—The United States.

6—Why?

A—Because of the British pound.

7—WHEN THE British pound gets into trouble, who is the first person to demand that it be devalued?

A—President Charles de Gaulle.

8—When the French franc gets in trouble, who is the last person to agree to its devaluation?

A—President Charles de Gaulle.

9—Why?

A—Because of the West German mark.

10—WHAT HAS the German mark got to do with the French franc?

A—The West German mark is undervalued because the Germans don't have enough inflation. The French franc is overvalued because the French have too much inflation.

11—What is the solution?

A—The British have to tighten their belts.

You have a coffee break now before we go on with the quiz.

ALL RIGHT, let's continue:

12—What happens to all the gold that is supposed to support world currencies?

A—It's bought by the Swiss for people who have numbered accounts in Zurich.

13—When they buy the gold, what happens to the currencies?

14—Why?

A—Because everyone is afraid of the British pound.

15—WHAT CAN France do to restore confidence in the French franc?

A—Attack the American dollar.

16—How can they do this?

A—By using the money we've loaned them to preserve their franc.

17—Why would we allow this?

A—To preserve the British pound.

18—WHO WILL President De Gaulle blame if his reforms don't work?

A—The United States.

19—Who will get the credit if De Gaulle can pull it off?

A—That's a stupid question.

A—Take an Englishman to lunch.

Perhaps the highest function of a public servant in a free and democratic society is to preserve its oneness as a community while he fights the battles that divide it. — Walter Lippmann.

Major Labor Problems Face Nixon From Start

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Major labor troubles are likely to confront Richard M. Nixon immediately when he becomes president.

His biggest labor problem will be the same issue he would have faced had he won the presidency in 1960—the so-called railroad featherbedding controversy.

By the time Nixon is sworn in Jan. 20 the nation could easily be in the midst of a crippling strike of dock workers from Maine to Texas, as well as the start of a nationwide walkout on the railroads.

Within a month after he moves into the White House, the new chief executive may be faced with strikes against five major airlines and a second rail strike.

But the only certainty at this point appears to be that longshoremen will resume their strike at East and Gulf Coast ports as soon as an 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction against them expires. That's Dec. 20.

Conceivably this could force President Johnson to call Congress into emergency session to deal with the strike, although there seems very little likelihood of that.

The basic issue involved in the dispute is the problem of containerized cargoes, a problem that could eventually cost the International Longshoreman's Association up to 50 per cent of its membership.

More important to the labor movement, however, is the effect a longshore strike would have on future relations between Nixon and organized labor. As a result, sources close to the talks said AFL-CIO President George Meany "is making a tremendous effort to try to avoid a longshore strike."

Since the election, the AFL-CIO has been making a concerted effort to avoid any confrontation with Nixon since relations between the president-elect and labor already were strained.

Labor is not particularly worried about any sweeping anti-labor reforms in Congress as long as a crisis situation is averted. The liberal majority in the Senate gives labor a safeguard against anything the House might do.

A major strike crisis could, however, tip the balance against labor and this is where the railroad situation comes in.

A special presidential emergency board has been holding hearings on a demand by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (BRT) that three railroads —Louisville & Nashville, the Belt Railway and Illinois Central—hire extra crewmen beyond what the lines consider necessary for safe operations.

By Jan. 6, three days after the 91st Congress opens, the union could be free to strike the railroads on the issue. If the government then wanted to stop a strike, it would have to go to Congress for special legislation —all other legal avenues having been exhausted.

A BRT victory in its fight for extra crewmen could open the door to much broader rail labor problems. In the background is a similar case involving railroad firemen.

The firemen's union is demanding that the railroads return the firemen from the steam engine era of railroading to the cab of the diesel locomotive. The union claims the extra man is needed for safety reasons; the railroads say he isn't.

This case is presently under the jurisdiction of the National Mediation Board and could be forced into an emergency situation at any time. If the firemen's union decides to strike the nation's railroads to match the gains of the trainmen's union, an emergency situation would face labor.

Under the law, the firemen's union—unlike the BRT must negotiate with all the railroads. Thus, if it wanted to strike it would strike all the railroads.

If it decided on a strike, the government could force it to wait under the 60-day cooling off period of the Railway Labor Act. But once the 60 days expired, special legislation would be required from Congress to end the strike.

On top of this is the possible threat of another nationwide rail strike by the same shopcraft unions that struck the railroads in the summer of 1967. The unions, headed by the International Association of Machinists (IAM), will be legally free to strike Dec. 31, the same day 35,000 IAM mechanics will be free to strike Eastern, United, Transworld, National and Northwest Airlines.

In both cases, however, the government could forestall a strike for 60 days under the Railway Labor Act.

The rail shopcraft unions are demanding a basic 10 per cent wage increase this time.

Demands in the airline negotiations run as high as 40 per cent for wages. Just what will happen is uncertain. The machinists union is negotiating separately with each airline.

A strike in any of the transportation areas could touch off punitive action by Congress, which labor leaders hope to avoid while they try to size up Nixon.

Republicans Show Best Gains In Governorships In 45 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans came out of the 1968 election with 31 governors, their highest total in 45 years, including the five largest and eight of the 10 biggest states.

Even when Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew resigns as governor of Maryland, to be replaced in all likelihood by a Democrat selected by the overwhelmingly Democratic legislature, the GOP will control 30 governorships for the first time since the 1952-54 period. In 1923, they held 34.

States with Republican governors represent 69 per cent of the population of the 50 states, according to the Republican Governors Association.

The big GOP prize this year was Illinois, where Richard B. Ogilvie unseated Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro, who had moved up to the governorship when Otto Kerner became a federal appeals judge in May.

Besides Texas, only New Jersey, which elects a governor in 1969, is in Democratic hands. In that state, Republicans plan a vigorous bid as Gov. Richard J. Hughes is forbidden by the state constitution from seeking a third successive four-year term.

Republicans had held a 26-24 lead over the Democrats going into the 1968 election. GOP winners this year in previously Democratic states included Russell W. Peterson, Delaware; Edgar D. Whitcomb, Indiana; Robert D. Ray, Iowa; Deane C. Davis, Vermont; Walter R. Peterson, New Hampshire and Arch A. Moore Jr., West Virginia. Only in Delaware, where Peterson defeated Gov. Charles L. Terry, was a Democratic incumbent running.

Democrats picked up two governorships when Frank Licht unseated Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island and Forrest H. Anderson defeated Gov. Tim Babcock of Montana.

Republicans retained Arizona, Jack Williams; Arkansas, Winthrop Rockefeller; New Mexico, David Cargo; South Dakota, Frank Farrar; Washington, Daniel Evans; and Wisconsin, Warren P. Knowles.

Democrats retained Kansas, Robert Docking; Missour, Warren E. Hearnes; North Dakota, William L. Guy; and Utah, Calvin L. Rampton.

Major Republican-held governorships to be contested in 1970 include New York, Nelson A. Rockefeller; California, Ronald Reagan; Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer; Ohio, James A. Rhodes; Michigan, George Romney; Massachusetts, John A. Volpe; and Floriad, Claude Krk Jr.

This Week In The World

United Press International

South Vietnamese officials softened their hard line on the Paris peace talks this week by agreeing to send an observers' mission to the talks. But America's chief allies in the Vietnam War demonstrated they had lost little of their recalcitrance.

NGUYEN THIEU
Agrees to Paris

Nguyen Van An, Saigon's No. 2 man on the observers' team, said Thursday that any peace contract on the war concluded in Paris would have to be backed by an international guarantee.

An emphasized that Saigon would walk away from the conference table if the talks produced a peace agreement on Communist terms. ja north Vietnamese diplomat said such a move would produce "unforeseen circumstances."

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu announced on Wednesday that he was sending his chief political rival, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, to "oversee and control" the delegation.

The developments came as new fighting broke out in South Vietnam and diplomats in Paris haggled over such questions as what shape the conference table would have and whether Saigon and the Viet Cong should have separate bar facilities.

Sinologists generally agreed that the timing of Communist China's move this week to resume ambassadorial talks with the United States was more important than the invitation

Around The World; Around The Clock:

In San Francisco — A search continued until the weekend for Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver, who is wanted for parole violation, amid speculation that he might have left the country.

Cleaver, author of the book "Soul on Ice," had his parole suspended last April when he was found at a house where Black Panthers were involved in a shootout with Oakland police.

New Work — Stoic through strikes and strike threats by a dozen different unions in the past three months, New Yorkers prepared to meet still another strike this weekend.

Consolidated Edison, the city's giant utilities company, was faced with a strike Sunday by 20,000 union workers who rejected the company's contract offer.

LOTS OF PIZAZZ

Detroit Answers Buyers' Whims

The emphasis on new styling and new comforts in the 1969 offerings is concentrated in the so-called medium priced field. Auto manufacturers this year spent approximately $1 billion to bring out their new cars, and by far the greatest amount was spent on the high end of the so-called low-priced field, and in the medium-priced area.

In 1967, the average selling price of a new car in the United States was $3,200, and though figures are not yet complete, indications are that in 1968, Americans spent an average $200 more per car on the new models.

But the statistics also show that the high end of the low-priced three — the full-sized Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth—took a smaller segment of the new car market.

INTERMEDIATE MODELS

The so-called intermediate field '68 models made gains. They had a lower basic price tag, but the orders for optional equipment such as bigger engines, power brakes and steering, and air conditioning, brought the average selling price up.

Here is a quick review of how automakers generally size up the various car markets in which they compete:

Low-priced compacts such as Ford Falcon, Chevrolet Corvair, Plymouth Valiant and American Rambler American which boomed in the early 1960s, have about run their course and with rising affluence of buyers, probably will stay in the relatively low volume class, with Corvair likely to be dropped after 1969.

SPORTY MODELS

Sporty and specialty cars which boomed with the introduction of the Ford Mustang in mid-1964, have about reached the saturation point and are expected to level off at about 10 per cent of the domestic market.

Intermediates — Chevelle, Fairlane, Montego, Pontiac Tempest, Olds F85 and Buick Special—forged ahead in 1967 and made further gains in 1968 until they were taking close to 30 per cent of the new car market.

The high-priced field—Cadillac, Lincoln Continental and Chrysler Imperial—has always been the most stable area in automobile sales with Cadillac taking the lion's share.

That leaves the medium-priced field and the upper range of the lower priced field as represented by the full-sized cars of each maker. The '68 models in this category sagged in market sales, but automakers are betting their new models will move well.

LEADS BATTLE

Ford has led this battle by boosting its full-sized Ford in wheelbase and restyling it, and by offering two new full-sized Mercurys, including the Mercury Marquis, with a Lincoln-Continental look.

General Motors restyled its medium-priced leaders like the Oldsmobile. Buick and Pontiac and offered a new Pontiac Grand Prix, bringing back the front end styling of the 1930s with a chrome radiator shell ala Lincoln Continental Mark III.

Chevrolet did not change the wheelbase of its full-size Chevrolet, but gave it new styling, added an inch to its length and boosted such innovations as an automatic headlight washer and rear wheel dispensers of special antiskid chemical for getting out of snowbanks in the winter. It also offered the widest line of engine and transmission options ever.

Chrysler upped its top-of-the-line Plymouth Fury to a 120-inch wheelbase and widened it by 2 inches.

TOP OF LINE

American Motors did little to its intermediate and low-priced lines, but boosted its top-of-the-line Ambassador model by 4 inches in the wheelbase and widened it to 60 inches. American Motors, the original exponent of compact economy cars, drew further from that image by offering hotter engine options for all its cars.

With its sporty AMX and Javelin models, the company also has been striving for a youth image by entering racing competition and challenging speed marks for stock cars in trials at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah.

The U.S. auto market also has seen steady growth in the lowest economy segment of the market—at the expense of Detroit.

This lowest priced area has been taken over by the small foreign imports. Experts estimate the 1968 sales of these foreign cars, most of them under-$2,000 mini-cars, will be around 950,000, and probably will spill over the one million mark in 1969.

IMPORT CHALLENGE

Combatting this trend, Ford will challenge the imports early in 1969 with a new small car built in Canada and priced to compete directly with the most popular of all imports, the German Volkswagen. This car consistently takes 50 per cent or more of the U.S. import market.

Ford's new car, a sporty type built to seat four passengers, will be made at St. Thomas, Ont., and imported duty-free into the United States under the Canadian-American tariff agreement. It probably will be priced just above the Volkswagen, which means a sticker price between $1,800 and $1,900.

General Motors is concentrating on boosting sales of its German-made Opel, distributed through Buick dealers, and has introduced a two-passenger GT model with disc brakes to attract the sports-car minded.

A MINICAR

GM's Chevrolet division also is expected to introduce a new minicar to compete directly against Volkswagen. It is expected to be about a year behind the Ford entry, in spite of assurances by Chevrolet general manager E.M. "Pete" Estes that "we do not intend to be behind ever again."

This was a reference to the two-and-a-half year lag of the division behind Ford's Mustang. The Ford product created a new field for the medium-priced sporty car and more than half a million of them were sold before Chevrolet introduced its rival Camaro.

Behind The News

Added Status Near For 'Family Doctor'

NEW YORK (UPI)—There is a stirring in the medical world to upgrade the doctor who has no formally recognized speciality—the "good old doc" of bygone days who doctored everyone in the family from grandma to baby, and for everything.

These scientific days, babies are delivered by obstetricians and thereafter pediatricians take charge.

Broken bones are set by orthopedists. The teen-ager's pimples are looked at by a dermatologist, and there is a psychiatrist to intervene soothingly in family quarrels.

HE COULD VANISH

There now is a speciality for almost every part and function of the human body. The result is that "good old doc," a jack of all medical trades but a specialist in none, has been so downgraded that fewer and fewer medical students aspire to take his place and it could be that in a few more generations he'll disappear entirely.

It's a pity, even to many medical specialists, and the stirring comes from an organized effort to upgrade him to equality with specialists by making him a specialist, too. His speciality would be family medicine, a term so new it has not yet been precisely defined in any detail, but it is what "good old doc" practiced and what today's dwindling general practitioners (G.P.'s) practice.

He would be the permanent doctor of families, caring for all their members from the cradle to the grave, assuming he outlived them, personally treating their less complicated ills, calling in appropriate specialists for the really complicated ones, giving them period checkups to keep them in the pink, getting to know them so well he'd be their helpful medical friend unfailingly on call for all life's trials.

The difference would be that he'd have a specialist's education in the generalities of family practice which today's general practitioners didn't have although those who are members of the American Academy of General Practice (AAGP) are required to provide periodic proof they're keeping up with medical progress and call themselves family doctors.

To acquire this education, the medical school graduate would take up a three-year hospital residency in family medicine and learn practical applications of pediatrics, internal medicine, obstetrics, gynecology, psychiatry and surgery but not in such depth as to qualify for any of those specialties. He'd also be exposed to psychology and other behavioral sciences.

DETAILED PROGRAM

The detailed formal program has been approved by the AAGP which with 31,000 members is second only to the American Medical Association as a medical society. It is expected to be approved by the AMA House of Delegates in Miami Beach next week and then it will come up before the AMA's Congress on Medical Education in February. The congress probably will approve, if not in 1969, then in 1970, and that will make family practice the 20th recognized medical speciality.

IN HOME WATER

Soviet Union Begins New Era In Subs, But Still Far Behind

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union stands at the beginning of a new era in its development of ballistic missile submarines. But by U.S. standards it still has far to go.

The Russians have recently built a few nuclear-powered submarines which the U.S. Navy regards as near copies of its own Polaris vessels.

So far these have operated in home waters. They have not sailed within missile range of the United States.

16 LAUNCH TUBES

The new Russian subs have 16 launch tubes each, the same as Polaris subs. Soviet ballistic missile subs already in operation have at most three launchers each, and many of these fire missiles with ranges of only a few hundred miles.

The Russians have built a new missile to go with their new submarine. Its range is said to be at least that of the early Polaris missiles. The range of the Polaris A-1, now obsolete, was 1,200 nautical miles.

The Polaris A-2 and A-3, both now in use, have ranges of 1,500 and 2,500 nautical miles respectively, according to U.S. Navy publications. The Poseidon, designed for the 1970's will go farther.

The ballistic sub programs have developed very differently in the two countries. The United States launched its first Polaris submarine, the George Washington, in 1959, and in 1967, completed its present fleet of 41 Polaris vessels, carrying a total of 656 missiles.

FLEET OF 50

The latest "Janes Fighting Ships" credits Russia with 15 nuclear-powered and 35 diesel ballistic missile subs. Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford estimates the Soviet undersea force in terms of missiles—75 to 80.

The Polaris fleet is thus a present-tense deterrent. The Soviet fleet would have to be moved into position before it could be used in nuclear war. This movement could be detected by underwater listening devices. And this would be one of the ways the U.S. would be warned of Soviet war preparations.

The United States considers its three nuclear forces—land-based missiles, manned bombers and submarines — as each capable alone of inflicting enough damage on the Soviet Union so as to constitute an independent deterrent.

Russia's submarine force still forms a very small part of its strategic power, which lies mainly in its 900 land-based missiles.

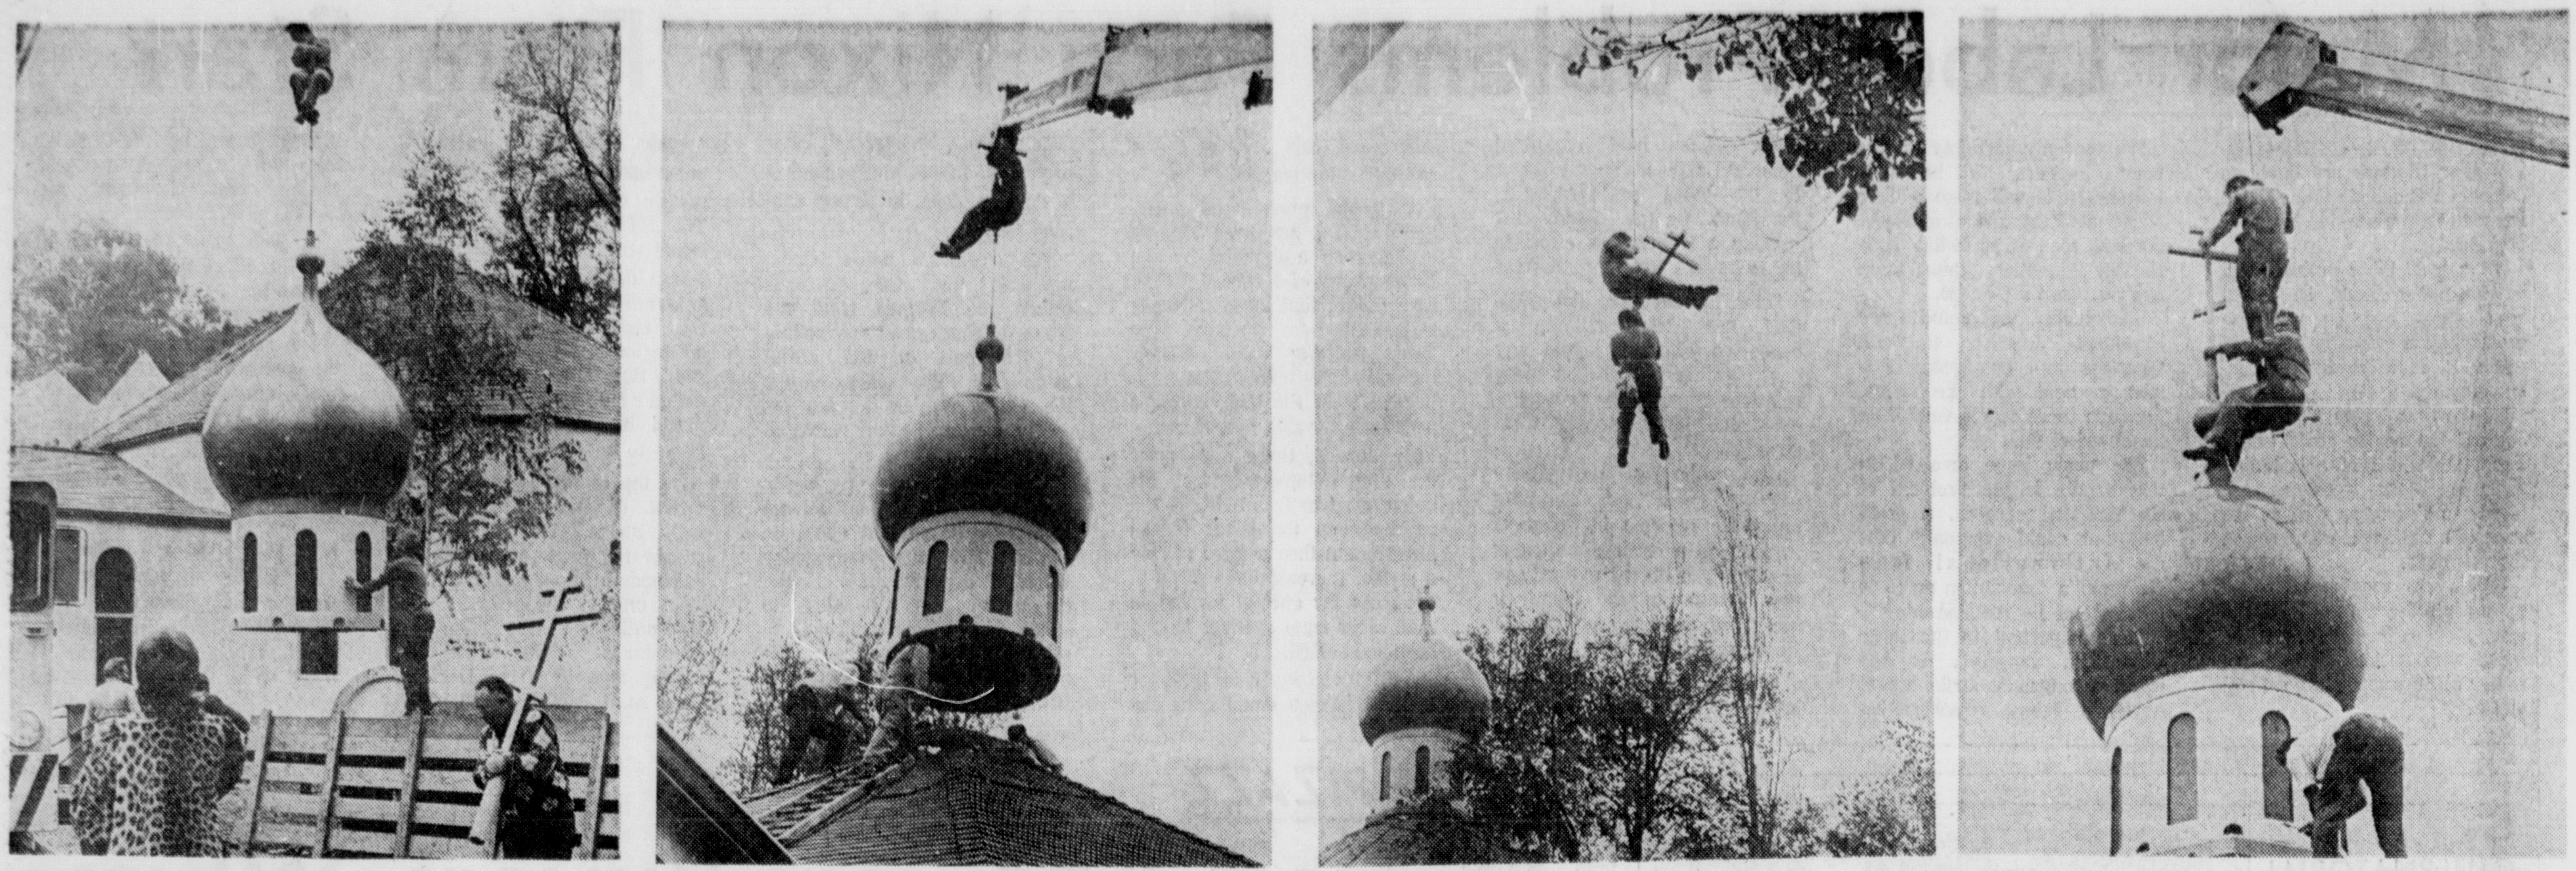
Though it has the largest overall submarine fleet in the world—360 subs of all ocean-going categories—Russia has been slow to develop the technology of far-flung submarine operations. But it is steadily working on extending the distances its subs can operate.

What is the United States doing about it? This country has already, in recent years, taken steps to reduce the take-off delay of U.S. bombers in an alert situation, since one purpose of a small submarine missile force could be to try to catch nuclear bombers on the ground.

FOR THE FUTURE

For the future, the United States has options which it could take off the shelf depending on how the Soviet threat develops. If the United States decides to install Sprint defense missiles to protect its land-based missile force, it may have to design the radars controlling the Sprints so they can look to sea as well as toward the approach routes overland.

Another U.S. option would be to put more resources into anti-submarine warfare.



NEW LANDMARK SWINGS INTO POSITION

Session Of Council Is Tomorrow

Annual meeting of the Marin County Council of Churches will be held at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Community Congregational Church of Tiburon, 145 Rock Hill Drive.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Robert Lee, professor of social ethics at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Rev. Henry Kent, pastor of St. Luke's Presbyterian Church of San Rafael and president of the council, will preside at which time brief reports of council work will be presented and the annual election of officers will be held.

Preceding the annual session a pancaker supper will be served.

A World Congress On Evangelism Slated Next Year

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—About 8,000 religious leaders from throughout North America are expected to attend a World Congress on Evangelism, to be held at the Minneapolis Auditorium Sept. 8-14, 1969.

The meeting is a U.S. counterpart of the 1966 World Congress on Evangelism, held in Berlin.

The seven-day program will focus attention on the need of America for the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The Minneapolis Congress is one of several planned since the Berlin session. An African Congress was held in July this year and one is planned in Latin America early in 1969.

CATHOLIC WOMEN

Theme Announced For Conference

"Future of Adult Religious Education in the Archdiocese of San Francisco," will be the theme for the quarterly conference of the San Francisco Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women to be held Dec. 7 at Dominican College in San Rafael.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. with a business meeting following at 9:30 a.m. At 10:30 a.m. delegates will break for discussion sessions.

Morning topics will include enrichment of the mature Christian's life, role of instructional television, approaches in the 'inner city" and parent and family centered education.

The afternoon program will be focused on four county workshops moderated by priest coordinators in the field of adult education. The directors will be Revs. Matthew Sullivan, San Francisco; Loren Dwyer, San Mateo; William McGuiness, Santa Clara, and John McMullen, Marin.

General leader will be Rev. William R. Lowery, director of adult education for the archdiocese.

Bellringers Get Rained Out

RATTERY, England (UPI)—The bells of St. Mary's never ring when it rains. Water pours through holes in the spire and soaks the 10 bellringers despite their raincoats and umbrellas. How the little parish has decided to spend $31,000 for repairs, including the spire.

"It wasn't only the bellringers who suffered," said the Rev. Herbert Knights. "Rainwater sometimes shortcircuited the electricity meters and plunged the church into darkness. It was becoming really dangerous."

Membership Loss

LONDON (AP) — British Baptist churches sustained a membership loss of 5,314 in the last year, compared with a loss of 4,334 in the previous year. Total membership is down to 284,999.

Synod Sets San Mateo Conference

Delegates of the 167 United Presbyterian churches in the Synod of the Golden Gate, which includes Marin County, will meet at San Mateo Junior College in special session on Dec. 7.

Object of the meeting will debate and map plans for a drastic reorganization of the judicatory in order for a more effective ministry, John Keith of Los Altos, synod moderator, said this week.

The new synod, covering 15 counties of northern coastal California, has been operating under provisional rules since the larger Synod of California was divided into three synods, according to geographical alignment last January. The new bylaws, if approved, will go into effect, beginning this coming January.

Among suggestions to be presented will be greater participation of laymen in policies and programs of the synod and establishment of a lay academy, staffed by experts, to inform and prepare laymen for greater church roles.

Goodness, Mercy Of God Key Thanksgiving Themes

By LOUIS CASSELS
U. P. International

"It is good to give thanks to the Lord," the Bible declares. Why?

What purpose is served when a human creature turns in gratitude to his creator?

The wrong answer is that rites of Thanksgiving are necessary to appease a touchy deity. It is an insult to God to treat him like a stingy giver who may cut off his benefactions if we fail to display proper appreciation.

It's amazing how many "religious" people seem to think of Thanksgiving as an onerous duty, to be undertaken out of prudential regard for the divine wrath which may fall upon those who neglect it.

Jesus rebuked this attitude. He reminded his disciples that even human parents, with all of their shortcomings, usually are unselfish enough to provide for their children's welfare without demanding anything—including expressions of gratitude—in return. God, he added, is infinitely more willing than the best of earthly fathers to give without strings.

Another widespread attitude views Thanksgiving as an act in which we acknowledge, gladly or grudgingly as the case may be, that there may be some good things in our lives which are not directly traceable to our own hard work and other virtues.

The pitfall in this approach is that those who take it are apt to give God credit for good luck while nursing secret grudges against him for any bad luck that befalls them. In either event, they run the risk of attributing to express divine volition events which result from the random workings of a natural order in which God has seen fit, for our soul's health, to leave room for chance, accidents, uncertainty, danger and pain, as well as undeserved prosperity, health, happiness, love, truth and beauty.

If gratitude is not an emotion to be conjured up by "counting our blessings" (and trying to forget our troubles), what is it?

The biblical answer is that true Thanksgiving—the only kind that can possibly matter a whit to God or to us—is a spontaneous response of our hearts to the conviction that God loves us. Its spirit is perfectly expressed in the ancient Jewish prayer found at the beginning of several Old Testament psalms:

"O give thanks to the Lord, for he is good;

"His steadfast love endures forever."

Another way of putting it is that Thanksgiving is a celebration of the goodness and mercy of God, on the part of one who has experienced that goodness and mercy at first hand in his own life.

It should be noted that belief in God's kindness is not confined to persons who are conspicuously endowed with material "blessings." On the contrary, it very often is the midst of pain, trouble, need or despair that a person becomes most certainly aware of the inexplicable love in whose presence all else seems unimportant.

It is indeed good to give thanks to the Lord. For Thanksgiving is the other face of faith. You can't have one without the other.

Viet War Major Convention Topic

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Vietnam War and the crisis in the cities dominated resolutions taken up at the recent convention of the American Lutheran Church.

Most vigorous deliberations dealt with a proposal asking for approval of "selective conscientious objection," under which Congress would be asked to provide alternate service for those who object to particular wars as unjust. The resolution was referred back for study.

Mariners Nip Sierra In Basketball Debut

That old Sierra College magic almost did in the College of Marin Tars again. Marin always has trouble with the Wolverines from Rocklin, and last night's 82-81 opening-game win was no exception in their basketball season opener at Kentfield.

The young Mariners led by as much as 21 points in the first half and seemed well in control of the game, only to let down and come within a rimmed shot of defeat in the last seconds.

"We've been playing 32-minute games in practice," said Marin coach Cal Riemcke, "and we played well for about that long, then let down. We let them off the hook, but won."

Frosh forward Pat Schafer scored 26 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead both teams in both categories, while 6-foot, 7-inch center Ken Kramer, guard Andre Horn, forwards Tom Seidenberg and Art Goepp and guard Joe Smith also played well.

NICE SHOOTING

Kramer showed quickness and a nice shooting touch, as well as good defensive instincts before fouling out with five minutes to go. Horn shot and passed beautifully, while Seidenberg and Goepp aided Schafer in giving the Tars a strong board game. Smith failed to score but moved the ball well. Riemcke praised all his starters, giving extra credit to Horn, Schafer and Kramer.

Horn made both ends of a two-shot foul with 45 seconds remaining, giving Marin an 82-79 lead, then grabbed the crucial rebound after Sierra's carefully set up last shot bounced off the rim with four seconds left.

EXPECTED MISTAKES

Riemcke felt that his club had played "real well for a first game. You expect mistakes with so many freshmen. We panicked a little and let down after having them on the ropes, but the kids kept their poise. I was really happy with it, although our defense didn't hustle enough. We gave them a lot of shots. You can't go undefeated without winning the first one."

Kramer and Horn each had 17 markers to follow Schafer in the scoring column, while Seidenberg had 14. Gary Forgard, one of three hot outside shooters for Sierra, hit for 15 points to pace the Wolverines.

In the preliminary game, coach Jim Halm's frosh routed Marin Catholic's varsity 91-59 behind 20 points by Daryl Ravani and 16 by Bill Hoge. Mike Murray's 12 paced the Wildcats.

Marin treks to Concord tonight to play Diablo Valley College at 8 o'clock.

Packers Favored Over S.F.

By JIM CHURCH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Green Bay Packers, down but not out, can get back on the track toward a third straight Super Bowl appearance if what is supposed to happen does tomorrow at Kezar Stadium.

The Packers, 5-5-1 in the National Football League Central Division, are favored over the San Francisco 49ers, who have an identical record in the Coastal Division.

Minnesota, leader of the Central Division at 6-5, is an underdog to the Los Angeles Rams.

Green Bay and Minnesota each have two games remaining after this weekend—Green Bay against Baltimore and Chicago, and Minnesota against the 49ers and Philadelphia.

Most of the Packers' troubles this year were caused by injuries.

'BEST SHAPE'

Coach Phil Bengston, a former 49er assistant, says "We're in the best shape of the year." He plans to start quarterback Bart Starr, who gave way to Zeke Bratkowski in last week's 27-7 victory over Washington.

"They are the same old Packers," says 49er coach Dick Nolan. "They don't try to fool you and they just play a waiting game until the opposition commits an error."

Green Bay has been stifling the opposition's passing game with excellent play by the linebackers and defensive backs, says Nolan.

Wilt Calls Win Over Celts 'Turning Point' For Lakers

BOSTON (AP) — The National Basketball Association season is only a few weeks old but Wilt Chamberlain figures the Los Angeles Lakers have passed the turning point.

"This game should be the turning point for us," Chamberlain said last night after the Lakers rallied from a 58-44 deficit and shocked the Celtics 93-92 before a crowd of 14,929, largest NBA turnout in Boston history.

"Certainly this is our most significant win so far," pro basketball's all-time top scorer said. "You can't single out anyone as a key man. Everybody got into it, including guys like Cliff Anderson and Jay Carty, who hardly had been off the bench before."

Chamberlain, who had only 14 points as he concentrated on defense and play-making, disclosed that the Lakers, who had lost two straight, held a team meeting before the game.

SUPERSTARS

"We decided that if our superstars were really superstars, we should be doing better," he said. "So everybody became a superstar after Boston got the big jump on us."

With Jerry West sidelined with flu, superstar Elgin Baylor topped the Lakers with 19 points, four more than Keith Erickson.

However, Mel Counts, onetime understudy to Boston player-coach Bill Russell, and former Providence star Johnny Egan played the key roles in the dramatic second-half comeback. Counts took control of the boards while Egan assumed charge of the attack.

"Egan can really pick up a team late in a game," Los Angeles Coach Bill van Breda Kolff said. "he just hurries, hurries, hurries. That's a way of life with him.

"And Counts was just tremendous. I see he's only credited with eight rebounds, but they were all key grabs. He had to work for all eight."

In other NBA games last night, Cincinnati dropped Detroit 122-112, Baltimore took Phoenix 124-106, San Francisco ripped Milwaukee 140-119 and Chicago dropped San Diego 110-89.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana tripped Los Angeles 108-113, Oakland ripped Kentucky 133-109 and New Orleans nipped Denver 131-128.

Oscar Robertson poured in a season-high 40 points, leading Cincinnati past Detroit. The Big O had 14 in the final period to keep the Royals in front.

Baltimore took over first place in the East by tagging Phoenix with its ninth straight defeat—longest losing streak in the NBA this season.

The Bullets scored 10-straight points to break the game open in the third period. Kevin Loughery's 23 points led Baltimore.

Bob Boozer scored 27 points and Jerry Sloan led a tough Chicago defense that carried the Bulls past San Diego. Elvin Hayes, the Rockets' rookie flash, had 28, but only four in the second half.

Clyde Lee's career-high 35 points led San Francisco past Milwaukee.

Admission for spectators is $1. Entry fee for riders is $3. It will be a fifty-mile race.

Marin Tars' Grid Fortunes Bright Again Next Season

Despite that 20-13 California junior college playoff loss in Fresno Thursday, it's been a gratifying year for College of Marin football coach Dick Read.

His Tars from Kentfield captured a share of the newly created Camino Norte Conference, rang up a 7-2 won-lost record and proved that they could play with the big boys. It was done with a team that was largely a question mark, despite a nucleus of seven tried and true veterans.

The best part of it all may be that Read can look forward to more of the same next year.

GARVIN GONE

True, wonderful Tim Garvin, the Tars' leading ground gainer and scoring wizard, will be gone from the backfield along with Gary Dinkel and alternate quarterback Val Sabuco. Going bye-bye also are linebacker and kicking specialist Bill Hickerson, defensive halfback Karl Stein, an all-leaguer in both Camino Norte and Golden Valley Conference play, ends Len Pieri, Bob Bauman and Sam Crowell, guards Trevor Benedict and Doug Guillon, tackles Rich Woodall and Tom Heacox and linebacker Rusty Poole and some other veteran sophs.

But look what's coming back.

SUPERB RUNNERS

Almost an entire backfield, including superb runners Jim Finnegan, Keith Stirling and Mike Fowler; both offensive tackles, Chris Klyce and Ron Heininger, and sub tackle Paul McCarthy; possibly quarterback Kevin Wilson; Center Dan Granucci; Guards Charlie Keppel and Don Walker; defensive guard Larry Collins; defensive ends Charlie Collins and Rick Smith and linebacker Art Langhoff; defensive halfback Jim Taylor.

It's enough to make any coach drool. For Read, it could be another banner year.

It could mean another step in the sudden upswing of College of Marin football. A real sign of growth.

Considering that this year's success came in sometimes haphazard ways, the next year looks bright indeed.

'BOYS FOUGHT'

"The boys fought all the time," Read said. "We were sometimes inconsistent, and we didn't always win big. We made mistakes but we always fought."

The switch from the Golden Valley to the Camino Norte Conference proved not to be fatal.

"I was worried about it," he said. "It's a better all-around conference. There are no patsies. After we lost that first one to West Valley, we had our work cut out. And we came back. That 42-20 win over Contra Costa was the best game we played."

The Tars, under the guidance of Read and with real progress already made, seem to be ready for bigger and better things.

COLLEGE GRID

Houston Gets A Taste Of Its Own Medicine

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

The scoreboard tally read 25-0 at halftime and the crowd began chanting: "We want 100!"

Houston's high-scoring Cougars had answered the same call less than a week earlier, but this time they hardly took notice. They couldn't afford to . . . not when the next point they scored would be their first.

Florida State, triggered by the pitch-catch combination of Bill Cappleman and Ron Sellers, beat Houston to the draw last night and whipped the Nation's No. 1 offensive team 40-20 in a prelude to the final fling of the college football season.

The 10th-ranked Cougars, who riddled Tulsa 100-6 last Saturday night after pasting Idaho 77-3 the previous weekend, didn't get their attack off the ground against the Seminoles until Cappleman and Sellers had virtually locked up the game with a first-half aerial blitz.

Cappleman wound up hitting on 25 of 34 passes for 353 yards and four touchdowns while Sellers, the all-time leader in yardage on pass receptions, caught 14 for 214 yards and one score . . . a 62-yard bomb. The victory gave the Seminoles, who meet Louisiana State in the Dec. 30 Peach Bowl, an 8-2 regular season windup.

Houston finished with a 6-2-2 mark.

Today's top games pitted Army against Navy and No. 9 Notre Dame vs. USC at Los Angeles in a nationally televised ABC doubleheader.

Alabama and Auburn tangled in another traditional season finale while fourth-ranked Georgia met Georgia Tech, No. 7 Tennessee took on Vanderbilt, Oklahoma played Oklahoma State, Baylor tackled Rice and Boston College met Holy Cross.

Arizona, gunning for the Western Athletic Conference crown, goes against arch rival Arizona State tonight at Tucson. In other arclight games, San Diego State, the nation's No. 2 small college team, closes against visiting Utah State and California completes an 11-game schedule at the University of Hawaii.

$6 Million Pro Golf Tour Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Gardner Dickinson, Jr., president of the American Professional Golfers announced today that 28 tournaments have been signed by the new organization for the 1969 season and 13 additional sponsors have requested contracts.

Including the Masters, the Open and the Bob Hope Tournament, there are 31 tournaments in which APG players are eligible to participate with purses adding up to $4,250,000 he said.

Dickinson said total purses, when the additional 13 tournaments have been signed up, will exceed $6 million. He said "the only two open dates in the first six months will be filled shortly and five additional satellite tournaments, played opposite a major tournament for those who do not qualify for the major tournament, will be announced within a few weeks."

SHARE PURSE

Under the APG rules all players who complete 72 holes will now have a share of the purse. Four per cent of the total purse has been redistributed to finance the new arrangement but first prize will not be affected.

Dickinson said in a $100,000 tournament, for example, the winner would get $20,000 but 50th place finisher would get $200. If 75 players made the cut and completed the 72 holes, each who finished below 50th would receive $160.

Rangers Recall Young Defenseman

NEW YORK (UPI)—Brad Park, a 20-year-old defenseman, has been recalled by the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League from their Buffalo farm club in the American League. Park is expected to play for the Rangers tomorrow night against the Boston Bruins.

Lee's Best Game Paces Warriors

OAKLAND (AP) — The San Francisco Warriors hope to repeat their scoring barrage against Milwaukee tonight when they meet the Bucks for the second successive night.

The Warriors blasted Milwaukee 140-119 last night on their home floor. The two teams meet tonight at the Oakland Arena.

San Francisco was led by forward Clyde Lee, a three-year National Basketball Association veteran, who had his best night with 35 points. The Bucks' top man was former Warrior Fred Hetzel, with 29 points.

The victory lifted the Warriors to 11-10 for the season, as they kept pace with Los Angeles, the NBA's Western Division leaders. The Lakers defeated Boston last night.

BOWLING NOTES

Triplicate Time On Marin's Lanes

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It was triplicate time this past week in Marin County bowling.

Joyce Larson rolled three identical 148s in the Ladies' 622 Classic at Greenbrae Lanes, Lila Giambra had a triplicate 145 series in the Sleepers League at San Rafael's Country Club Bowl, and Nancy Cramer bowled three 104s in the Thursday Late Mixed at Nave Lanes in North Marin.

Trying to make it a team affair, Gotelli's Equipment Rental came a pin shy of a triplicate in the Gutter Belles League at Greenbrae Lanes, 555-555-556.

DOWN THE LANES — Bert Tynes wasn't overjoyed with that strike she got in the eighth frame the other night in the Hi-Lo's League at Country Club Bowl — it spoiled her all-spare game. . . Bus Cramer had his high game when he racked up a 234 in the Ball and Chain League at Nave Lanes, best of the night. . . At Country Club Bowl's San Quentin Mixed League, Georgia Tsigelatos rolled her first 200 and it was right on the nose, and Carl Adams had a 246. . . It was first time over the mark for Marilyn Adams, also, in the Gutter Belles League at Greenbrae, 214, some 79 pins better than her average.

STRIKES TO SPARE —Dick White's 671 series in Country Club Bowl's 905 Classic was topped by a 279 game (seven strikes, a spare, then four more strikes). . . Charlie Bogni had a 261 game and 645 series to top the action in Country Club Bowl's 670 Scratch. . . Bill Rhodes is getting back to form, as evidenced by those 235 and 244 games in the 905 Classic. . . In the Friday Nite Leftovers League at Nave Lanes, Reba Wallace and Dick Anthony each spared 6-7 splits and Marian Calbreth (123 avg.) bowled her first 200, a 210 and wound up with a 503 series.

THIS AND THAT — Cy Davey, 158 average, rolled a 595 series and 210 game to steal some honors in the Marin County Mixed Travel League at Nave Lanes. . . Marie Hensler converted the 4-7-10 split in the Ladies 622 Classic. . . Ruth Soldavini knocked down the 6-7 split in the Early Lutheran League and Pat Costello banged out a 242 game and 630 series. . . In the Northern California Merchants League at Greenbrae Lanes, Arne Dryer rolled a 254 line, league secretary Gordon Jennings converted the 6-7-10, and John Thomas showed his fighting spirit when he converted three of the eight splits he had during the night's bowling.

Oaks Snare 10th Win In A Row

OAKLAND (AP)—There are the National Basketball Association, the American Basketball Association and the Oakland Oaks, who are in a league of their own.

The Oaks won their 10th straight ABA game last night to go 6½ games ahead of Los Angeles in the Western Division by beating Kentucky 133-109.

The victory gave the Oaks a 16-2 record, best in pro basketball.

Rick Barry scored almost at will, pumping in 45 points. The Oaks erupted for 46 points in the second period and never were in serious trouble after that.

The Oaks, ending a road trip in which they won four games in five nights, get a rest until Monday night when they entertain Dallas in the Oakland Auditorium.

Otto In Line For Discipline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle said yesterday he is considering disciplinary action against Otto Graham because the Washington coach criticized officiating during the Redskins' game with the Dallas Cowboys Thursday.

Graham, after his Redskins lost to the Cowboys 29-20, angrily denounced the officiating and said Washington was robbed by calls during the contest.

Rozelle said the fine, which could be levied against Graham for public criticism of officials, has no fixed limits.

TENNIS

Pancho Vs. Australian In Finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Pancho Gonzales could be in trouble today in his championship match against Australia's Tony Roche for the $5,000 first prize in the Madison Square Garden Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Gonzales, the Los Angeles veteran, took just 33 minutes to beat Spain's Andres Gimeno 6-1, 6-2 last night and join Roche in the finals. Roche beat countryman Rod Laver 6-4, 6-3 in the other semifinal.

Roche's victory over Laver reversed the result of their only previous meeting when Laver won the Wimbledon Open title in straight sets. Roche also lost in straight sets to Gonzales at Forest Hills in their only previous meeting, so Pancho had better watch out.

LAVER VS. GIMENO

Laver and Gimeno meet for third place before Roche and Gonzales battle for the title. First place is worth $5,000, second place $3,000, third $1,800 and fourth $1,400.

In doubles, Gonzales and Ken Rosewall of Australia will face Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis for the title.

Gonzales and Rosewall beat Roche and John Newcombe of Australia 9-7, 6-1 and Ralston and Buchholz beat Laver and Gimeno 11-9, 6-3.

Rams Battle Minnesota In Big Game

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Minnesota Vikings, staggered by Baltimore and floored by the flu in the past week, hope to make a full recovery in the National Football League championship scramble tomorrow.

But they're liable to find Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen and the rest of the Los Angeles Rams' medicine men a bit too much to swallow.

Of 20 Minnesota players stricken with the flu before and after last Sunday's 21-9 loss to Baltimore, five regulars were reported still ailing yesterday as Coach Bud Grant prepped the Vikings for their date with the rugged Rams.

But Grant expected all hands to be available when the two clubs put their division title hopes on the line at Minneapolis-St. Paul. And, if the Vikings' boss has his way, neither the Rams nor the virus will bug his team.

"It's not going to help afterward to say, 'Next time if everyone is in top shape things will be different,'" he said. "We think we can do certain things to beat this team, just as we feel we can beat every team we play."

The Vikings, 6-5, lead fast-closing Green Bay by one-half game in the Central Division struggle. The Rams, 9-1-1, trail the Colts by one-half length in the Coastal derby.

FAINT HOPES

The New York Giants try to keep their faint pennant hopes alive against Cleveland's streaking Century leaders. The Giants are 2½ games behind Capitol front-runner Dallas with three to play. Green Bay visits San Francisco, Baltimore entertains Atlanta, St. Louis is at Pittsburgh and Chicago at New Orleans.

American Football League matchups are Miami at New York, Cincinnati at Boston and San Diego at Denver.

Grant was optimistic yesterday, although defensive ends Carl Eller and Jim Marshall, receiver Gene Washington, running back Jim Lindsay and return specialist Bobby Bryant sat out the Vikings' practice session with the flu.

"Right now, everybody should be able to play," the coach said. "Of course, there might be somebody else new with flu Sunday."

The Vikings' front four of Eller, Marshall, Gary Larsen and Alan Page has thrown opposing quarterbacks for losses 40 times to share the league lead with the Rams' defensive quarter. The Vikes have a 7-5-1 edge in the series and Los Angeles is winless in six previous trips to Minnesota.

Kicking specialists Fred Cox of Minnesota and Bruce Gossett of the Rams could be the key men if the clubs' powerful defensive units continue to click. Cox booted field goals of 43, 36 and 31 yards against the Colts last week while Gossett beat the Giants 24-21 with a 36-yarder in the closing seconds.

Knockout String Ends For Amaya

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Roberto Amaya, 148, had his string of 14 straight knockouts broken last night but ran his record to 15-1 with a unanimous 10-round decision over Manny Lugo, 144, of Los Angeles.

The Buenos Aires fighter scored the fight's only knockdown when he sent Lugo sprawling with a pair of hooks.

All Eyes On UCLA, Purdue In College Cage Opener

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most of the West Coast's major college schools begin their 1968-69 basketball seasons tonight but the eyes of the college hoop world will be on UCLA's Bruins, out to win a third successive national crown.

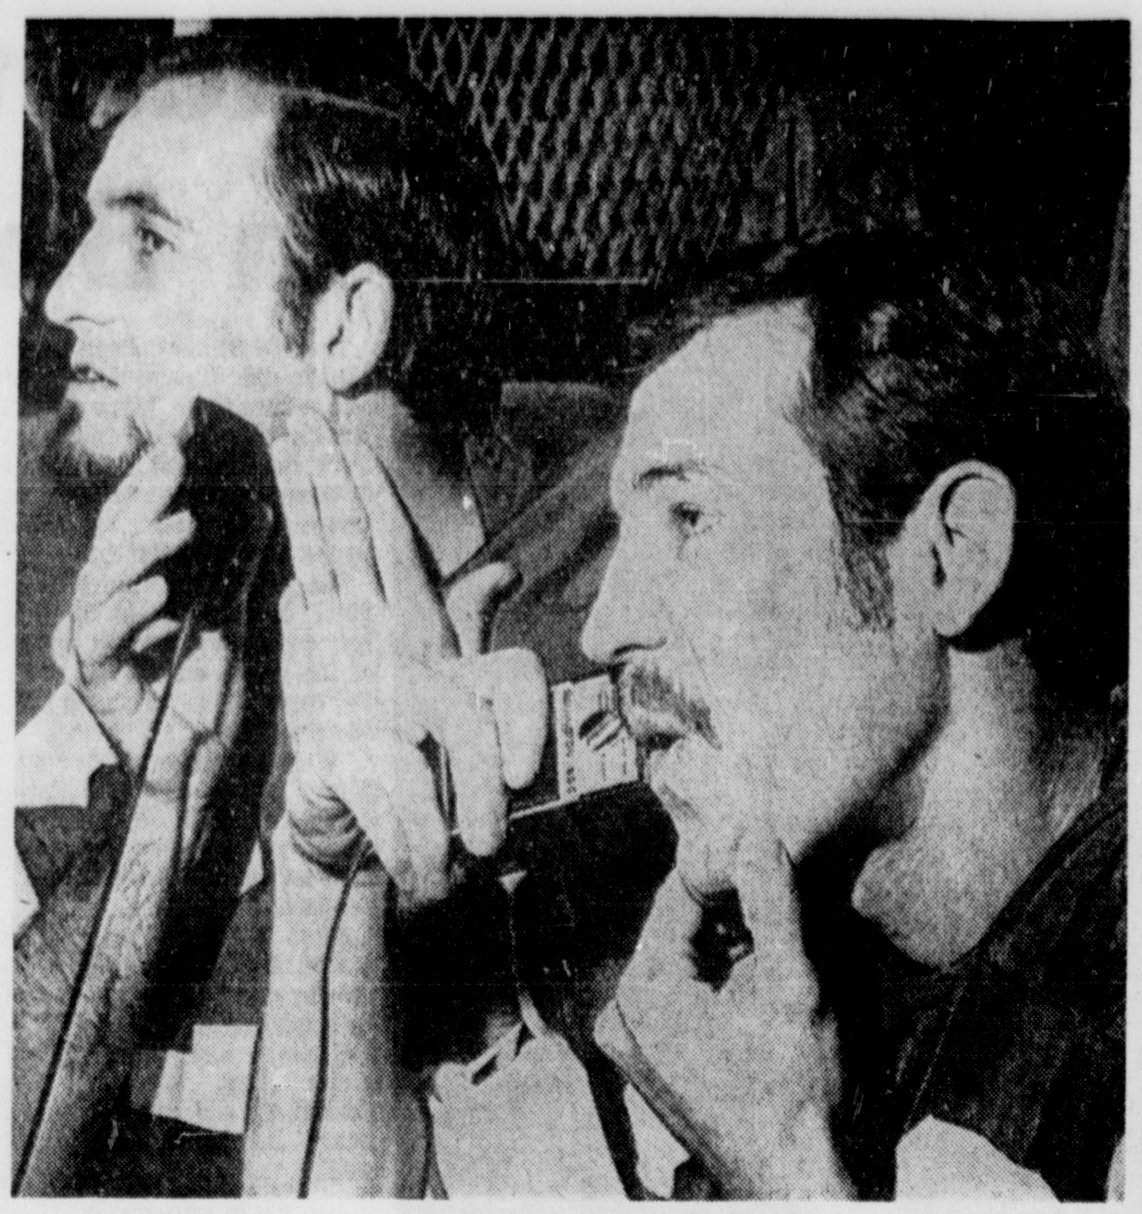
The Bruins beat Purdue 73-71 when the teams opened last season at Lafayette, Ind.

Oregon is at Utah, Oregon State meets the University of San Francisco, Southern California is at Brigham Young, Washington State plays host to Idaho and Stanford entertains Northwestern to round out the nonconference games of Pacific-8 teams.

West Coast Athletic Conference teams in action are Pacific, which plays host to Hayward State; St. Mary's, which entertains Fresno State; Pepperdine, which is at Lamar Tech; Loyola's Lions, who host Occidental; UC Santa Barbara's Gauchos, who play host to Cal Poly San Luis Obispo; and Santa Clara, which is home to Nevada.

Other coast teams opening their season include Portland, at home to San Francisco State, and Sacramento State, which plays at Seattle.

Pacific-8 member California plays a game with its alumni and Washington opens its schedule Dec. 6 at Utah. San Jose State hosts Fresno State on Monday night.



NO PENALTY FOR CLIPPING

A promise is a promise and these New York Jets players whisk away a six-week growth of beard in locker room at Shea Stadium, N.Y. The bearded jet setters vowed they would not touch a hair on their chinny-chin-chins until their team clinched the Eastern Division title of the American Football League. They did just that Thursday and the first shavers on the team were defensive back Bake Turner (left) and flanker back Jim Hudson. (UPI Telephoto)

Year's Best Crowd Sees Seals Triumph

OAKLAND (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens are thinking twice about forcing star goalie Gump Worsley to ride airplanes.

Worsley, who stayed home because he didn't want to make the flight west, was sorely missed last night as the Oakland Seals edged the first-place Canadiens of the National Hockey League East Division, 5-4.

The Seals moved into a second-place tie with Los Angeles in the West Division.

With Rogatien Vachon in the nets for Montreal, the Seals, cheered on by 8,501, their largest home crowd of the season, took a 2-1 lead on goals by Mike Laughton and Ted Hampson, while Jean Beliveau scored for Montreal.

Jacque Lemarie tied it at 11:43 but three minutes later a shot by Oakland's George Swarbrick hit Vachon under the left eye, putting him out of the game.

Tony Esposito, recently called up from the minors, took over, and the Seals fired six shots at him. Two, by Hampson and Bill Hicke, went in to give the Seals a 4-2 advantage.

Hicke opened the third period scoring to make it 5-2 for Oakland before Montreal rallied with Beliveau scoring again and Gilles Tremblay tallying at 18:23 of the third period.

The Seals opened a five-game home stand and play Pittsburgh tomorrow night.

Montreal plays Chicago tomorrow night.

Andretti's Record Wins '300' Pole

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Mario Andretti, the veteran race driver from Nazareth, Pa., still has 300 miles to drive but already he can see the pot of gold waiting for him.

Andretti qualified in record time for the pole position yesterday as drivers earned berths for the Rex Mays 300, final race on the U.S. Auto Club tour. Mario, favored to win the race, also owns a 308-point lead in the standings for top driver in the country.

Even a fifth-place in the Rex Mays would give Andretti the title. The race has a total prize of $85,000, second richest on the USAC circuit.

Mario's speed in earning the pole position yesterday was 118.331 miles an hour, topping the course record of 117.735 set last year by Costa Mesa driver Dan Gurney.

NEAR RECORD

Gurney also broke his old record with a speed of 118.286 and was second yesterday. A. J. Foyt of Houston was third in 116.781.

Bobby Unser, second to Andretti in national driver standings, was fourth in qualifying at a speed of 115.157. His brother Al was next at 114.649. Both Unsers are from Albuquerque, N.M.

It's the last go-round for the turbine cars since rule changes have made running them almost impractical. But Art Pollard, in an Andy Granatelli Special, was next in qualifying at 114.565. Jerry Titus was next at 114.523 and Joe Leonard, in the only other turbine entered, followed at 114.313.

The European style of qualifying was used in which a driver can make as many circuits of the 2.6-mile road course as he likes and his best single lap is counted.

The race is scheduled to start at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

Novato Wrestlers Win 37th Straight

Novato High School's wrestling team won its 37th straight dual meet Thursday at Novato but it didn't come easy.

The Hornets defeated John F. Kennedy High School of Fremont, 27-26, coming from a 13-0 deficit to win, with Tom Zechlin's pin at 191 pounds clinching the victory.

Redwood, San Rafael Grab Wins

Redwood of Larkspur and San Rafael chalked up non-league basketball victories last night, both of them winning impressively.

The Giants ran their record to 2-0 in getting help from unexpected quarters in a 58-49 win over Lincoln of San Francisco at Redwood. San Rafael bounced back from an opening-game loss to whip Napa, 61-38, at Napa.

The Giants got only 14 points out of the duo of Jerry Piro and Roger Smith, who had combined for 42 points against Santa Rosa, but Jim Peters and Skip Corsini picked up the slack with Peters getting 16 points and Corsini 14.

Redwood trailed after a quarter, 17-11 but, with Peters and Corsini getting six points each, they bombed Lincoln, 21-6, in the second period to coast on in.

Forrest Pedlar came off the bench to lead rebounders with 11 carroms.

San Rafael dominated the boards against Napa, outrebounding the losers, 64-37 and got great work out of Roger Thomas (15 points and 17 rebounds) and Ray Taylor (12 points, 14 rebounds).

Bill Sleezer had 11 rebounds and guard Rich Nave contributed nine assists as the Bulldogs broke away from a fairly close 30-21 halftime edge.

The Redwood junior varsity, with Steve Root scoring 14 points, downed the Lincoln jayvees, 37-31 and the San Rafael jayvees lost to the Napa junior varsity, 52-48, as Tom Grover scored 16 points.

Hockey Fans Can Easily Point Out Bad Players

OAKLAND—There's no other sport in which a performer's glaring errors are most consistently noticed than hockey.

In football there's too much bunching to spot booboos. Basketball, too, is getting to be an overcrowded game with all those big fellows toiling on such a little piece of wood. True, you can see a baseball player commit a boot afield or strike out on a bad pitch. But the baseballer is not as consistently active as the hockey player.

This is part of hockey's charm, for the few who have shown any interest in discovering it over here. The fan automatically knows — even if his knowledge of the game is limited — who's performing well and who's lousy.

TAKE THE Billy Harris case. He used to play for the Oakland Seals. He won't anymore — ever, or at least as long as Frank Selke is general manager.

Harris is 33, not altogether old for pro hockey, and a handsome, quietly pleasant fellow. He had performed with some measure of capability for Toronto for nine seasons before joining the Seals in their first National Hockey League campaign a year ago.

But he never seemed to get started last season. Midway through the year, he walked away and was suspended. The surface story was that Harris didn't enjoy serving under general manager-coach Bert Olmstead. As who did?

BILLY RETURNED to the club and performed rather well during the stretch. He figured highly in the Seals' plans for this year. He had to — for Oakland traded away another center, Charlie Burns, who'd been loved by the Bay Area's tiny hockey legion for several minor league years.

New coach Fred Glover probably would better suit Harris. All might be well; Harris might score 20 or so goals. After all, he'd slapped in a dozen in the fragmented 1967-68 season.

IT DIDN'T work out. As a playmaker, Harris wasn't — even when moved to the same line with an ex-teammate, the very competent Gary Jarrett.

The fans, and the Seal management, didn't resent Harris' lack of scoring punch, however, as much as his inability to mix it up. Harris appeared to deign any physical contact. If Harris had the puck and an opponent neared, Harris soon didn't have the puck.

WHICH WAS strange, for Billy had served the Maple Leafs on a checking line — the threesome that's sent on the ice for defensive purposes.

Call it shell shock or what you will, Billy Harris simply had no desire to check. He was no longer a hockey player (and he'd scored zero goals this year).

IT'S MUCH like a baserunner showing no willingness to take out the pivotman on a double play — or a defensive end not rushing the passer for fear he'll get bumped en route to the backfield.

But Harris' fault was more exposed. During his turn on the ice — every four or five minutes — he would be witnessed falling back. Fans had little patience, and in their catcalls were quite cruel.

SO SELKE cut Billy Harris — a fellow who'd played in more than 650 big league hockey games.

Oakland needs hitters. As long as they're losing, they must at least lose aggressively. That's all Selke or anyone else can ask. And Billy Harris wasn't answering.

Wall Street Again Nears The Legendary 'Dow 1,000'

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market the past week surged close to the legendary goal of "Dow 1,000."

As stocks staged their fourth straight weekly gain, the closely watched Dow Jones industrial average advanced 18.02 to 985.08, a new high for the year.

The mood in Wall Street was similar to that which prevailed Feb. 9, 1966, when the Dow closed at its historic peak of 995.15, and virtually everyone took it as a foregone conclusion that the average would reach 1,000—but it never did.

A gain such as the past week's would, of course, put the Dow industrials up to and beyond the 1,000 mark. Some analysts believed the momentum of the market was such that this would be attained the coming week.

Others, recalling past occasions with both the Dow and individual stocks when they raced toward a specific goal, believed that profit taking would take over just before the average actually touched the 1,000 mark. Even these, however, thought that the 1,000 level would be reached in a reasonable time.

The stock market advanced on every one of the past week's four trading days, with the market closed for Thanksgiving.

Factors in the rise included renewed confidence in the market because of its ability to withstand the tremors of the European monetary crisis; an influx of European funds into American securities because of the uncertainty surrounding investments tied in with European currencies; and the October rise in the consumer price index, which was the biggest in six years and therefore a further argument for investing in stocks as a hedge against inflation.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

Wise Use Of 'Redheads' Gives The Opposition A Major Upset

From early boyhood the male of the species is warned about redheads. The warning is not specific: you're just told to watch out for them. We don't have enough space to clear up the whole situation, but today's hand will give the anxious male some idea of how dangerous redheads can be.

IN DUMMY

Declarer won the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts and wondered how he would eventually play the clubs. Would he lead low to the dummy's king, or would he let the jack of clubs ride for a finesse?

Hoping to get some information before committing himself, South led dummy's king of diamonds at the second trick. East and West both played low.

Declarer next led the jack of diamonds, and East again played low. South did likewise, and dummy's jack won the trick.

Abandoning the diamonds, South led a spade to the king and led the jack of clubs for a finesse. It was a good guess, but South had overlooked the redheads.

BRILLIANT RETURN

East won with the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of diamonds and called on his redhead for help by returning the queen of hearts. Declarer had to win in dummy and couldn't get back to his hand to repeat the club finesse. Down one.

South lost his game because of the ferocious attack by the queen of hearts, but he could have saved himself by using his own redhead more wisely. When he led the jack of diamonds from dummy declarer should have played the queen from his own hand.

DIAMOND ENTRY

This would give him a diamond entry to his hand so that he could lead the jack of clubs for a finesse. Later, he could return to his hand with a spade to repeat the trump finesse.

Now that you know how dangerous redheads can be, watch out for them.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠—Q 10 5 3
♥—Q 7 5 3 2
♦—A 6 3
♣—A. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three hearts.

Even though you have five trumps and a singleton you should not jump to four hearts. The hand is much too strong for this kind of shutout bid. If partner wants to make a slam try of any kind you will co-operate with great enthusiasm.

Towed Away

LONDON (UPI) — Police towed away a London Transport double-decker bus after it was found illegally parked.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Nov. 30, the 335th day of 1968 with 31 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1782 preliminary peace articles ending the Revolutionary War were signed in Paris.

In 1874 Sir Winston Churchill was born. He twice was Britain's prime minister.

In 1939 the Russo-Finnish War started after the Soviet Union failed to obtain territorial concessions from Finland.

In 1954 Prime Minister Daniel Malan of the Union of South Africa resigned and was replaced by Johannes Strydom.

A thought for the day: Cervantes said, "There is no sauce in the world like hunger."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

U.S. Auditors Hit Medi-Cal Fee Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government auditors say almost $900,000 was paid in California for Medi-Cal claims not eligible under a federal-state medical program for the needy.

In the report, made public yesterday, auditors for the Health, Education and Welfare Department said the money was paid by California Physicians Service, one of three groups judging validity of claims under the California Medical Assistance Program.

The auditors said CPS paid claims totaling $879,000 for crippled children's diagnostic services which HEW rules do not authorize.

They recommend the State of California refund the federal share of the funds—$448,500.

The auditors had other criticisms of operations of CPS, which between March 1, 1966, and Dec. 31, 1967, handled about $323 million in claims to beneficiaries which the state declared eligible for the program.

CPS took too long to pay claims of doctors and dentists, poorly coordinated functions with county medical foundations and failed to set up effective controls to prevent duplicate payments, the auditors said.

They said CPS also needed new precautions against Medi-Cal recipients overusing dangerous drugs or narcotics.

HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen discussed the audit report last Tuesday with Spencer Williams, administrator of the California Health and Welfare Agency, and urged him to eliminate the deficiencies in the program quickly.

Cohen also announced fact-finding teams will be sent into other states to see if more safeguards are needed to prevent overextensions of medical services and payments.

Hurt In Crash

David Boese, 20, of 388 Riviera Circle, Larkspur, was treated for a cut forehead at 5:39 a.m. today at Marin General Hospital following a car accident in Larkspur. Police said the accident was still under investigation and would give no details this morning.

Egypt Getting Soviet Latest Model MIGs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Soviet Union has already started delivering to Egypt 200 MIG jet fighter planes capable of carrying nuclear weapons, a Moroccan newspaper said today.

A Rabat Radio broadcast said the planes were MIG23s which not only could carry nuclear devices but were more maneuverable than the 50 F4 Phantom jets the United States is selling to Israel.

The Moroccan Istiqlal Party newspaper Opinion quoted "authorized sources" from Cairo in saying the decision to furnish Egypt with the MIGs was reached after the United States decided to sell the Phantoms to the Israelis.

Opinion said Egyptian pilots will soon leave for training in the new jets in the Soviet Union.

The reports quoted sources close to the Egyptian government as saying acquisition of the MIGs was "only a security measure and a deterrent to Israeli use of atomic weapons in an eventual attack."

The governor of the Egyptian port of Alexandria today ordered schools kept closed to forestall student demonstrations which have disrupted the nation for a week.

The government issued no figures but some reports said as many as 16 persons were killed and hundreds arrested in the Alexandria rioting Monday.

Egypt's five universities in Cairo, Alexandria and Assiut also were closed.

One newspaper blamed the student demonstrations directly on Israel.

Israel has failed in it "war of diplomacy" and in battles across the Suez Canal and so "it resorted to hitting the home fronts of Arab nations," the newspaper said.

In Amman a Jordanian communique said Jordanian and Israeli troops battled for 20 minutes with machine guns near the Sea of Galilee yesterday. No casualties were reported.

In Tel Aviv Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol accused Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser yesterday of "heading for war on a one-way road."

But Eshkol said Israel's interest is "coexistence with the Arabs."

Court Invades Bedroom Of Reputed Crime King

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Stafano Magaddino, 77, reputed head of syndicate crime in the Buffalo-Niagara Falls-Toronto areas, has been arraigned on charges of international racketeering and conspiracy.

Magaddino was arraigned in his home yesterday, four days after FBI agents stopped his automobile here and told him of an arrest warrant pending against him.

Magaddino's arraignment was put off on a day-to-day basis because testimony of doctors recently in a civil action indicated he suffered serious heart disease.

U.S. Commissioner Edmund F. Maxwell went to the Magaddino home in nearby Lewiston and held the arraignment in a bedroom.

A doctor stood by Magaddino's side and a cylinder of oxygen was next to the bed, but it was not used.

Magaddino was not required to plead. He confined his comments during the eight-minute proceeding to, "Tell my lawyer," as Maxwell explained his rights and the charges.

Earlier, the Internal Revenue Service announced $3.6 million in income tax liens had been placed against Magaddino, some of his kin and an aide.

Some Tips On Buying Your Tree

When you are selecting your Christmas tree, check first for freshness.

Run your hands through the needles or shake the tree. If the needles drop off easily, your dry tree will be a fire hazard even before you get it home.

Part of the holiday fun can be selecting a tree.

Both short-needled junipers, spruces and firs and long-needled pines are common and satisfactory. A good tree will hold its needles, have an attractive color, bushy appearance, conical symmetrical shape, pleasing fragrance and strong branches to support ornaments and gifts. Make sure it was cut recently.

Avoid hemlock because the needles won't stay long.

Your tree will be more fire resistant if you keep it moist. Stand it in a bucket of water outdoors or in a cool place inside, protected from the sun and drying winds and heat. Then you bring it indoors, make a fresh slanting cut across the trunk at least an inch above the old cut. This will permit the tree to absorb more water.

Place the tree in a container of water or in a tree stand that has a water reservoir. A tree in a warm room will absorb up to a quart of water a day.

Keep the tree away from the fireplace, radiators, air ducts or TV sets that would dry the needles.

There's Wealth Of Gadgets For Science-Minded

For those on a budget, there is a wealth of scientific toys, gadgets and even valuable laboratory accessories available for $5 or under.

One firm has 24 scale models of "terrible lizards and monstrous mammals" plus many other items of interest, including a chemical predictor guide to over 30,000 chemical reactions. Another firm has a sliding device giving 900 facts concerning the chemical elements, including symbols, weight, density, number, valences, color and melting and boiling points, in Centigrade.

There is a stopwatch and a pocket alarm timer, both of interest to experimenters when time is a factor. There is a solid fuel blowtorch and a small, powerful electric motor. There is a booklet and kit for a model WAC Corporal rocket or for something that cannot be thrown away, a plastic boomerang.

Budding astronomers might start with a lunar map or a star atlas, or an interesting viewer showing star and planet locations, to be compared with the real thing.

Tales From Marin's Past

Writer-Artist Glen Dines Fills A Void In History

By DON KEOWN

THREE BOOKS in one season is the enviable record established by Fairfax author-illustrator Glen Dines, his latest fall, 1968, book being "Kit Carson's Black Deed and Other True Stories from Marin's Lively Past."

Glen Dines moved to Marin 15 years ago, and immediately became involved in a fascination with the county's history.

But, he discovered, pursuing that interest and satisfying his thirst for historical information was no easy matter.

There was a sparsity of printed data on the county's past.

"IN FACT," he says, "there has been no real collective history of Marin County published since 1880. And even that volume, while an excellent reference source, was more a collection of autobiographies with a historical preface."

As a successful writer and illustrator of books, although largely for juniors, it was natural that Dines should take it upon himself to help fill the void.

The culmination of that project was long in coming. But come it has, with the publication of his "Kit Carson's Black Deed and Other True Stories from Marin's Lively Past."

APPROPRIATELY, the softcover book, priced at $2.95, was printed in Marin County, by the Academy Press of Nicasio.

"It's the first time I've been author, illustrator, editor, designer and publisher, all at the same time," Dines says.

He might have added: "And researcher as well."

Gathering material for the book took the author-artist to many places, from empty grasslands where he hunted the foundations of old buildings long since vanished, to the polished tables of the Bancroft Library with its treasury of records of the past.

HE SPENT hours pouring over yellowed records in the Marin County recorder's office, and more hours examining old editions of the Independent-Journal's predecessor newspapers.

He scanned maps, and more maps, from the earliest sketch of the yet-to-be-named San Francisco Bay to the most recent U.S. Geological Survey quadrangles.

The Marin Historical Society Museum and its staff proved helpful, as did the staffs of the San Rafael Public Library and the Marin County Library. Of special interest was the latter's California Collection, begun years ago by Librarian Virginia Keating.

BUT DINES admits that he has barely scratched the surface. What he hopes is that his small book will generate sufficient interest to perhaps inspire a truly definitive and scholarly history of Marin County.

"There is a real need for this," he says. "Historically speaking, we Marinites need not take a backseat to anyone."

He points out that the first European, the Portuguese navigator Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, to cast eyes on Marin shores 436 years ago pre-dated such better-known events as the settlement of Jamestown and the voyage of the Mayflower.

AND TAKING note of children "who each morning, on the Olema Road just a few steps from where I work, await their school bus," he asks:

"Wouldn't they be interested to learn that stagecoaches once rattled past that very spot where they are standing? That huge ox-pulled wagons once lumbered by, loaded heavily with newly-cut redwood logs, to help build the mushrooming gold rush town called San Francisco?"

"KIT CARSON'S Black Deed and Other True Stories from Marin's Lively Past" contains, in addition to the title tale, such other chapters from the county's past as Sir Francis Drake's landing, the Showalter - Piercy duel, the prison break of 1862, etc. It is intended as a sampling of Marin's colorful past, not as a comprehensive history, to whet more than to satisfy the appetite.

It is Dines' third published book this fall. Appearing a few weeks ago were "Gilly and the Whicharoo," a fantasy picture book for small children, and "Golden Cities, Golden Ships," about the Spanish explorers of California, and intended for older youngsters.

Currently he is researching the mystery surrounding the discovery of Sir Francis Drake's famous Plate of Brass in Marin, with a future book in mind.

HE LIVES in Fairfax with his wife, Rickie, and two children, Lisa, 13, and Woody, 10, and works there in his home.

"Writing and illustrating Marin history has been fun," Dines says, "because much of the reference material is literally underfoot."

Then he smiles: "But I'm sure my children are glad it's over. Now, at least, their ride to school doesn't mean a lengthy lecture from dad on early transportation in Marin County."

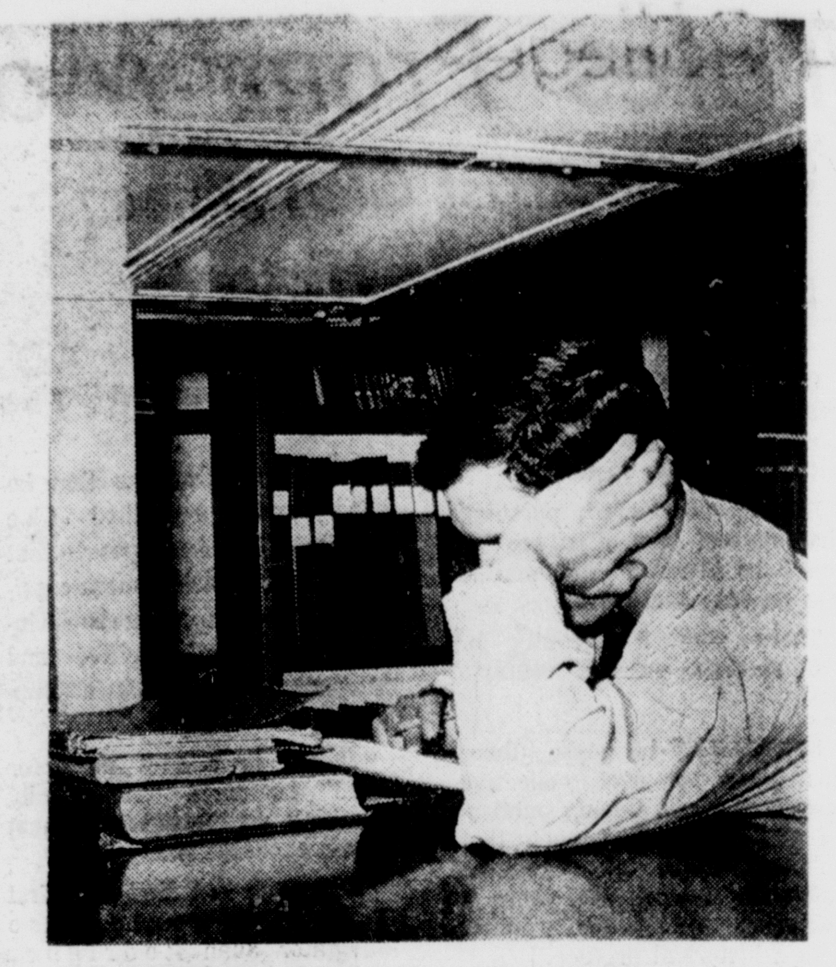
A PROGRAM OF changing the College of Marin book classifications from the Dewey Decimal to the Library of Congress system is in progress at the library, with clerks including Pamela Meek doing the work.



JOHN EASTMAN of Inverness, who must await his ride home after classes, puts that late-afternoon time to good use in the library when the reading room is less crowded.

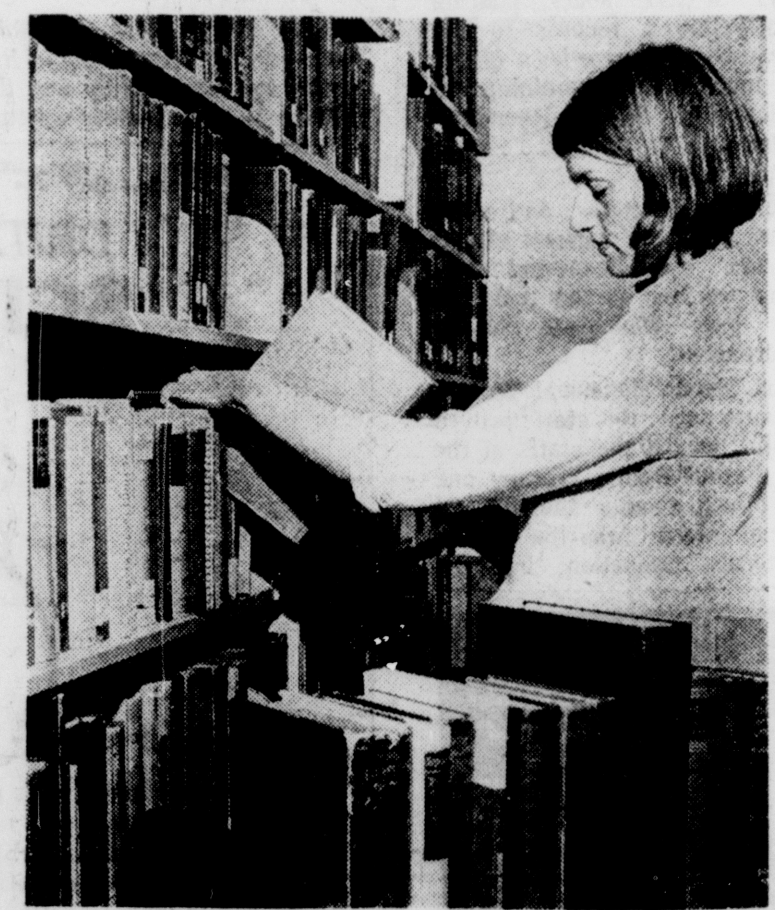
150 LBS

BOOKS FROM the processing department in the basement move to the first and second floors by a lift that is inadequate for the demand upon its services. Clerk Bernice Ayres is receiving the books to cart them to the shelves.



BECAUSE THE shelves of the cramped College of Marin library can accommodate only so many volumes, other books must be stored. Terry Angelides of Larkspur is one of 10 students employed in the library under a federal work-study plan.

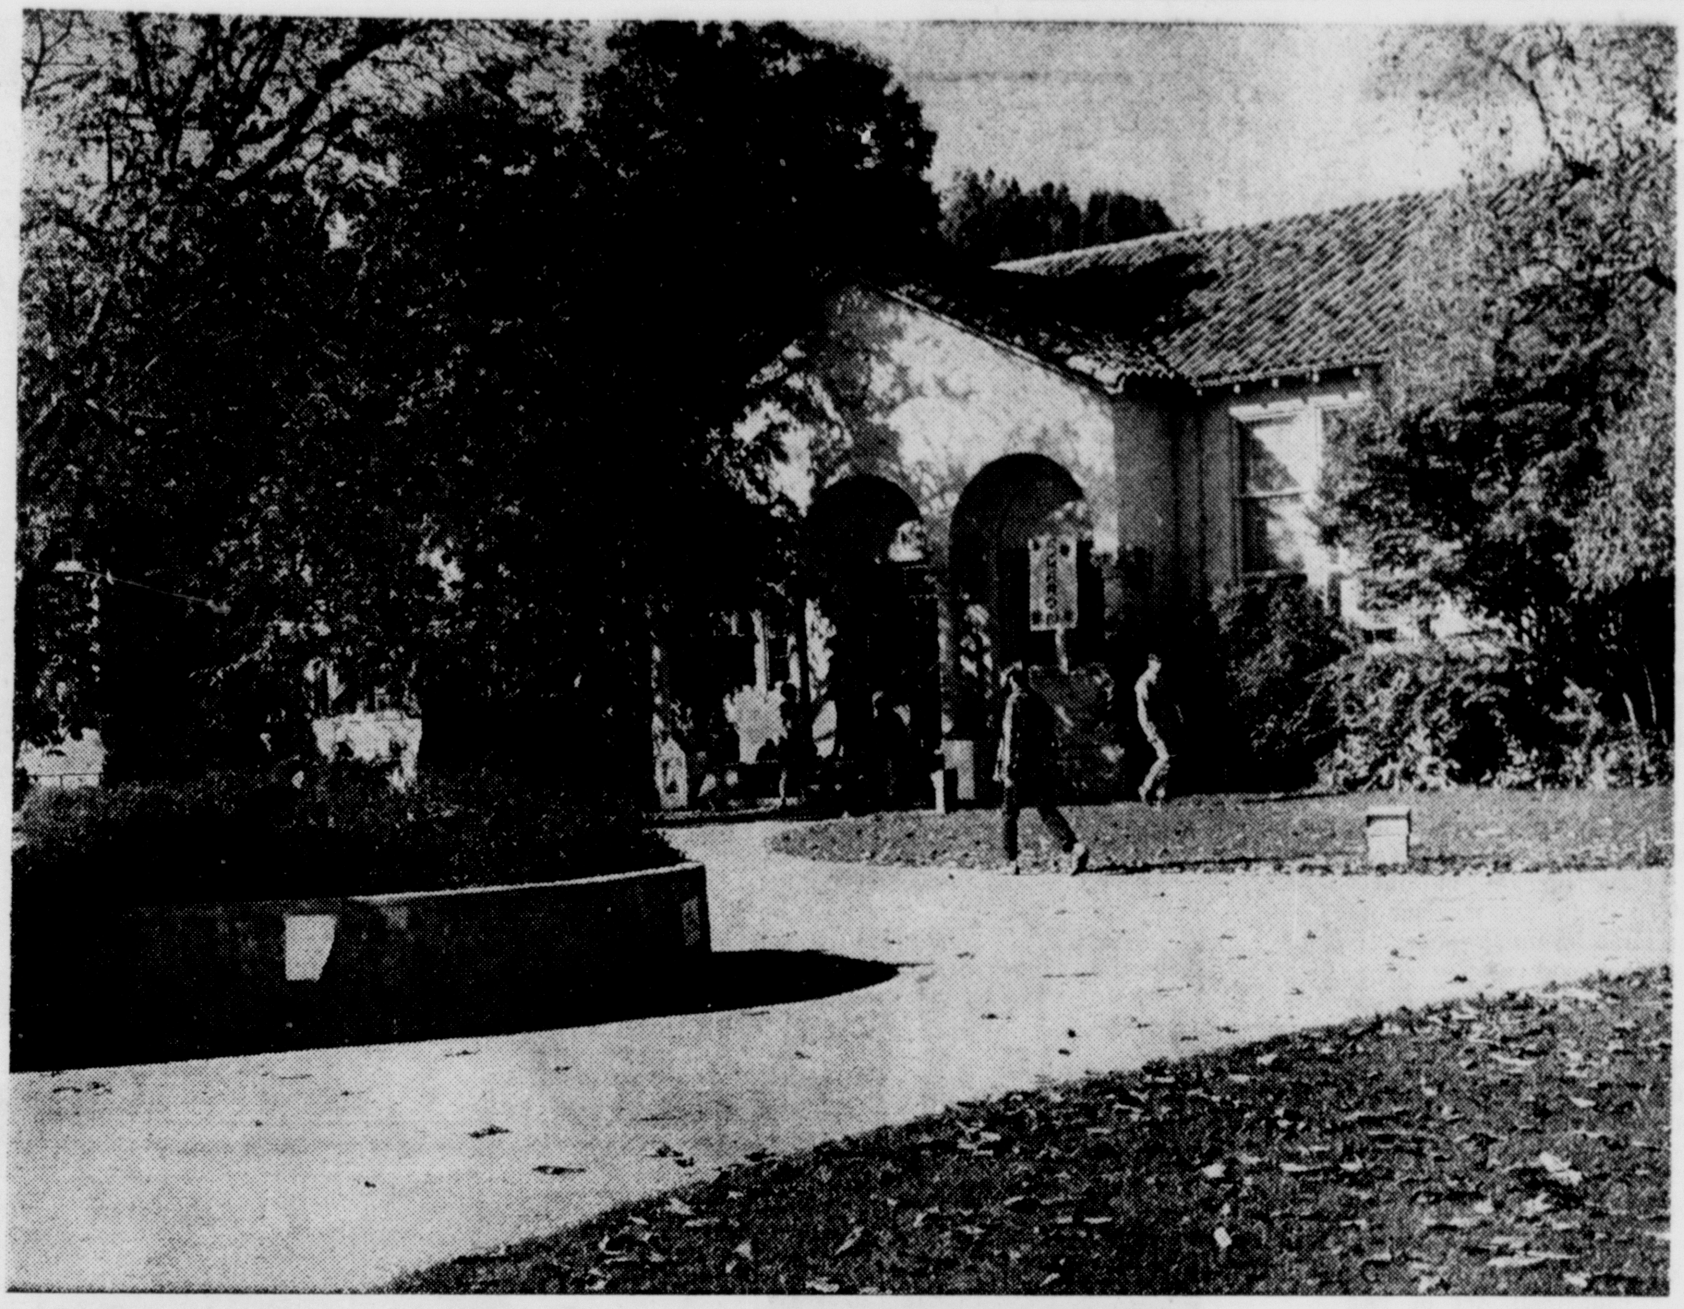
A College And Its Library Services



THE LIBRARY BUILDING on the College of Marin campus in Kentfield, named for Ada Fusselman, for 33 years a district trustee, is located in the central mall area. Because the site frequently floods, the audio-visual department in the library basement is being moved to remodeled quarters in the fine arts complex. But the main floors will still bulge with books and offices.

"I was a student here 20 years ago and the library was inadequate then."

Thus did a former Marin Junior College District trustee spotlight a problem that has long plagued the College of Marin.

The remark came during an open meeting at which students of the college had urged an earlier construction date for a proposed new library center on the Kentfield campus.

The new center, whose preliminary concept plan has received the approval of the district's trustees, is on the construction schedule for a 1972 completion.

MEANWHILE, the college will be struggling along in its present Fusselman Library Building.

Just how inadequate are those facilities?

Calvin Kurzman, library director, answered bluntly in a recent report to the office of the college president, that the present building is "grossly inadequate in terms of design, as well as space, to meet the needs of today's enrollment."

BUT KURZMAN also adds that a college library service has more aspects than just a building. Of even greater importance, he says, is the quality of the collection and the efficiency of the staff that serves the students.

"Imaginative librarians can accomplish a great deal, even in a poor facility," Kurzman declares.

Kurzman, who became director in July of 1967, claims that substantial improvements in library service have been made in recent years, although he also admits that "much remains to be done."

"OUR GOALS are clearly stated," he says. "We are now developing the framework for what we feel will eventually be one of California's outstanding community college libraries."

Four full-time librarians and one half-time librarian now serve the 147 full-time and 128 part-time instructors and the student body of 5,422 credit and 3,399 non-credit students. In ad-

AT PEAK PERIODS, the College of Marin library main reading room is packed with students. So collegians in need of a quiet place to read or to do research often choose a Sunday afternoon or an evening for that work. The library is staffed 65 hours a week.

dition, there are eight clerks.

In the face of the sharp enrollment growth, the staff has almost doubled in the last six years.

WITH KURZMAN'S arrival, an internal reorganization program was launched. He set up distinct departments for circulation, book processing, acquisitions and periodicals, naming department heads for each and giving them clearly defined lines of authority and responsibility. The librarians are part of the faculty, and meet regularly with the director to discuss and formulate policy.

For years the library struggled along with a meager $5,000 annual book budget which was spent before the semester had hardly begun. This year the library requested $40,000. It was pared to $30,000 by the budget and finance committee of the college.

A windfall in the form of a $5,000 federal grant under the Higher Education Act of 1965 boosted the budget and is enabling the library to acquire many long needed reference works.

The college's library collection count as of July 1, 1968, was less then 36,000 volumes. Of these, 4,500 were bound volumes of periodicals.

Many obsolete books and periodicals remain on the shelves, but Kurzman estimates that as many as 2,000 will be discarded this academic year.

Following an Association of College and Research Libraries yardstick, the College of Marin Library should have a minimum of 48,000 volumes exclusive of duplicates, Kurzman says. Acquisitions Librarian Charles Mastin predicts this minimum figure can be reached within the next three years.

HE ESTIMATES that some 4,300 books will be added to the collection this year, and he is hoping for enough money next year to acquire 6,000 volumes.

Mastin says the added budgetary support the library had received the last two or three years has helped a good deal to improve the collection.

Some 500 periodicals are now received in the library. Students can read regular issues of the Wall Street Journal, Paris Match, Africa Report, American Cities, as well as Newsweek, Time, Good Housekeeping or The Saturday Review. As recent as 1963, only 285 journals were received.

BACK NUMBERS of most periodicals are retained either in bound volumes or on microfilm.

The library subscribes to 12 newspapers and has past years of the New York Times on microfilm. Tapes of lectures, public events, dramatic performances and poetry readings are available for listening.

A librarian is available at the reference desk 65 hours each week to instruct students in the use of the library and to aid them in their search for information.

According to Gwen Schultz, reference librarian, there has been a substantial increase in the quality, as well as the quantity, of questions.

"REFERENCE librarians are essentially teachers," she says. "Some students need only basic instruction in the use of the card catalog. Others have complex research problems involving hours of work.

"Librarianship is helping the student learn to use the library on his own."

Last year the library began converting the book collection from the Dewey Decimal to the Library of Congress system of call numbers. Catalog Librarian John Eschelbach directed a similar conversion at the University of California at Santa Barbara and enthusistically endorses it as being more suitable for a college library. He says it will prove to be more efficient and economical. By October 10,000 volumes had the new call numbers.

"WE'RE DISCARDING many older volumes and correcting errors in the card catalog as we go along," Eschelbach says. "We hope to move into the new library with an up-to-date collection and an accurate catalog."

What else can be done to improve the library?

"Books are our most important product, and we will keep plugging for the budget needed to develop our collection," Kurzman says.

However, he adds, the building has only about one-third the seats needed for student use at peak traffic periods. "If we continue to serve the maximum number of students on the campus, a larger, more modern facility is essential," Kruzman feels.

THAT NEW building is still more than three years in the offing, but with trustee approval of the preliminary concept, it has become something more concrete than a dream.

As proposed the new center would accommodate eventually some 75,000 volumes in its racks and on its shelves. It would provide space for a data processing center, for instructional services such as the audio-visual programs, for the college bookstore now housed separately from the library, for a warehouse storage area, for a possible television center with control rooms, as well as for increased reading room, stock room and office space.

The proposed center would provide some 51,200 square feet of usable floor space.

Kurzman shares with the protesting college students their impatience and anxiety for the new facility.

But until 1972 rolls around, he and his staff will be hard at work trying to prove his maxim that a library system is something more than just a building, and that superior service can to a great extent offset the handicap of inferior facilities.

"Can Crayon Stains Be Removed From My Son's Shirt?"

Many a schoolboy's pocket carries crayons into the hot washer and dryer. Then the melted crayon messes up the whole load. Crayon stain is difficult to remove. If the spots are few, they can be treated like candle wax. Place the stained area between clean white blotters and apply a hot iron. If you don't have blotters, use an old white terry towel. Shift to clean areas as the wax is absorbed. When no more color transfers to the blotter, sponge the area with drycleaning fluid. If many articles have been affected turn the job over to your drycleaner. In fact, you might give him the job from the very beginning. He is a professional in handling such problems.

NURSERY SCHOOL

COVER PHOTO

THE OUTDOOR play equipment at the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School has special joy and meaning for the small boys and girls because it has been built through the years by their own daddies. Here Susan Mahl enjoys a slide down the fireman's pole from the climbing tower built by Del Smith, while Dino Colombo prepares to scale the ladder for his turn. The boat beneath the tower was constructed by Lew Levinson, and was decorated with animals designed and painted by Dottie Thurman. (Independent-Journal photos by Roger Bockrath)

And, indeed, the fathers of tots attending the school have produced almost all of the imaginative and durable playground equipment pieces that make the area a favorite fun spot with the pre-school boys and girls.

It all began 14 years ago when the dense blackberry bushes and other shrubbery were cleared away from behind the school. What emerged was an area ideal for playyard purposes, with only equipment needed to complete the picture.

AS WITH most cooperative nursery school programs, funds were limited and needed elsewhere.

So the solution reached was that handyman fathers would build the needed equipment, gradually, over a period of years filling the area with the swings, slides and climbing apparatus that so appeal to energetic youngsters.

Now, 14 years later, the fathers are still building.

LATEST ADDITION and a source of special pride and joy to the school is the treehouse built by Ragnvald Bernt, complete to a fireman's pole and slide, patterned after a piece of playground equipment he saw at the University of California Child Study Center in Berkeley.

To make the deck completely safe, Bernt fenced it with a wire mesh.

Some of the outdoor equipment installed in earlier years includes the climbing box built by San Anselmo Fire Chief Frank Sousa, and an airplane contributed by Noel Rosen.

ONE OF THE first pieces of equipment to be put into use by

THE SWINGS are traditionally a favorite of children at any playground. This sturdy metal set-up, crafted for the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School in the workshop of one of the fathers, is never lacking for customers when there are pre-school-age tots around.

FROM THE HEIGHT of the treehouse complete with fireman's pole and slide that he built for the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School playground, Ragnvald Bernt looks down with son "Arbie," while Susan Mahl, Gina Delpino and Dino Colombo go on with their fun.

CLIMBING IS an excellent way for pre-school boys and girls to work off their excess energies and to build their young muscles. The father-built equipment on the playground of the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School offers the pupils there ample opportunity for ascending and descending ladders. The children here are Gina Delpino and Susan Mahl on top, Dino Colombo below.

the lively nursery school set was a cable car built by Elmer Jones. It remains a popular attraction today.

A brace from which was originally suspended a marine cargo net for the children to toss around in today holds two rubber tires for swinging.

A metal swing set crafted in a father's shop often has a waiting line of boys and girls eager for their turn.

PIECE BY piece, the San Anselmo school has assembled an assortment of imaginative play equipment that would be the envy of many a school or park that has made expensive outlays of public or private funds to assemble its fun devices.

And, says Elizabeth Rall, former director of the school who has watched the playground grow through the years, the fact that the swings and climbers were built by the daddies seems to give them a special meaning and attraction for the little nursery schoolers.

ARBIE BERNT relaxes on one of the two rubber tire swings that now hang from a brace that once held a marine cargo net in which the nursery school children frolicked.

ON A SATURDAY, little Susan Mahl has the entire San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School playyard with its fascinating equipment all to herself. But during the week, it will be filled with running, shouting, active boys and girls.

IT MAY LOOK to you like these young aviators aren't far off the ground. But don't you believe it. Their young imaginations have taken Susan Mahl, Gina Delpino, Arbie Bernt and Dino Colombo high into the skies in the aircraft built by Noel Rosen.

WINTER IN JAPAN is for seeing as well as skiing, and one of the unforgettable sights occurs in February when Sapporo on the island of Hokkaido stages its annual Snow Festival featuring spectacular snow sculptures such as this statue of Aisenmyo-o, the God of Love.

Japan Draws Winter Trade

Sportsmen And Sightseers Alike Enjoy Its Attractions

You don't have to be a skier or a winter sports buff to enjoy a winter trip to Japan. But if you are, you will find plenty of superb resorts and slopes with all the amenities.

It wasn't by chance that Hokkaido, the northernmost principal island of Japan, was selected as the site of the 1972 Winter Olympics. Its extremely mountainous terrain, abundant snowfall, modern facilities and easy accessibility — only an hour by air from Tokyo — have turned the island's capital city, Sapporo, into the newest international mecca for winter sports.

THE BIG EVENT of the year that is attracting more and more North American visitors along with a million and a quarter Japanese is the Sapporo Snow Festival, Feb. 1 to 4.

This gala event centers around massive sculptures artistically carved from snow piled high along Sapporo's broad central boulevard. The effect is an Oriental Disneyland of immense castles and storybook characters competing for honors with giant Buddhas and images from Shinto mythology. The highlight of the festival is the awarding of prizes for the most imaginative and artistic creations.

Anyone planning a visit to Sapporo Snow Festival should arrive a day or two early to watch the sculptors who sometimes dangle from the top of a fire engine ladder to put finishing touches to their towering masterpieces.

SERIOUS SKIERS will find plenty of action on the slopes around Sapporo such as Teine Olympia, Tokachidake and Otaru Tenguyama. All are no more than an hour's bus ride from the center of the city.

But don't expect to see pagoda-shaped chalets.

Japanese ski resorts closely resemble those in good ski country anywhere. There are hotels of the most modern design with sundecks, intricate networks of chair-lifts and shops that both sell and rent a complete line of ski equipment.

It may seem strange at first to hear Japanese spoken on the slopes, but listen carefully and you will recognize "schuss" (shusu); "gelande" (gerende); "track" (torakku); "bogen" (bogen), and "mugel" (moguru).

THE LAST RUN of the day is followed by a bracing cup of hot sake and that splendid Japanese ritual, a natural hot spring bath. And for those aching muscles, a massage par excellence.

Now you're ready for the world of "apure ski" (apres ski) where you will no doubt find yourself dancing the frug or monkey until the wee hours.

But Japan in the winter appeals to more than just the sporting set. To the inveterate sightseer, the "off season" devoid of crowds greatly enhances visits to the popular tourist spots — the temples, shrines, castles and museums that proliferate throughout the land.

Winter in Japan also abounds with festivals.

FEUDAL DAYS are recreated when the streets of Nara are filled by elaborately costumed celebrants of "On Matsuri." The celebration takes place Dec. 16 and 17.

At the same ancient capital there is a dramatic hill-burning ceremony Jan. 15 to commemorate the settlement of an age-old dispute over a boundary line between two major temples.

New Year all over Japan is a three-day gala with all the girls in their classic finery. Jan. 6 honors Tokyo's colorful firemen who perform acrobatic stunts at the top of bamboo ladders.

Early in February is Setsubun when everyone, according to custom, drives out the devils and assures good fortune by throwing about beans.

IF WARMER CLIMES are a preference, a trip to the southern-most island of Kyushu offers a variety of spas and resorts. You can stay at one of the many Japanese-style inns or "ryokans" and let yourself be shamelessly pampered by traditional Japanese service.

Not the least of Japan's new winter attractions is the cost. Round trip air fares were reduced as of Nov. 1, and many hotels and restaurants in Japan lower prices after the peak summer travel season.

To Tip Or Not To Tip?

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

To tip or not to tip? And if you should, how much?

These are questions which often confuse Americans traveling at home and abroad.

Actually there are no hard and fast rules. There are some countries where tipping is officially frowned upon, such as Iceland, Tahiti and Soviet Russia. And there are others where "service charges" must be added to hotel and other bills.

TIPPING PRACTICES not only differ between nations but often between city and country too. For instance, tips or service charges usually run higher at resort hotels than those in the city.

And, even where service charges have been included, hotel, restaurant and other service personnel still expect to have their palms crossed with a little extra silver.

A good rule of thumb overseas is to tip as you do at home. Find out what the local customs are and make sure to use the local currency. Overtipping can be as embarrassing as undertipping.

IF YOU WOULD usually tip 25 cents at home, make it a shilling (12 cents) in Britain, one franc (20 cents) in France, one Deutschemark (25 cents) in West Germany, and 100 lire (16 cents) in Italy.

When in doubt, be a sport and overtip. Many of the people who serve you in the United States and elsewhere depend on gratuities for the major share of their income.

Some resorts in the United States and most hotels overseas add a service charge to your bill, ranging from 10 to 25 per cent, for the staff. But doormen, porters and bellboys still expect a tip when services are performed. And then it is customary abroad to leave a little additional for the concierge if he has been extra helpful.

NEVER TIP desk clerks or other front office personnel.

Restaurants also may add the service charge, but even when they do waiters and other help expect you to leave extra silver on the table. If no service charge is included—take time to check the bill—tip at least 15 per cent, not including taxes. Don't forget to tip the table captain and the wine steward a dollar or so in the better restaurants and night clubs if they have been of service.

The maitre d' doesn't have to be tipped unless he has provided you with one of the better tables or some other extra service.

IN TOKYO, AT last reports, you do not have to tip taxicab drivers, believe it or not. But it is a "must" most everywhere else, including the United States.

Drivers expect at least 20 cents for short hauls and between 10 and 20 per cent of the fare on long jaunts. When there is a meter, make sure he throws the flag. If there is no meter or fixed rate, set the fare before you get into the cab.

Never tip airline employes, such as stewardesses, flight crews or tickets and sales personnel. If no fixed charge is levied, tip airport skycaps and railroad red caps at least 50 cents per bag. Don't tip conductors but you should give a couple of dollars to the pullman porter on long train trips.

THE HOLLAND-America Line recently abolished all tipping on its passenger ships. But otherwise, figure on at least $1 per day per person for the room steward and a similar sum for your waiter on cruises. Tip bartenders, deck stewards, bellhops, and others when services are rendered.

It is customary to wait until the eve of the last day of the cruise to tip the room steward and dining room waiter. Ship officers are never tipped. But even when the signs say "no tipping allowed," tip no less than 50 cents per bag to the dockworker who loads or unloads your luggage.

Ashore, barbers and hairdressers generally are tipped no less than 10 per cent—more in the fancier establishments — and washroom attendants and the girl who watches your hat and coat expect at least 25 cents to $1.

IN PUBLIC washrooms in Europe, give a few small coins to the old man or woman who cleans up and does other chores.

Theater ushers in the United States generally don't accept tips—but in most of Europe they do. A few small coins also will be enough.

NEW ENGLAND enjoys a well-deserved reputation as a vacation mecca for tourists during the autumn season, what with its brisk weather and its brilliant show of fall foliage. But after the fall months have flown and winter has begun to make itself felt, the region still has many attractions for the traveler. The sightseeing takes on a special freshness with much of the countryside blanketed in white snow. The scene above shows the covered bridge at Jackson, N.H., so covered. And the region offers a wealth of winter sports activity at some of America's finest resorts. At left, some enthusiasts enjoy a break to soak up the sunshine at Vermont's Mount Snow while they assume temporarily the roles of spectators. And always, 12 months of the year, New England rewards its visitors with the rich pageantry of historical landmarks and ceremony.

A Merry Christmas In Ireland

Hotels in Ireland offer three-day Christmas packages that are filled with food, festivities and unique entertainment.

For an average all-inclusive cost of from $10 to $14 per day guests, can make merry from lunchtime Dec. 24 to noon on Dec. 27, and it is still not too late to make the arrangements for this year's holidays.

All the hotels schedule a "get together" cocktail reception on Christmas Eve. After the guests have changed their status and become friends, the programmed fun begins with candlelight dinners, dances, caroling and treasure hunts.

Among the special events that tourists favor are "Pipe In The Pudding," which takes place on Christmas Day at about 9:15 p.m. Like a culinary master piece, savory plum pudding blazing with burning brandy is brought into the dining room with a musical fanfare.

The Christmas Follies have a daring charm while "high teas" are social occasions sweetened by extra cakes and goodies.

If you like your songs tuneful and brief there are mini-ballad recitals and if you can't resist the races your hotel will prepare a basket lunch for you to take to the Leopardstown track on St. Stephen's Day, Dec. 26.

With this steady pace of activities continuing throughout the three day holiday, one hotel thoughtfully serves breakfast in bed with Alka-Seltzers.

A free booklet listing hotel programs is available by writing to the Irish Tourist Board, 590 Fifth Avenue, New York City, 10036.

An Ideal Workshop For Social Study

MAN'S RISE TO CIVILIZATION AS SHOWN BY THE INDIANS OF NORTH AMERICA FROM PRIMEVAL TIMES TO THE COMING OF THE INDUSTRIAL STATE by Peter Farb; Dutton, 332 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This work unquestionably must boast the year's longest title.

It is November's Book of the Month Club selection, and has been hailed in some quarters as "the answer" to Desmond Morris' "The Naked Ape" which I reviewed early this year.

Author Farb is curator of American Indian cultures in the Riverside Museum of New York City. He has written several popular books on North American natural regions and history.

In "Man's Rise, etc., etc.," he contends that the history of the Amerindian is an ideal workshop for the study of Western society as it is today. Its complexities and stresses may be traced to the primitive days, he holds, and what's happening is all explainable — even unto the hippies and the conspicious consumption of USA '68.

Farb's book is tri-sectional; it opens with a review of present-day anthropological knowledge of the evolution of society from simple bands through the dazzling total state of the Aztecs. The second section deals more with the archaeological history of man in the Western Hemisphere — how he arrived from Asia, and what he did once here.

The final section deals with "Societies under Stress," detailing the impact of the invasion by so-called civilized peoples into the Amerindian's territory.

A major premise of Farb's work is that man's societies do evolve through time, environmental pressures and mixtures with other societies; he explains that this is disputed by some other anthropology and social science thinkers.

"Most social scientists do not believe that cultures are haphazard. But they disagree considerably about the patterns they detect. One commonly heard explanation is based on the biology of man. It seeks to interpret human culture on the basis of man's brain, adrenal glands, muscular responses and nervous system. But the fallacy in logic here is that behavior common to all people cannot explain why particular kinds of behavior exist among some groups . . . but not among others," Farb writes.

He cites as examples that a devout Jew will retain his hat and shoes in his temple, a Christian will wear shoes but not hat in church and a Moslem will wear headgear but not shoes.

Another explanation of culture patterns Farb rejects is the psychological one advocated by Ruth Benedict — for instance that Pueblo Indians have a placid culture because they are non-aggressive people.

"No one denies that human personality is shaped by the culture into which it is born. But no one has ever demonstrated the reverse . . ." according to Farb.

And, too:

"Darwin was assuredly in error when he declared flatly that 'there is no fundamental difference between man and the higher animals in their mental facilities.' The truth is that man is different from the apes; he belongs to a separate category of being altogether. The social life of a non-human is governed by its anatomy and physiology, whereas society is ruled by culture," Farb declares.

". . . Economic teamwork is non-existent among the non-human primates . . . apes and monkeys are utterly incapable of having any such conceptions" as soul, death, or myth or religion, Farb flatly asserts.

My reaction on reading these and many of Farb's other passages is to wonder how on the one hand he can base the whole concept of cultural development on evolution — and reject Darwin — how he can apparently contradict "The Naked Ape" almost as if reciting other readers' reactions to it without going directly to the source — and to wonder if some of the passages on the derivation of Marxism don't hint at an arch-conservative political outlook rare among scientists.

On the other hand, his descriptions of Amerindian cultures are fascinating; his comparisons of the death throes of some tribes in the face of onrushing "civilization" and today's protest movements reach home beautifully.

His final complaint is that modern man has spent millions digging up relics of the Amerindian past, yet but a pittance to preserve what cultures do survive. Here, I wish he had been more constructive, perhaps rising above a mere "do something" plea.

In summing up: "Man's Rise, etc." is an exciting review of what Amerindian culture was and has become. As an answer to "The Naked Ape," Wooldridge's "Mechanical Man" and other recent concepts of man's derivation, I found it of less value.

Those Who Stayed Operational

BLACK PROFILES by George R. Metcalf; McGraw-Hill, 341 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Joanne Pratt.

"Maybe I get low sometimes but then I tell myself, 'You got to stay operational'." So James Meredith talked himself into finishing his bleak year at the University of Mississippi.

One way or another, Meredith — and the other exceptional black men and women George Metcalf tells about — have managed to stay operational in 20th Century white America. (At first glance, fantastic old Harriet Tubman, Underground Railroad agent and Civil War scout, seems out of place in a 20th Century list. But, though born back about 1820, she lived on until 1913.

Only one of the group gave over to final despair. Scholarly Dr. William E. B. Du Bois, when he was in his 90s and living in Africa, said, "In my own country, for nearly half a century, I have been nothing but a 'nigger'."

Du Bois, however, along with Martin Luther King Jr., Roy Wilkins, Thurgood Marshall, Jackie Robinson, Harriet Tubman, Medgar Wiley Evers, James H. Meredith, Rosa Parks, Edward W. Brooke and Whitney Moore Young Jr., offered most of his life effort to our century's struggle against inequality and white intransigence.

Mostly, each has moved along with terribly slow, patient steps, within the framework of an NAACP or SCLC or National Urban League plan. Sometimes, as Rosa Parks did, one leaped ahead with an intuitively simple, right act: "My shoulder ached, I had had a bad day at work. I was tired from sewing all day, and all of a sudden everything was just too much. It didn't seem logical . . . I had paid the same fare. I stayed where I was."

During the time that other black passengers, too, refused to ride, ever again, in segregated bus seats, the Montgomery, Ala., bus company lost $750,000. It cost the United States more than five million dollars to make sure that James Meredith stayed alive long enough to enter and graduate from "Ole Miss." Three years ago, after Watts, Whitney Young estimated that riots had already cost us 175 million dollars in property damages.

George Metcalf, the white authoh of "Black Profiles," served for 14 years as a state senator in New York. In 1965 he decided not to run for re-election so he could spend more time writing and working for racial justice. He is president of the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing.

His research is thorough, his biographies fresh and perceptive, and his book well worth reading.

"PEANUTS" books continue to pour onto the market, their popularity unabated, one of the latest being "The Parable of Peanuts" (Harper & Row, $4.95 clothbound, $1.95 paperback) by Robert L. Again Short, a theology scholar, analyzes the basic Christian lessons to be learned from the antics and observations of Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Lucy, Linus and company. Even if you prefer to read the strip for fun only, there are still some 250 choice Charles Schulz cartoons to entertain you.

Along with this excellent new guide, Sunset's Lane Magazine and Book Co. has updated its time-proven "How to Grow Bulbs," concentrating upon the 10 most popular flower bulbs of the West, but also providing some information upon the less familiar ones.

Lessons From The Election That Shirley Lost

THE SINKING OF THE LOLLIPOP by Rodney G. Minott; Diablo, 257 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Paul E. Peterzell.

Shirley Temple Black got most of the publicity in last year's special congressional election in San Mateo County, but it was Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey Jr. who got the most of what really counted — votes.

This fascinating account of their battle, by one of McCloskey's campaign aides, would make a fine election handbook anywhere in California—especially in suburban counties such as Marin. To win, campaign as McCloskey did. To lose, follow Mrs. Black's example.

"In the past," Minott says, "middle-class suburbia has been able to buy time and space and flee the problems of urban America," but suburbanites now have "discovered that there is no place to which they may run. The war, smog, water pollution, overcrowded schools, racial problems, inadequate transportation, archaic forms of local government, excessive taxation, all the problems confronting an affluent America have pursued them to their semi-rural doorsteps."

McCloskey won, he finds, because more than 3,000 "citizens concerned about such problems drifted together into an 'apartisan' coalition" in the best maverick Progressive tradition

McCloskey, says his admiring supporter, "was the first of the new political heroes,' predating even Eugene McCarthy's lonely fight."

Minott treats Mrs. Black with somewhat less warmth, noting her "every statement was another tin fish right into the Good Ship Lollipop."

"What the public remembered from the 30s was a person of sweetness and light," writes Minott of her, but "what was presented during the campaign was an austere matron given to moralistic homilies of the 'mother knows best' variety."

Most of all, he says, "it was her obvious upper middle-class isolation from the realities of life that was irritating . . . Condescensian and patronization dripped from her as she stated that his (black man) plight and problems were analogous to the upbringing of unruly children."

"Now I know how the game is played," Minott quotes Mrs. Black when she conceded defeat. Her concession telegram to McCloskey was equally gracious. In its entirety, it read: "Congratulations on your victory."

Minott also details how the candidate counts more with the California voter than his party. McCloskey, responding to Gov. Ronald Reagan's criticism of his refusal to endorse Max Rafferty, said "I put several things ahead of party loyalty — one is honesty and one is forthrightness. You can be an honorable Republican, yet not a slave to the party."

McCloskey's political philosophy sounds like a sure formula for success in California. However, it also sounds a bit like Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel's approach to partisan politics.

THE BOOK PAGES

Prejudice And Nostalgia In The Fanciful World Of Sports

By DON KEOWN

THE BLACK ATHLETE: A SHAMEFUL STORY by Jack Olsen; Time-Life, 221 pages, $4.95.

YESTERDAY IN SPORT by Sports Illustrated editors; Time-Life, 192 pages, $5.95.

Most white Americans were shocked and a good many infuriated when two young Negro winners of medals at the recent Olympic Games in Mexico City chose the awards presentation ceremony for a demonstration of protest of the mistreatment of their race in their home country.

"Why athletes?" the question ran. Surely they, of all black people, were being accorded a fair deal in the USA.

Jack Olsen gives them some blunt answers in his book, "The Black Athlete: A Shameful Story," which he subtitles tellingly "The Myth of Integration in American Sport."

This is not a harangue by some black militant seeking to agitate. Olsen, a white with a solid background as a newspaper and magazine writer of politics, crime and sports, is now senior editor of Sports Illustrated magazine, part of the Time-Life empire that is anything but unfriendly toward the establishment.

Olsen is, therefore, all the more impressive as he writes with real anger and scorn of the hypocrisy rampant in American athletics, and he absolutely devastates the pose sports has struck as a leader in the struggle for equality.

No, Olsen tells us, the black athlete has not received a fair deal, either in our colleges or on our professional teams. To prove the point, he names names and cites examples — many, many of them — in which sports have adhered to the long cherished belief of white society that somehow the Negro is inferior and should be relegated to secondary status.

The Negro athlete recruited by a college is likely to arrive woefully unprepared and severely handicapped, the product of a third-rate southern segregated or northern ghetto high school, with a family background that is impoverished and unstable.

Once on campus, he discovers the college is not at all interested in educating him. He is there as a performer, not as a scholar. Off the athletic field, he is given little guidance. His closest contacts are the coaches, usually incapable of providing the kind of help and advice he needs. Socially, he leads a lonely, ostracized life. Once his eligibility expires, he is callously discarded. Many, many never graduate.

Only the comparative handful who make the grade in professional athletics have any real future.

And Olsen shows clearly that the Negro, to earn a place on a professional team, must be not simply the equal of his white rival in ability, but superior to him — often far superior. Even then, he'll labor at a lower pay scale and often under humiliating conditions, bullied by coaches and racist fans and teammates and restricted from choice positions. Olsen uses the St. Louis Cardinal football team, notorious for its racism, as his horrible example, but not as his only one.

Once the Negro is through as a professional athlete, he discovers the game has no further use for him. Front office and coaching jobs are the province of the whites. There is nothing sadder, Olsen says, than the used-up Negro athlete who must return to the cold and bigoted world outside of sports, totally untrained to cope with it.

As an athlete he has known at least some acclaim, even perhaps idolatry, on the playing field to partially offset the poisonous prejudice that confronts him after the game. Now he must adjust to being just another black face in the crowd.

Olsen's indictment is a stinging one. The sports establishment, no doubt, will answer as best it can with the old cliches by pointing to the Willie Mays who have made it big and the Rafer Johnsons who have been educated in college. But Olsen is writing, not about the handful, but about the mass of black athletes, and the picture he paints is an unpretty but convincing one.

It should be kept in mind, however, that bigotry in sports is not a single, disfiguring blemish upon the social face of America. Rather it is but one sore from the disease, white racism, that infects all America, as diagnosed by the Kerner Commission.

The reader will complete Jack Olsen's book with a better understanding of why Tommie Smith and John Carlos were motivated to act as they did in Mexico City. Their protest may have been ill-timed. But who are we whites to talk about the time factor more than a century after the Civil War and nearly 200 years after the ringing equality promises of the Declaration of Independence and our Constitution?

MORE IN TUNE with the fanciful world in which the more fanatical followers of sport exist is another Time-Life product, "Yesterday in Sport."

Produced by the Sports Illustrated staff, it is a nostalgic trip into the past recreating some of the most exciting moments in athletics — the kinds of events that have remained alive in the memories and the arguments of the old-timers, with perhaps the facts embellished just a bit in the process and the passing of time.

In its pages the sports buff can relive such experiences as Lou Gehrig's last day in baseball, the Roger Bannister-John Landry mile duel that cracked the four-minute barrier, Joe DiMaggio's record breaking consecutive game hitting streak, Red Grange on the rampage on the gridiron.

Or he can go still farther back to James Naismith inventing the game of basketball, the 1908 New York to Paris automobile race across three continents, Georgia Tech's 222 to 0 football slaughter of Cumberland, John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain squaring off in the boxing ring, baseball's Black Sox scandal.

The book takes note, too, of the less publicized sports with stories on such activities as big game hunting, bicycling, the marathon events, mountain climbing, sailing, rodeo and even bridge.

The writers include sports columnists and reporters from several decades plus notables such as George Bernard Shaw and William Faulkner, and personal reminiscenses by the likes of Black Sox first baseman Chick Gandil and the daughter-in-law of James Naismith.

The array of photographs makes up a fascinating gallery —Babe Ruth, Red Grange, Bobby Jones, Bob Fitzsimmons, Wilbur Shaw, Bo McMillin, Jack Dempsey, Ely Culbertson, Miller Huggins, Helen Wills Moody, all these and many, many more are part of the pictorial parade.

If one of the males on your Christmas gift list is a sports buff, this book, very reasonably priced, is the answer to your problem. Particularly so if he is a member of that generation that stoutly ignores the amazing new records being compiled by today's athletes and insists that these upstarts can't hold a candle to the heroes of the good old days.

A DRAMATIC MOMENT in sports history spotlighted two of baseball's all-time greats as Babe Ruth, right, tried to cheer up his longtime New York Yankee teammate Lou Gehrig on July 4, 1949, when thousands jammed Yankee Stadium to pay tribute to the "Iron Horse" whose career was coming to an end. Gehrig was soon to die of a rare form of infantile paralysis.

GAVIN LAMBERT'S "The Slide Area," described by Christopher Isherwood as "the most truthful stories about the film world and its suburbia I have ever read" and widely acclaimed by others, has been reprinted by Dial Press.

First published in 1959, this collection of seven short stories or "scenes of Hollywood life" has been out of print for a number of years. Yet, as Lambert's own reputation has grown, so has that of "The Slide Area," so that many rate it along side F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Last Tycoon" and Nathaniel West's "The Day of the Locust" as the best fiction ever written about Hollywood.

Priced at $4.50, it is not to be missed by serious fans of the Hollywood scene or admirers of superior writing.

Sleuths & Suspense

MURDER ON A BAD TRIP by June Drummond; Holt; Rinehart and Winston, 188 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Besides being a top-rated mystery with lots of suspense this novel contains a plea and a warning about the drug-oriented world we live in.

In Gantry, a mythical city in a mythical country, some one puts LSD in the city reservoir. The result is death for a few, evacuation for many, and chaos for everyone. There also is a tug-of-war between police, armed forces and politicians for control.

Author Drummond's warning seems to be that it could happen and that governments might be poorly equipped to deal with such a situation. But this is fiction and not a sermon, and it takes policeman David Cope to sniff out the criminal in a rough and chilling story.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

The Holiday Season is here. The music of Christmas will be everywhere. Maybe this holiday will bring you and your family a stereo music system that will provide beautiful music throughout the entire year. A Component music system will provide the full range and clarity of a live performance.

What are the basic parts of a component group? How does one go about the task of choosing the right units? The basic components are a stereo tuner/amplifier (receiver), two matched speaker systems, and a record changer with cartridge. If desired, a tape recorder and player deck may be added.

The stereo tuner/amplifier is a combined FM stereo tuning section, a preamplifier control section, and a power amplifier section. Some units also incorporate the AM tuning section. This electronic component is of all solid state design; that is, it uses transistors instead of tubes. Since transistors are quite small and take very little space, and since they do not create very much heat, the modern all-in-one units perform with as much quality as did the separate tuner preamp and amp commonly used in the past. Each loudspeaker system may consist of a single full range speaker mounted in an appropriate cabinet, or each system may have two or three units mounted in the cabinet. A larger speaker is used for bass and a smaller speaker or horn is used for the high tones in a two-way system. The two units are called the woofer and tweeter. In a three-way system a mid range speaker or horn is added. The record changer is the turntable with tone arm and cartridge used for playing the stereo LP records.

To choose a system one should visit a reliable dealer that specializes in components. While there, a sound specialist will demonstrate speaker systems by playing stereo pairs and switching to different pairs for comparison. After deciding which speakers will fit your taste, budget, and decor a receiver can be selected which will have enough power to operate the speakers. The audio specialist will guide you in this selection. Lastly, the record changer can be chosen that will blend in with the components already selected. It is really very simple and fun if you visit the right store. Why not visit our Hi-Fi show rooms and let our sound specialists guide you. Make this a musical holiday.

Early Bird pecked at it with his beak.
"Hello, worm," he said.

THE APPEALING illustration is from the book "The Early Bird," with Richard Scarry as author and illustrator. Random House is the publisher.

The book "The Adventures of Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" has now gone full circle.

It was first published posthumously as the only children's story written by the late Ian Fleming, creator of James Bond. Subsequently it was turned into a screenplay and movie, starring Dick Van Dyke and tailored to the family audience at which the Walt Disney pictures generally are aimed.

Now Chitty Chitty Bang Bang is back in book format again, this time in a special motion picture edition done by Albert G. Miller with color photograph illustrations taken from the movie. Random House is the publisher and the price is $2.75.

The story of the Potts family and the old car that brought such a change into their lives retains its charm, and the pictures are filled with color, action and humor.

The production of picture books based upon movies with special allure for youngsters is becoming an increasing popular technique with publishers, and in this case proves quite successful. One has only to note the long lines of kids in front of the theater boxoffice when a Disney or Disney-like matinee bill is playing to know that the appeal is there.

Some other books for the juniors:

Elephants are well-established as storybook favorites of the very young. "Elmer: The Story of a Patchwork Elephant" (McGraw-Hill, $4.50) by David McKee should be all the more irresistible for the just-starting-to-school set, since he has an unusual coloration — a plaid that includes orange, purple and other bright hues. It causes Elmer problems. And it also creates a funny yet meaningful story that the artist-author has illustrated brightly and humorously.

David McKee, says the jacket blurb for "Mr. Benn-Red Knight" (McGraw-Hill, $4.50), is one of England's most original artist-authors of children's literature. And the book bears out the claim. It is a fantasy tale of a bank clerk whose invitation to a fancy dress ball draws him into some strange adventures involving, among other things, a dragon. There's a great variety in the artwork, no two pages being of quite the same style. It is one of those books best described as "different," that may either hold very great appeal or no interest at all for the child.

The title "Plants That Eat Animals" (McGraw-Hill, $3.50), has a gruesome, science fiction sound, but this reversal of the more general order of nature does occur and is part of the planet's scheme of life. University of London botanist Linna Bentley tells about it — how some specialized plants trap and devour insects, or even small animals. Colin Threadgall provides the entomologically accurate illustrations. It's a subject that may cause shudders in some more sensitive children, but one that will fascinate the scientifically mature and curious.

Twelve espionage agents, from the American Revolutionary War hero Nathan Hale to Russia's Rudolf Abel and Richard Sorge, are the subjects of "The Master Spy" (McGraw-Hill, $2.95) by Dan Halacy. Mata Hari, Cicero, Mary Louvestre, William Sebold and Stig Wennerstrom are some of the other featured names. Although writing for young readers, Halacy goes beyond the intrigue and excitement to study in considerable depth just why these people became agents, and the effects upon history of their spying. It's a better book than a somewhat gaudy cover would indicate.

As a child in Russia, the late Valery Carrick was fascinated by the folk tales he heard. As a young man he began drawing the characters of the stories. Then, in his 40s, he started writing the tales and fitting them to the earlier artwork. His "picture tales" appeared in six volumes and won great popularity with children. Now Dover Publications has reprinted the best known, "Picture Folk-Tales," as a $1.25 paperback, complete with Carrick's classic drawings and the simple narration so easily followed by children.

Also reprinted by Dover: "Puck of Pook's Hill" ($2) by Rudyard Kipling. It is the Kipling blending of mythology and history of ancient England in which Puck out of Midsummer Night's Dream and his friends relate to two children 10 adventure stories. Each story is followed by Kipling's poetry.

Parents, and even a good many grandparents, are too young today to have known or to remember the America of the 1920s. Youngsters, of course, know nothing about it at all. Because it was a period without wars and without any great crises until the stock market crash of 1929, it is accorded relatively little space in the history books. But Fon W. Boardman Jr. in his "America and the Jazz Age" (Walck, $4.50), makes it clear that the era between the end of World War I and the crash was a colorful and eventful if somewhat frivolous time. The book is easy reading, but it is also good sound history.

"Proud to be Amish" (Crown, $3.50), by Mildred Jordan is about a Pennsylvania Dutch child torn between her Old Order upbringing and her desire for worldly things. The author resides in the heart of the Amish country in Pennsylvania, and has a deep understanding of them. Her book tells young readers, 9 to 12, much about these admirable people, and speaks also with honesty about the kind of temptations that confront the new generation, non-Amish as well as Amish.

A new reference book for juniors is "The Look-It-Up Book of Presidents" (Random House, $3.95) by Wyatt Blassingame. It consists of thumbnail biographies of each of our Presidents, varying in length with their importance and accompanied by artwork by Ted Lewin including portraits. A final chart summarizes the principal in-office achievements of each.

Also for young history buffs is "Great American Battles" (Random House, $3.95), a Landmark Giant Series book by Robert Lecklie. Leckie highlights 11 major conflicts involving Americans, from the French and Indian War to the Korean strife. Reproductions of old paintings, photographs and drawings are all included in the illustrations. Lecklie, a prolific writer for both adults and juniors, makes his accounts dramatic, and emphasizes the military commanders credited with the victories. Those who decry the glorification of war may balk at putting this book in the hands of their youngsters.

Help For Those Fighting The War Against Calories

COMPULSIVE OVEREATERS' GUIDE by Pearl Brians; Brians Publishing Co., 182 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Mrs. Brians, active for a number of years with self-improvement groups formed primarily to combat overweight, published this book privately in Penngrove, Sonoma County, where she resides.

She approaches the problem of gluttony from both its physical and its psychological aspects.

The dietary practices she recommends are principally a strict abstinence from starches and sweets, and a rigid restriction of the feeding pattern to three meals a day with no in-between snacks. Health, not taste, must be the new determining factor, she declares.

But, she adds, compulsive overeating is basically a psychological "disease attributable to personal insecurities and anxieties. If a permanent cure is to be affected, these conditions must be corrected. The program she outlines for doing this includes group therapy of a manner similar to that practiced by Alcoholics Anonymous, and a strong reliance upon religious faith and inspiration. Prayers and meditations are suggested.

Mrs. Brians' writing falls short of polished professionalism, but she succeeds in getting across her basic premises. And her ideas, rooted in experience, seem to constitute a more practical and effective approach to the problem than is often prescribed for those many Americans who, surrounded by the unprecedented abundance of foodstuffs and the traditional preferences for things most fattening, find themselves generally nudged into halfway measures that fail to do the job or procedures too drastic to be maintained for the required period of time.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Recent releases from World-Pacific, Pacific Jazz and the Blue Note subsidiary of Liberty Records are highlighted by five discs of Asian music:

"PAUL HORN IN KASHMIR" — "Cosmic Consciousness" — World Pacific WPS-21445:

Flutist and reed man Horn is a convert of the famous Maharishi and therefore the album sports a striking photo of the white-garbed guru surrounded by the performing musicians with the white-capped Himalayas in the background.

Five short selections — one of them a tabla solo—are followed by a 19-minute-long raga played by the sitar alone. The tracks featuring Horn's flute are to my mind more successful than the Menuhin-Shankar attempts which have received such high sales.

"PAUL HORN IN INDIA" — World Pacific WPS-21447:

Horn recorded this album with a group of Indian musicians just after completing the Maharashi's course.

The short ragas (longest: eight minutes) feature Horn's flute with veena, violin and the usual drone instrument and drums. It should be understood that these are not dilettantish tries at affecting an exotic flavor to Western jazz, but carefully studied and authentic improvisations according to rules of Hindu classical music, performed by a jazz flutist from the culture of the West. They can be studied, the various beats and accents kept track of, etc., or they can be used as a background for meditation or just relaxation.

A beautiful album in every way.

"KOTO AND FLUTE" — "The Music of Kinichi Nakanoshima" — World Pacific WPS-21443:

The authentic Japanese sounds of the koto, shamisen, flute and shakuhachi are heard on this disc — one of the most listenable to Western ears of any devoted to Japanese classic music.

Nakanoshima's major piece is the "Suite for Koto and Shamisen," which takes up the first side of the LP. Nakanoshima uses some effects not heard in traditional music of this type, and they add excitement. His "Fantasia of Veena," also on the disc, shows his interest in Indian music. He uses shamisen and oboe to express the flavor of the Indian instruments, veena and kumari.

"TWO RAGA MOODS ON GUITAR" — Played by Brij Bhushan Kabra — World Pacific WPS-21452:

By sheer chance this young Indian came upon an old guitar and took to it right away. There was no one to show him how to handle the instrument, so he invented his own arrangement of strings, adding a drone string.

He plays the instrument with an Hawaiian-style steel bar to get the sliding sounds so much a part of Indian music. The result is very much like the sitar, but somewhat more thin-sounding.

A very unusual offering, in a lovely packaging.

"ASHISH KHAN, YOUNG MASTER OF THE SAROD" — Alla Rakha on tabla — World Pacific WPS-21444:

The son of Ustad Ali Akbar Khan, this sarodist is already a top performer of Indian music.

There is a long raga on each side of the disc, the first a graceful early morning raga and the second an evening melody of great importance in the repertory of Indian musicians.

"THE EMPTY FOXHOLE" — Ornette Coleman — Blue Note BST 84246:

This release has been around for some time and was chosen the best jazz album of 1967 by one group.

The title tune has one of Ornette's fascinating tonal melodies, standouts because of their infrequency. The other five tracks are in the vein of the "new thing," their communicative qualities assisted by a poem by Coleman for each of them.

In addition to alto sax, Ornette blows trumpet and violin. Charlie Haden is the expert bassist and the little trio is completed by Ornette's — believe it or not — 10-year-old son on drums. And he's great!

"SERENADE TO A SOUL SISTER" — The Horace Silver Quintet, featuring Stanley Turrentine — Blue Note BST-84277:

Horace Silver is one of the finest modern jazz pianists around, and his albums are nearly always a special event. This one is probably the equal of his great "Song for My Father" LP.

The title tune is a funky, soulful one, and another dilly is "Psychedelic Sally." In addition to Turrentine's tenor sax, Charles Tolliver's trumpet work shines on the disc.

Silver's musical credo includes stress on melodic and harmonic beauty and meaningful simplicity. This is clearly shown, and much to be enjoyed in the LP.

"LIVE IN 3⅔/4 TIME"—The Don Ellis Orchestra — Pacific Jazz ST-20123:

Another great album by the only really avant-garde big band in existence.

Although Ellis' new LPs on the Columbia label seem to be getting the majority of the attention recently, he started on Pacific Jazz and still records for them. Interest in off-beat time signatures is the band's most noticeable characteristic.

The tune "Upstart," is in 3¾-over-4 time, or to be more logical, 11/8 time. Clear? Anyway, it swings like mad, and that's the pudding's proof. Another spree with this virtuoso young orchestra is "Barnum's Revenge," in which Ellis had redone "Won't You Come Home Bill Bailey" with wild abandon.

This band is about the most important thing happening in modern jazz today.

"EVERYWHERE" — The Gerald Wilson Orchestra — Pacific Jazz ST-20132:

While much more conservative than the Ellis orchestra, Gerald Wilson's group of talented Southern California studio men puts out a cool, relaxed, and readily identifiable sound that makes for lovely listening. Their list of albums is huge by now, and this one is good as the best.

Marin Poets' Corner

AFTER THANKSGIVING

Turkey, dressing, yams and wine
Combined for dinners really fine,
Wonderful friendship shared by all
'Round glowing hearths, no chilly fall
Could dampen for a single moment—
And now the day is done and spent
As coin, saved for a spending spree,
Yet it has left this thought with me:
"Happy spirit why not stay
And live within our hearts each day,
Why not our companion be
And Look with love on all we see,
Why not let our voices raise
In happiness and thankful praise?
Happy spirit please enter in
And let our 'peace on earth' begin."

Get Ready For The New Roses

With many roses in Marin County still showing bloom, it is somewhat startling to realize that another bareroot planting season is almost upon us.

But Marin nurseries generally begin receiving their bareroot roses just prior to Christmas.

And expectations are that the arrival date this year will be normal.

This means, incidentally, that at least some bareroot rose shrubs will be available for purchase as Christmas gifts for gardeners.

THERE ARE, however, many longer lasting reasons for purchasing your new roses bareroot.

By so doing you'll get a better rose from a larger selection, and you'll get it cheaper. If you delay until after the bareroot season, you'll be selecting from stock that has already been picked over. And you'll have to pay for the extra care the nurseryman has gone to in planting the bushes into containers and in caring for them.

This, of course, explains why most roses purchased and planted in Marin are bareroot season projects.

WHILE THE opening of the bareroot rose season is still some three weeks in the offing, there are certain preliminary steps you can take now.

These involve the digging out of old roses that have served their purpose and lost their glory, preparatory to their replacement with new shrubs.

And the working of the soil. Peat moss and leaf mold or special planter mix in liberal amounts, worked in to a depth of at least two feet while the soil isn't soggy from a recent rain, will provide the rose bush with the environment in which it thrives.

DO THIS, whether replacing an old bush or starting a brand new planting site.

Later on, of course, you will be faced with the problem of selecting the kind of rose that best suits your needs and tastes. There is always a demand for the new All-America roses, although these are generally in short supply. Plenty of other fine roses, new and old, will be available, however, including new color hues and combinations, improved fragrance and flower forms, and plants that are hardier than most or less susceptible to mildew.

THE NEW yellow hybrid tea rose, the Chateau La Salle, is a northern California product, developed by hybridizer Dr. Dennison Morey and introduced by General Bionomics of Santa Rosa. Its rich fragrance recalls the bouquet of the wine Chateau La Salle, made from Muscat de Frontignan grapes, for which it was named. The rose has a long blooming season, boasts a dark and lustrous foliage, and is almost immune to mildew and rust, as well as being highly resistant to other foliage ills.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Make sure newly planted trees are solidly staked against possible strong winds.

✓Almost all shrubs and trees may be planted in early December. Camellias and azaleas are especially good bets because they bloom in winter and spring to give you quick rewards.

✓Separate begonia tubers from their stems as the latter dry off. Wash the soil from the tubers and store them in a dry place until next year.

✓Shop for a living Christmas tree while the selection is at its best.

✓Remember, too, in shopping for Christmas gifts that the "green thumber" always appreciates garden tools or plants.

✓It's too early to prune roses in California: Wait until January or February.

✓In selecting a tree for the lawn, keep the size factor in mind and pick a small or medium-size tree such as the liquidambar, the European white birch or the St. Mary's magnolia.

✓After rains, make a check for drainage problem spots in your garden, and take corrective action.

Setting The Stage For Spring

The Marin gardener who will have color to spare next spring is the one who is busy setting the stage for that garden spectacular right now.

For instance, spring-blooming bulbs that have not already gone into the ground should do so very soon.

If you have not already purchased your bulbs, then you are probably out of luck. Most nurseries are sold out. However, two of the more popular bulbs in Marin, the anemone and the ranunculus, can be found in some nurseries in flats. Grab them while you have the chance.

NOW IS THE time, too, for planting a number of perennials including delphiniums, canterbury bells, sweet williams, columbines and gerberas or Transvaal daisies. For the last-named, good drainage is a must. Plant them with the crowns above the soil, and keep an eye out for water standing about them after rains.

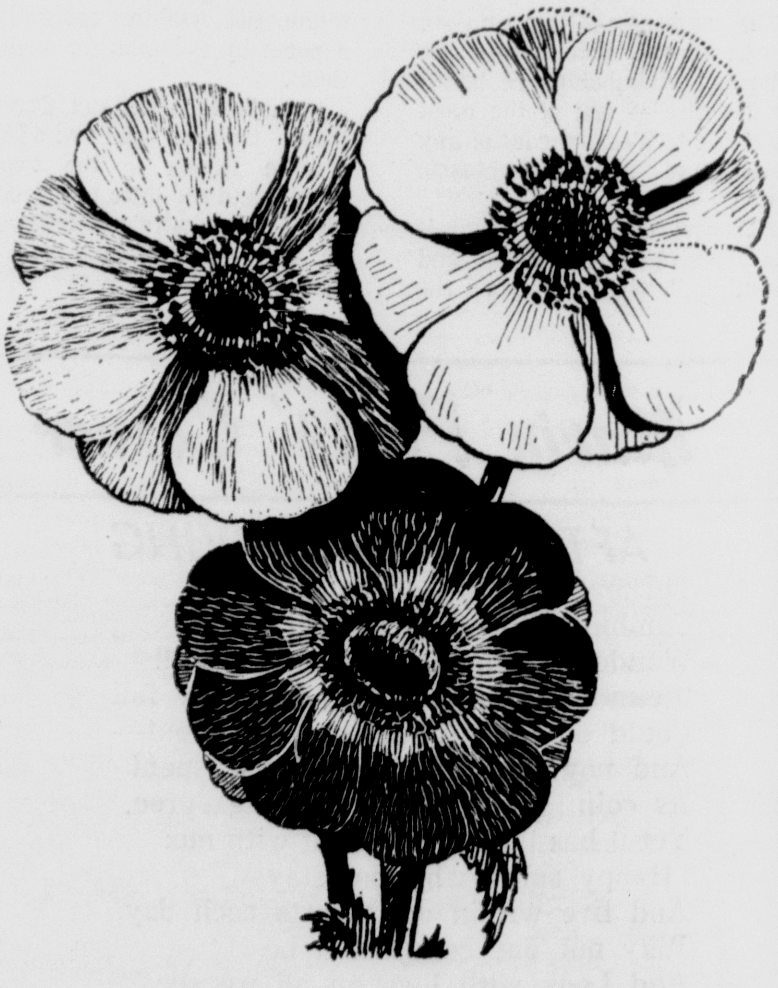
Flowering shrubs that can go in now include such deciduous favorites as weigela, flowering quince, forsythia, dogwood and magnolia, and evergreens like daphne, raphilepsis and native lilacs.

Camellias and azaleas belong at the top of the current planting list.

IT'S ALSO A good time for planting the flowering-type trees, such as flowering peaches, flowering cherries, crabapples and plums.

Some of these, however, will be available in a few weeks in bareroot form, and you may prefer to wait until then.

Whether you plant these now or later, there are still plenty of other planting possibilities to keep you busy when the fickle December weather permits you in the garden.



IT'S TOO late to find most spring-blooming bulbs in the nurseries now for fall planting, but the anemone or wind-flower can sometimes be discovered growing in flats and available for easy planting. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

Watch Your Step In Using The Ladder

Outside ladders get lots of attention at this time of the year.

In our part of the country where the weather remains mild throughout the winter, outside ladders are utilized for all the usual purposes — painting, staining, caulking, roof repairing, and such general maintenance chores as cleaning gutters and downspouts of accumulated leaves and debris.

WHATEVER ITS purpose, the outside ladder must be handled properly to prevent accidents.

This begins with placement of the ladder against the house at the proper angle. To get this balance, the bottom of the ladder should be a specific distance away from the house. That specific distance is one-fourth the length of the ladder. Thus, when placing a 12-foot ladder against the house, see that the bottom of it is three feet from the house.

Other things to insure safety in handling and working on an outside ladder are:

IF THE GROUND on which the ladder rests is soft, place a wide, solid board under the legs, then stand on the bottom rung and jump up and down on it a few times to be sure the board is firmly placed.

If the ground is hard, the feet of the ladder should be equipped with safety treads or one of the other devices designed to prevent slipping.

Where there is even the slightest doubt about the solidity of the setup, use roof ladder hooks, which fasten onto the high rungs of the ladder and hook over the roof ridge.

Forget about using the ladder when there is a strong wind.

BEFORE PUTTING up the ladder, examine it for structural defects. Such defects can be hidden by paint, so be sure that you use only a clear finish on the ladder.

Never go higher than the second step from the top of the ladder; working from the third step from the top is even better.

Don't try to show how strong you are by shifting the position of long heavy ladders. Get someone to help you.

When working in front of a door, either keep it wide open or lock it.

DON'T WORK on the ladder when children are playing nearby. Statistics show that a considerable percentage of ladder accidents occur when children bump into ladder bases.

While on the ladder, don't reach out too far on either side; the shifting of weight may cause the ladder to slide.

WITH THE addition of some shelving and vertical dividers you can literally make your large closet do double duty by installing, in effect, a linen closet within a closet. Above, cedar lumber has been used for shelving and dividers, with the right side now accommodating bedding, the left side clothing. Hanger bar is but five feet off the floor for most efficient use of available space. While adding the shelving, it might be a good idea to mothproof your closet with a clear cedar lining that comes in easy-to-handle pieces that are nailed directly to closet walls.
